NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Asparagus plumosus

Where you mean to renew any of your beds do not lose any time in getting them planted. They always do better planted in solid beds. Give them a very rich compost, a foot deep. Equal parts of turfy loam and cow manure will not be a bit too rich, as they are very greedy feeders. See that they have plenty of headroom so you can cut long strings and give them enough of room between the plants, as it pays in the end. Plants that have been growing along without a check and are now in 4-inch pots will make good stock to plant out. They can be set from 15 to 18 inches apart between the rows and from 12 to 15 inches in the rows. Give regular attention in watering and syringing. Place strings just as soon as they assume the character of running. Give your old established beds a rich mulch about 4 inches deep, with an occasional dose of liquid manure.

Care of Asters

To ensure a good crop of flowers asters will require large quantities of water at the roots during any dry spell. When you see the buds beginning to form devise some means for getting the hose at them, for we are very liable to have a prolonged drought as these plants are coming into flower. Give your later asters a good dusting of some high-grade fertilizer sown between the rows, which will assist them materially. See that they have frequent cultivation to keep them free of weeds and the soil open and loose. Where the aster beetle is troublesome syringe the plants with a teaspoonful of paris green to a pail of water. This can be repeated every ten days until they come into flower.

Housing Carnations

All good growers consider from now and up until the middle of August the best time to house carnations. Any time later than this is bound to be a loss in the crop of flowers. Give your houses a thorough cleaning and make provision for whitewashing the inside of all benches, as lime is a germ destroyer and also helps to preserve the wood. The first thing to do is to shade the house with some material that will come off easily in about ten days. When lifting the plants from the field see that they are protected from the sun and drying winds by covering them up closely with something until they are planted. Where you have plenty of good plants select the best and most shapely. Make a hole just large enough to hold the roots nicely and bear in mind it is always better to set the plants a little higher than they were in the field as they are not so liable to have stem rot. Give every plant a good firming as they always start off better and in the long run will give better results. When you have part of a bench planted it is well to give them a good soaking around the ball so they will not have time to flag. After the house is planted keep them a little closer for about ten days and give them a spraying two or three times a day. After this give plenty of ventilation both night and day.

This is the proper time to think about planting this highly appreciated winter plant. Where it is possible give them solid benches but where this is not possible they should have at least from 10 to 12 inches of soil to grow on. Make the compost good and rich as they require lots of food. The best soil to use is one that was taken from an old pasture last fall and piled up over the winter; to two loads of this use one load of cow manure and a good sprinkling of bone meal and turn this over two or three times so they will be well mixed. When the benches are filled make the surface nice and fine for the seed. They should stand about 12 inches apart each way. The best way is to draw lines lengthwise and crosswise and the seed can be sown where the lines meet, using four to six seed at every junction. Cover the seed lightly and water with a fine rose until the soil around the seed is well moistened. To prevent the soil from drying out they can be covered with 4-inch pots until they begin to come up. When the plants are showing their second pair of leaves, thin to two plants and when they are good and strong they can be thinned to one. Stir the surface of the soil regularly and keep on plenty of ventilation for it is a necessity in securing short-jointed growth.

Nepenthes

Where these become too large and unsightly they can be cut down and one or two-eye cuttings made of the pieces of the stems. The best way to propagate these is to place the end in the hole of the pot and fill the pot with sphagnum moss and plunge the pots in a frame where they can be kept close and moist. Sometimes it takes them three or four months to root. When they are well rooted the pots can be broken and the plants put in a crib with a mixture of fibrous peat and chopped sphagnum. They should be hung up in a warm house where the atmosphere is kept reeking with moisture.

Stocks for Winter Flowering

These plants that were sown the last of May should be kept growing by potting them up as they require it until a five-inch pot is reached. Give them a rich compost; say to three loads of turfy loam add one load of well decayed manure. It is better to pot them when quite small. A 2 or 2½-inch pot is a good size to use and as these become filled with roots they can be shifted into 4 or 5-inch pots. The best place to care for these plants through the summer is in a frame where the sashes are elevated 6 to 8 inches, which will afford at all times a free circulation of air. In this abode they will do fine until very late in the fall. It is a good plan to wait until the buds can be distinguished before they are planted out, for you can then tell the double flowered ones by their stubby buds. The single ones can be known by being more pointed. When planting them out in the benches use any good compost such as will grow any inside crop of flowers. They can be planted about a foot apart each way and kept well watered. Ventilation is one of the most important points in growing stocks successfully so give them plenty of it. Give regular fumigations to keep down the green fly.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Asparagus Sprengeri; Care of Cyripediums; Hollyhocks; Hydrangeas; Lilies for the Fall; Repairing and Outside Painting.

George H. Penson

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Penson. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Layering Strawberries.

Strawberries for forcing next winter should be layered without delay. Let preceding years designate the varieties to be used—that is the main crops. Trials should be made on any promising new varieties which may have come under notice, but do not rely on these new ones, as they are liable to turn out useless for forcing. After determining how many plants are needed add fifteen per cent, to cover any which may not root. Have the required number of three-inch pots ready and sufficient soil to fill them put through the half-inch sieve. By pressing this point of having sufficient material ready at the first time of asking much time is saved than by making “two bites at a cherry” as the saying is. When making the two or three attempts men are covering ground these two or three times when once should be sufficient. This is applicable to many jobs. I would rather any time see a small amount of soil left over after potting up a batch of stuff than to have that same amount to mix. In addition to the extra labor entailed it is doubtful if the two lots of soil contain exactly the same ingredients—that is, where a proper mixture is called for. In this case any good soil will do to layer into. Where any quantity of strawberry layers are required annually it is a good practice to put in young stock each year; take off the flowers to prevent them from fruiting the first season which will give you the strongest layers from which to select young runners. If this was not done the best must be selected from those which fruited this summer. The best method of procedure is to clean the stock plants first, remove all weeds, bad leaves, etc., also any runners which are too old for the purpose. The remaining should be drawn to one side of the plant so that the small pots can be placed close together to prevent rapidly drying out and in addition to this the outside rows should have either the straw mulching of the bed or some soil drawn up around them or you will experience a difficulty in keeping them evenly moist with those on the inside of the group. Layering itself is easy after all the preparatory work is through. Place the pots in position, select the layer for each one, remove any more plants which may be on the same wire, see that the wire (or rhizome) will reach the bottom of the pot, leaving the crown of the young plant level with the surface of the soil. As the soil is filled in on top of the wire, this will keep it in position. See that the pots are level, to retain the water, and they must be kept evenly moist until the plants are rooted, when they can be cut away and transferred to some convenient spot having an ash bottom and being near a faucet. As soon as they fill out the threes nicely with roots shift them into sixes.

Propping Apples and Pears.

To get the maximum amount of color and finish into apples and pears grown in pots it will be well to prop them up to get all the sun, light and air possible. Apples are done by means of moderately stiff wire bent so as to form a receptacle or prop for each fruit, the ring or cup at the top being at right angles to the support or handle. This handle can be made in different lengths to suit various positions on the trees. The cup is the only part of the support which comes in contact with the fruit and this should be covered over with cotton wool to prevent the fruits from bruising. Two or three strong stakes are usually required to bring the tree into shape and bring all the fruits as near as possible on to one side of the tree, thus giving all the sun at the same time. When this is done the props are worked up under the fruits; being made of practically flexible wire they will bend to any required position and once made fast will remain so. By carefully turning the fruits a little every few days they will soon become the very richest color the variety is capable of producing. Pears are a little different. Being of different shape and more easier bruised the trees can only be staked out and the fruits tied on so that they can remain on the trees until perfectly ripe, without danger of falling. The idea of tying the fruits on may seem strange, but the stalk on the pear is long enough and gives itself to receiving a piece of raffia. Many good pears have been saved this way. The writer has often thought it is too bad peaches and nectarines could not be treated similarly, as we continually find a few push themselves off when swelling fast.

Order New Trees.

This is not a week too early to place orders for new trees to be delivered in the fall, which is the only satisfactory time to receive trees for pot work or early forcing. All business firms make a practice to fill orders as received, consequently the “early bird catches the worm.” You are surer of getting exactly what you want and the best of it. When ordering be sure to designate the shape required and state for pot work or otherwise. Previous issues of HORTICULTURE have contained lists of varieties of the different subjects cultivated under glass which have proved satisfactory for forcing in America. Any of these will be readily inserted again to assist any reader in making a selection.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Syringing Young Plants

Be very careful that the newly planted stock is not too dry when you are thinking of syringing. During this hot weather the foliage will scald very easily and should the plants get badly scalded it will take a long time for them to recover. In most houses plants can be given a light watering early in the morning and will not be too wet if syringed later. With certain soils and houses this cannot be done so it is best to try and water good the day before syringing. Plants that have been set deep enough when planted will be very difficult to syringe, and will be very likely to make poor growth. Better take them up and plant them properly.

Two-Year-Old Plants

These also should be watered very carefully as over-watering means disaster. Syringe these very quickly, being careful not to get too much water on the bench. Plants that have not been cut down and re-planted will not be so particular.

With old Beauty plants pinch out all buds as fast as they appear, and build up the plants a bit before attempting to cut any roses from these. Killarneys, Mrs. Jardine, Richmond, Radiance, Melody Sunburst, My Maryland, Mrs. Taft and a few others will stand the same treatment, i. e., pinching to build up the plants. With Bride, Bridesmaid, Kaiserin, Augusta Victoria, Madison and others pinch out only the very strong shoots, taking two or three leaves with each bud. The weak-stemmed buds are best cut down to two eyes as is customary with all roses.

Wires for Beauties

Many growers will place their first wire too high from the surface of the bench. We find that one foot above is plenty high enough. If the first tier of wires is placed too high we find the plants do not do so well. It is customary to cut two eyes above the bottom wire, and the wood below the wire soon becomes very hard and does not circulate sap as freely as new wood; therefore the nearer the new growths are to the roots the better. The breaks on a shoot that has been cut too high are liable to be weak. Although the first break or two may come strong, the next ones surely will be weak which will keep up until all wood in the houses is weak and spindling and refuses to set. Were it not that it is very difficult to work around plants tied too low, we would recommend placing the bottom wire even nearer, but this would not do, for the danger of spot would then be increased, the air not circulating underneath the plants very well and thus leaving the bottom foliage always more or less moist.

Manure for Fall Mulching

If no manure has been heaped for the early fall mulch get some as soon as possible. In buying manure, look more at the quality than at the price. Cheap manure is bound to have too much straw in it and it certainly pays to get good manure, even though the price is a little higher than for the poor inferior kind. Heap it into nice neat heaps, under cover if at all possible, and have it turned once every week, breaking up the lumps as much as possible. If this is done the manure ought to be in shape by the time the first house of roses is ready for its first mulch. It would not be advisable to add any soil to the manure as yet. If soil is added it becomes too heavy to handle. Therefore keep manure and soil separate.

A Concrete Floor for Manure Shed

It is a wonder to me that so many florists let their manure lie exposed to the weather when it costs but little to build a small shed, with a concrete floor. As concrete work is not so very complicated, it can be done with the aid of the help on the place. Have a little cistern that will receive all the drain. This can be well utilized as liquid manure to be applied to the roses later on, or can be used for watering outside flowers and vegetables while they are small. Soaking the manure with it is also very good. Any ordinary pump will answer the purpose and can be bought very reasonable. By all means build a manure shed and save many dollars by utilizing liquid manure that now runs down the creek or soaks into the ground in places where not a drop of it is absorbed by trees or other vegetation.

Lime

Now is also the best time to see about procuring enough lime to do for the season. By arranging with lumber yards lime can usually be purchased at a very reasonable figure, for many yards carry a large stock and some of it is bound to slack and become quite useless to them, and yet this very lime is just the thing for the rose grower. To keep good, lime must be stored in a place that is perfectly dry, free from all moisture. Most places have special lime boxes where lime is kept dry, and can be screened and used whenever it is wanted. Our opinion is no rose grower should be without at least a little lime on hand at all times. Even now in the hot dry weather it happens at times that houses are syringed heavily in the morning and the afternoon is cloudy with a heavy rain. A little lime blown around the house at such times is the finest thing in the world. Do this the last thing at night, i. e., just before quitting.

Protecting Iron Posts

All columns, pipes and supports that run through the bench to the floor of the greenhouses should be properly boxed so that no soil will come near them, otherwise it will not be very long before they are rusted through, and anyone who has to replace one or two will appreciate having all posts securely boxed. A good coat of paint should also be applied quite often to keep all supports in prime condition. If this is not done the house will soon be all out of shape.

The Rambler in the ascendant

Among the most pleasing features of the big international show in London was the prominence of the American hybrid Ramblers in the rose exhibits. It is very evident that they outshone all others in impressive effect. This section of which the foreign raised Crimson Rambler was the first notable example, has been so enriched by the skill of American hybridists that a rose exhibition or rose garden now in which these graceful subjects are not a conspicuous component, is a "weary, stale, flat, and unprofitable" matter. We look forward to the time when the patient skill of our rose producers shall give us a race of hardy perpetual flowering ramblers, accomplishing for the pillar class what has already been so well done for the bush class in the H. T. varieties.

Friends of the Peony

The appeal of President Farr of the American Peony Society for the elimination of inferior varieties from the catalogues of nurserymen and that the Society should discourage the further introduction of new sorts which are below the standard will, no doubt, receive the unanimous approval of the trade and the amateur as well. Excellent work has been done under the Peony Society's auspices in identifying varieties and classifying synonyms. Probably no other species of garden plants has ever been so mixed up as to nomenclature and so burdened with spurious varieties and fraudulent varietal names as Pæonia albiflora and the task which the society undertook in straightening out this disorder was a big one. We hope it will be equally successful in future in its avowed purpose to advance the interests of its favorite flower by encouraging the raising of still finer varieties than we now have and opposing the exploitation of those that are inferior, whether new or old.

A vigorous offspring

Many well-wishers of our Society of American Florists have been disturbed from time to time by the formation of new societies devoted to the interests of special flowers—sometimes regarded as of minor importance—fearing a weakening effect on the "parent" institution. One of the youngest of these special organizations is the Sweet Pea Society, which has already given good justification for its existence and that without any suggestion of any cross-purposes with any other body. This Society, we predict, will provide astonishment in plenty for the horticultural world, at its annual meeting and exhibition to be held in Boston the latter part of next week, and those who visit it will have good reason to congratulate themselves, no matter how great a distance they may have to travel. The S. A. F. is not weakened but strengthened rather by these enthusiastic endeavors. It all depends on the motives and springs of action of the men who provide the inspiration and mould the sentiment in such movements, and in the present instance the loyalty of the workers in the young offshoot, to the big national organization, is unquestioned.

Oncidium ornithorhynchum

This is a very pretty and well-known orchid from the Mexican Cordilleras where it is found growing at an elevation of from 2000 to 5000 feet above sea level. The individual flowers are small but are produced in great profusion on slender well branched panicles. They are very sweet scented, the odor reminding one of heliotrope. It is very interesting to study the peculiar shape of the flowers under a magnifying-glass; this will plainly show a great resemblance to some kind of bird. The cap which protects and hides the pollen has a long point, at the end of which protrudes the caudicles to which the pollen masses are attached and this might be taken for some insect which the bird is holding in its bill. This will explain the specific name "ornithorhynchum"—a bird's bill. The petals would represent the wings of a bird flying while the lip, which is turned backward at nearly a right angle and ornamented with a yellow crest, would represent the body of the bird.

The illustration represents the white form O. ornithorhynchum album which is very pretty and quite rare.

This Oncidium grows best in intermediate temperature suspended from the roof. It should be shaded from direct sunshine during the hot summer months, but in fall and winter up to early spring will enjoy all the sunshine it can get. They are very sensitive to root disturbance and when repotting becomes necessary great care should be taken not to injure the roots more than can be helped. The best time to pot is when new roots begin to push forth from the new growth. Chopped moss and osmunda fibre in equal parts with a little sharp sand added will make a good compost for them, but it should be used sparingly, an inch or two on top of the drainage being sufficient. During summer when growing vigorously they will enjoy frequent applications of weak liquid manure; once or twice a week will not be too often, and the plants should be syringed freely on all bright days. Never let them be dry except during the dull winter months, when only just enough water should be given to prevent the bulbs from shriveling.

Aristocrat

Your true aristocrat is always your true democrat. Heredity, training, brains, are all antecedent. Mere money does not make an aristocrat—although it may be an incident in the development. Most of the newly rich are far from being aristocrats. They are mostly snobs. Many true aristocrats have no money at all. What a true aristocrat is was forcibly illustrated the other day by an incident told by John Farquhar about the speech of Sir George Holford who won the King's prize for orchids at the London show and who at the Royal Horticultural Society's dinner later deprecated the great praise given him, saying that his friend Mr. Alexander deserved most of the credit. Mr. Farquhar met him the next day and complimented him on that portion of his speech. Sir George said: "He is my friend; I never think of him otherwise." The point of this illustration lies in the fact that Mr. Alexander is the Baron's gardener; but the Baron never thought of referring to that fact in his speech. He spoke of him as his friend. There's at least one man in Massachusetts who can be called a true aristocrat. David Roy of Marion could tell you about him; and there are doubtless many others all over the world; but we hear about them all too seldom. They are the salt of the earth!

AMERICAN SEEDLING PEONIES.

It has long been the custom to look to Europe for everything new and worthy in peonies, and it is not without cause, for, with the exception of a few good ones of American origin, nearly all of the novelties have come from Lemoine, Dessert, Millet and Kelway, who, within recent years, have sent out some magnificent varieties. It really seemed as though about the limit of variation must have been reached, but America is coming to the front in the production of new peonies and within a few years we shall see some startling novelties placed on the market which will equal, if not surpass the European productions. On a recent visit to the grounds of E. J. Shaylor, the peony specialist of Wellesley Farms, Mass., I was forcibly impressed with the excellence of some seedlings he has flowering in their second season. The most striking one he proposes to name for his mother, Mary Woodbury Shaylor, and a more beautiful memorial it would be hard to find. The plant is very conspicuous and is the first to catch the eye in the section of the grounds where it is growing. In habit it is very marked, being of a vigorous, upright growth, with heavy foliage and immense blooms, which are of the semi-double type, flesh white on first opening, fading to cream white with age. The guard petals are very large, well rounded and remarkably thick. The center petals are of equal length with the guards, mostly broad and notched at the ends, several of which are bordered with bright crimson. The carpels are bright carmine; the yellow stamens, which are of the club-shaped Japanese type are intermixed with the petals in a very effective manner. The plant is furnished with the heaviest foliage of any variety known to me, many of the leaflets being fully four inches in breadth. The stems are very short and furnished with leaves well up under the flowers, very much in the way of Chrysanthemum Major Bonnafon and some others.

To those who see no beauty in a flower unless full double, this variety might not appeal, but to those who appreciate the artistic, it certainly will stand among the most beautiful. As compared with the recent European importations, with few exceptions, the latter fall far behind, leaving this in a class by itself.

Another seedling of much promise is of similar habit but taller, smaller in all its parts, with a flower more full and with narrower center petals intermixed with the true Japanese club shaped staminoids. The color is delicate flesh with cream white center.

Still another seedling of great merit is one which Mr. Shaylor proposes to name Jessie Shaylor. It is somewhat in the way of Mad. Emile Lemoine but with more shell-like petals. The color is light flesh and cream white, with a few stamens showing among the petals. The habit is good, bearing its large flowers well above the foliage on strong stems which have no inclination to droop. Another season's growth will probably show these flowers at their best and enhance somewhat their beauty.

Obituary.

John A. Pettigrew.

John Allgood Pettigrew, superintendent of Boston parks, died at his home in Jamaica Plain, Mass., on July 2, of heart disease, from which he had been suffering for several months. Mr. Pettigrew was born near Newcastle, England, on April 25, 1844. His father was a gardener and he began his own experience in that profession when a boy of 10 years. He came to this country at the age of 22 and settled in Chicago, where he was engaged in floriculture and landscape work for some 13 years, afterwards spending several years in the stone contracting business. Returning to landscape work he was selected as superintendent of Lincoln Park which was then in the constructive stage and the result of his magnificent abilities in this work and in the treatment of the lake shore drive soon brought to him and the department under his care a world-wide repute. His accomplishments in the Chicago park system were justly called "a triumph of the gardeners' art, over apparently insurmountable adverse conditions" and there was great popular indignation when through the political tyranny of an unscrupulous governor Mr. Pettigrew was forced out of his position. Politics again was the cause of his leaving the Milwaukee park system where he spent one year after leaving Chicago. He then came to Prospect Park, Brooklyn, where he displayed high administrative ability and made a splendid record of efficiency and further secured his reputation as the foremost park superintendent in America. On January 1, 1897, he was called to take charge of the Boston park system and here he has labored unceasingly ever since, sturdily advocating and practicing the best principles of landscape art and rendering invaluable service in providing healthful recreation facilities for all the people, young and old.

Mr. Pettigrew was identified with many organizations. He was the organizer and first president of the American Association of Park Superintendents; president of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston for two terms; trustee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society; member of the Society of American Florists, the American Forestry Association, the Appalachian Mountain Club and the Horticultural Club of Boston. He read papers before several of these bodies on various occasions, on the subject to which he had devoted his life work and was at all times a willing helper on committees and other society duties. He leaves a widow, one son and three married daughters.

As to Mr. Pettigrew's personality and qualities as a friend and companion words fail to express the writer's emotions as he recalls the years of close intimacy with that generous and noble character. A true and ever-loyal friend, a wise and far-seeing counselor—

"Friend to truth" of soul sincere,
In action faithful, and in honor clear,
Who broke no promise, serv'd no private end,
Who gain'd no title, and who lost no friend."

We now give way to the heartfelt tribute of one who was, perhaps, Mr. Pettigrew's closest confidant and friend among the Boston horticultural fraternity.

It falls to the lot of few men to be so widely appreciated and esteemed, and by his closer friends so deeply beloved as was the late John Allgood Pettigrew. His calling was dear to him and any one interested in any branch of horticulture or forestry had ready access to his marvelous fund of knowledge. His closest friends were chosen from among his fellow craftsmen and to such his friendship knew no limit. Even among these it was seldom that the subject of conversation drifted beyond topics relating to his life calling.

Mr. Pettigrew died in the midst of his work; he never relinquished it. His single purpose was the formation and continuance of a system of parks, boulevards and playgrounds in the City of Boston that would meet the high standard that he himself had established, a standard not approached by any other system in the world.

JOHN ALLGOOD PETTIGREW

"He is easily first among us," said an able park superintendent in speaking of Mr. Pettigrew at the Rochester, N. Y., convention two years ago, and only the other day a letter from one of the foremost park men in the country referred to him as "our dean and leader."

Nor was his fame confined to this country—he was well known and his work and opinions most highly regarded in Europe. When in Europe last month the writer had many inquiries for and compliments paid to our departed friend; Mr. W. Watson, director of the Royal Gardens, Kew, spoke of him most enthusiastically, while Mr. William Atkinson of the famous Hansworth Nurseries, said, "Pettigrew and I understand each other—of trees and plants we think alike and talk in the same language."

How much we in Boston who have seen so much of him shall miss him! His great work remains and will go on, and wherever we turn in this city we shall see it—we shall not forget him, for in it all he will still be with us. JOHN K. M. L. FARQUHAR.

Mrs. Wilhelmina Rosmarin.

On June 16, Wilhelmina, wife of George Rosmarin, proprietor of the Encinal Nursery, 1419 Bay street, Alameda, Calif., died at her home, aged 61 years. She was a native of Germany and was well known in the trade. Her husband and two daughters survive her.

Peter R. De Muth.

Peter R. De Muth, head of the firm of P. R. De Muth & Sons, florists, 81, South Pittsburg street, Connellsville, Pa., died on June 20, aged 79 years. He was born in Connellsville township and began gardening and florist work while still a boy. He leaves a widow, three sons and two daughters.

John L. Froding.

At the age of 67 years, John L. Froding, landscape gardener, Oconomowoc, Wisconsin, died suddenly on June 18. A widow, one son, and two daughters survive him.

Daniel Springer.

Daniel Springer, florist, 29 Chittenden avenue, Columbus, O., died from an attack of heart trouble on June 29.

NATIONAL SWEET PEA SOCIETY OF AMERICA.

Program—First Day, Saturday, July 13, 1912.

3 P. M.—Address of Welcome; President Sim's Address; Secretary's Report; Prof. A. C. Beal's Report on our Trial Grounds at Cornell University; Treasurer's Report; Nomination of Officers for 1912; Invitation for the Next Meeting Place; "Our Present Knowledge of the Sweet Pea Diseases and their control, by Prof. J. J. Taubenhaus of the Delaware College Agricultural Experiment Station; Election of Officers.

8 P. M.—Vote on the Next Meeting Place; Addresses and Discussions; Question Box; Unfinished Business.

Second Day, Sunday, July 14, 1912.

Lectures which will be announced later.

Announcements.

The Gardeners and Florists' Club of Boston will invite the members of the N. S. P. S. of A. at an informal luncheon at 7 P. M., Saturday evening.

The executive committee recommends that the name of our society be changed from the National Sweet Pea Society of America to the American Sweet Pea Society. This will be voted upon at the next meeting. Kindly be present and express your views.

The final schedule of the exhibition and prizes is out and copies can be had of Secretary H. A. Bunyard, 342 W. 14th street, New York. It is a big prize list in which commercial growers, amateurs, private gardeners, retailers and school children are all sumptuously provided for in the way of liberal premiums, among which are many valuable cups. The Massachusetts Horticultural Society also offers a page of money prizes and medals. Complete schedule will appear in our next issue

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

AMERICAN PEONY SOCIETY.

The meeting of the American Peony Society which took place at Ithaca, N. Y., on June 19 and 20 was a great success. A large proportion of the firms specializing in the peony were represented and also there were a good many amateurs from various parts of the country as well as some from Canada. The exhibition was made up of cut blooms from the Society's plot on the grounds of the University and the exhibits of private growers.

For the best collection, one bloom of each, the judges awarded first to A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y.; second to Mrs. F. S. Kellogg, New York Mills, N. Y. For the best new seedling of American origin not previously exhibited, Mr. Saunders was also awarded first for Jean Bancroft, blush with cream centre, and immense blush guards. T. A. Havemeyer of Glenhead staged a collection showing high cultural skill, but owing to the differ-sisting of Messrs. Farr, Harris, Saunders, Brown and Craig. It is hoped that it will be possible to get the work ready for the press within a year.

President's Address.

After voicing a welcome to the members the president referred to the imperishable and far-reaching records of the Society's work as presented in the bulletins and standard descriptions of varieties as published. He spoke appreciatively of the joint work done by the Horticultural Department of Cornell and the great assistance given the society in indexing, classifying and care of the plants and the publication of the bulletins all of which had been assumed by the University, the society supplying the plants. He gave especial credit to Prof's Craig, Coit and Batcheler for diligent work.

The next and most important work, he said, should be the gathering together of all the material contained in the several preliminary bulletins which and protection of the authorities and be visited by the masses of people.

Now that the work of identification has progressed so far, he said, the work of elimination may be taken in hand and the continued propagation of inferior varieties discouraged, as well as the introduction of new varieties not up to the highest standard.

The Secretary's Report.

Secretary A. P. Saunders reported a membership of 66. He advocated the desirability of interesting amateur growers in the society and the offering of prizes at the exhibitions exclusively for amateur competition. Concerning catalogue descriptions he spoke as follows:

I think the growers should take more account of the preferences of the amateur in the choice of varieties. The standard catalogues, and even the descriptions of our own Nomenclature Committee recommend varieties especially adapted for landscape work or for cut blooms. Now the landscape architect wants large masses of color 100 or 200 plants of one variety planted together so that they may produce a magnificent effect of color from the house of his patron, who often does not know one sort from another. Cut blooms on the other hand, of the florist's ideal, are such as will ship from Chicago to New York without fading. The amateur is nowhere here. He grows only 50 to 100 plants, one of each kind, and wants them for his own delight and that of his friends. This amateur class is increasing all the time, as my correspondence shows; and I think it would be good policy on the part of the nurseryman to cater directly to it. The amateur does not care much about durability, but he wants exquisiteness on quality, and he wants variety in his varieties. There are many kinds that I could name which are peculiarly for the amateur, varieties such as the semidouble LaRosiere, the single Albiflora, The Bride, that strikingly decorative little flower Philomèle; some of the best of the Japanese kinds. These represent the kind of thing out of which by expanding the list the nurseryman might make a separate class through which a direct and special attempt could be made to reach the preferences of the amateur grower. Nor would I exclude from this class those superb sorts which we all agree to admire, Thérèse, Mme. Emile Gallé, Gloire de Charles Gombault, Duchesse de Nemours (Calot), Carnea elegans (Calot) M. Martin Cahuzac, and many others of like excellence.

The officers of the Society elected for the coming year are: President, B. H. Farr, Reading, Pa.; vice-president, E. B. George, Painesville, Ohio; treasurer, J. H. Humphreys, Chestnut Hill, Pa.; secretary, Prof. A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y.

C. S. Harrison of York, Neb., and Leon D. Batcheler were elected to honorary membership in recognition of their services to peony culture in America.

No definite action was taken on the meeting place for next year. Cleveland and Chicago were both discussed ence in the season between Mr. Havemeyer's locality and that of Ithaca, many varieties were too far advanced to do the collection justice.

There is to be a permanent planting at Cornell of a representative collection of three plants of every variety included in the bulletins of the nomenclature committee. This planting is already partly completed, and will be brought to a close by the end of the present season. As the work of description and identification is now completed, it is not necessary to retain the whole plot any longer. The main part is to be sold as a whole, and the question of its disposal was taken up at length in the sessions of the Society. As to the smaller collections planted alongside the main plot, the original donors having consented to the plan, these are to be listed and offered for sale separately. The funds obtained from these sales are to be devoted to the publication of an illustrated Peony Manual made up from the bulletins already published and with a good deal of new material, giving accurate descriptions of all the standard varieties, cultural directions and much other material indispensable to peony growers. A special committee on publication was appointed con-have been published, with such revisions and corrections as is necessary to form a complete book of the peony which shall be the official peony catalogue or manual of the society. This work should be so carefully compiled as to become the standard book of reference on the peony, a book which would doubtless be in demand to such an extent that its sale would eventually cover the cost of its publication.

Arguing for greater efforts to bring the merits of the peony more strongly before the general public and to increase the amateur membership, he recommended that the society's exhibitions in the future should be held at points where the largest number of people can have opportunity to view them. He applauded the course of some of the big seed houses in the largest cities which have made a feature of having a large peony show during the season, sending out a large number of invitations in addition to advertising this display with the result that thousands of visitors have been attracted and sales of roots have been greatly increased. He also advocated the establishing of large collections of plants of the best varieties in public parks in the larger cities where they could be under the care and the matter was finally left in the hands of a special committee.

Before the adjournment of the meetings resolutions were passed acknowledging the obligation of the Society to Cornell University, and particularly to Prof. Beal, who had contributed largely to the success of the exhibition and meetings.

S. A. F. CONVENTION SPORTS.

The prize list for coming sporting events to be held in connection with the convention at Chicago in August is now being made. Will anyone willing to donate a prize, kindly let us know. We would like to make this the biggest and best bowling, shooting and outing ever held in connection with the annual meeting of the S. A. F. and O. H.

Yours for prizes,

C. J. GRAHAM,

Chairman Sports Com, S. A. F. & O. H.

CHICAGO'S BALMY CLIMATE.

Chicago is known far and wide as an all-the-year-round resort, mild in winter and cool during the summer months. The expansive waters of Lake Michigan render the temperature enjoyable at all times, and the peculiar ozone is rejuvenating as well as bracing, making the old young again and the youthful irresistible. There is a tradition, which can be substantiated only by the mermaids of the Chicago river, of one very hot day in Chicago, viz., July 4, 1776, and the descendants of those who survived that day are not to be found hereabouts, so that it will be impossible to verify this statement when you come here next August to the convention. It will be easy, however, to prove the accuracy of the appended figures giving the normal August temperature of Chicago and other leading cities supplied by the United States Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C., as follows:

Chicago, 71.2; New York, 72.2; Pittsburgh, Pa., 72.5; Philadelphia, Pa., 73.8; Washington, D. C., 74.5; Baltimore, Md., 74.7; Cincinnati, O., 75.5; St. Louis, Mo., 77.2.

MICHAEL BARKER, Chairman.

Press and Advertising Committee.

Might as well add Boston as one of the "other leading cities," normal August temperature, 68.9.—Ed.

The summer meeting of the Executive Committee of the National Association of Gardeners will be held at Horticultural Hall, Boston, Mass., on Saturday afternoon, July 13th, 1912. Notice of the hour of the meeting will be posted in the hall during the forenoon of that day. William Sim, president of the National Sweet Pea Society of America, has extended an invitation to all members of the National Association of Gardeners to attend the Sweet Pea Exhibition, which will occur on the same day and to participate in the general program that is being arranged for the members of the Sweet Pea Society. Present indications are that a large attendance of National Association members will be on hand, many of them as competitors for the liberal prizes which are being offered by the Sweet Pea Society at their annual exhibition.

M. C. EBEL, Secretary.

CHICAGO NOTES.

Wedding Bells.

A wedding in the Bassett-Washburn family is getting to be an annual event. This time it is C. L. Washburn, last year it was O. P. Bassett and two years ago it was C. B. Washburn, thus representing three generations of florists in three years. Chas. L. Washburn and Helen Van Aken were married June 29 at the home of the bride's parents in Hinsdale, Ill., only relatives and immediate friends being present. The house was beautifully decorated with American Beauty and Mrs. Ward roses by Samuelson, and the bride's bouquet was lily of the valley and white orchids. The bride was attended by Miss Louise Washburn, sister of the groom, and E. B. Washburn, son of the groom, was best man. The happy couple left for a trip round the lakes in the Northland and will be gone about three weeks. C. L. Washburn is one of Chicago's best known and highly respected wholesalers and though he stole a march on his friends they will nevertheless give him hearty congratulations.

Trade Notes.

July 1st, all the wholesale stores began their summer schedule, opening at 7.15 and closing at 5.

Practically everything now in blooming plants is out of the market and the Boston fern family reign supreme as store and window plants.

The bowlers and baseball enthusiasts are not letting the moments slip away and if Chicago does not do herself credit at Convention time it will not be for lack of practice. All the various committees are hard at work and everything is moving in a satisfactory manner conventionward.

The first annual meeting of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association is to take place in the near future and the books are in the auditor's hands in preparation for that event. Members of the board of directors are wearing a smile which augurs well for the announcement expected at the meeting. A fine quality of Butterfly sweet peas, out-door grown, were seen here. The stems were longer and blooms firmer than of those from in-door stock.

At J. A. Budlong's shipping trade starts in for July without slackening up and the usual force are apparently as busy as ever. The excellent quality of their stock is keeping up, notwithstanding warm weather.

The Chicago Carnation Co. are showing White Enchantress carnations almost the equal of those cut in the winter. Their Rubra Superba peonies are nearly all cut and the big brilliant flower will be missed.

With the coming of warm weather the florists' window decorations are in many instances giving way to less brilliant tones and the suggested coolness of the green and white, especially when accompanied by running water, is very refreshing to the passerby. Outside of the trade, Lyon & Healy had a remarkably realistic woodland scene in a 25 ft. window.

Personal.

Miss M. Zalud of J. Mangel's, left Saturday for a vacation trip, including a visit to Starved Rock, Ill.

August Jurgens, Jr., has succeeded

Miss Robertson as assistant bookkeeper for the Chicago Flower Growers' Association.

Last week's notice should have read Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Bruns and two children left for Germany where they will spend the summer.

Miss Lilian Yetterberg, cashier at A. Lange's, is on a six-weeks' vacation at Bethany Beach, Mich. H. Stone, head designer at the same store, is also taking a vacation while Mrs. Mailander has gone to pass the summer at Circle, Montana.

Visitors—A. C. Brown, Springfield, Ill.; B. Loveridge, Peoria, Ill.; A. H. Burt, Kankakee, Ill.; H. Buckbee, Rockford, Ill.; M. Freyling, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. L. Buckendorf, Norfolk, Nebraska.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

The Washington Florists' Company are now located in their new quarters at 1408 H street, N. W. There are two large doorways in the front between which is the large show window, and on either side the walls are covered with plate glass mirrors separated by tall columns. At the one side is the ice room and below this is the shipping and bundle counter; on the other, the office section and the make-up bench. Here we come to the steps that lead to the basement and the short flight to the palm room which adds so to the fine appearance to the store, and in back of this is the stock room. In the basement is a large space into which their automobiles can be driven and loaded and unloaded.

W. R. Smith still continues to fight against the malady with which he is stricken, with the spirit and fortitude that he has shown for the past year. Early on Sunday morning last he was stricken with a fainting spell but even this he overcame.

Peter Reinberg, of Chicago, Ill., was in Baltimore last week attending the Democratic Convention, to which he was a delegate, and met many of the Washington boys who dropped over for a day or so.

PERSONAL.

P. Welch and family of Boston have gone to Old Orchard, Me., for the summer.

We are glad to report N. F. McCarthy as well along on the road to complete recovery at the Charlesbank Hospital, Boston.

Boddington's Gigantic Pansies

Can be produced only from the giant strains. Our CHALLENGE PANSY seed contains only the giant self-colors, the giant striped and variegated and the giant blotched, etc., all carefully mixed in proportion. You could not buy better seed if you paid $100 per ounce. Our Challenge Pansy seed during the past season gave unprecedented satisfaction, and every order booked last year was duplicated and increased this year. All the testimonials received mentioned specially the high grade of flowers—color, form and size of the individual blossoms. This year, by adding improved types, intending customers can absolutely rely on a duplication of this season's success with increased satisfaction. Our "mark" for this strain is "Challenge," and it is all the word denotes.

Pansy—Boddington's "Challenge"—All Giants.

This mixture contains all the finest Giant strains—of the leading Pansy Specialists in the world—the Giant self-colors, the Giant striped and margined, and the Giant blotched, etc., all carefully mixed in proportion—the finest that money can buy—the finest your money can buy. A florist who has grown it said: "Why don't you call it Defiance."

Seed Trade

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

An abridged account of the first and second day's proceedings appeared in our issue of last week. On Wednesday morning, June 26, papers were read by L. S. Gould of Waterloo, Neb., on Seed Corn Breeding, Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, on Costs and Cost Systems. After discussion a special committee on "Overhead Costs" was named to report later.

On Thursday morning the following resolutions were reported:

Resolved, That this Association endorses the Bill H. R. 22340, entitled: "An Act to Regulate Foreign Commerce by Prohibiting the Admission into the United States of Certain Adulterated Seeds and Seeds Unit for Seeding Purposes," now pending in the Senate of the United States, in the form as passed by the House of Representatives of April 15th, 1912;

Resolved further, That this Association is opposed to Section Four (4), the proposed Senate Amendment to said Bill, to impose heavy fines and imprisonment, for, among others, the following reasons:

First: The bill provides ample authority (Section one) for the Secretaries of the Treasury and of Agriculture effectively to prevent the importation of objectionable seeds;

Second: Said penalties are consequently wholly unnecessary. They are liable to impose excessive punishment on importers who are innocent of any international violation of the statute because variations in analyses are quite possible though using the greatest care, and because the importer cannot determine that the bulk corresponds with the purchasing sample, and thereby complies with the law, until the importation has been actually accomplished.

And resolve further, That the Secretary of this Association transmit a copy of these resolutions to the President of the Senate.

The Bourne Parcels Post Bill Senate 6850, which has been quite fully commented upon in some of our previous issues, came up for its share of attention on the part of the convention and was thoroughly discussed by various members. At the close of the discussion the following resolution recommended for passage by the Committee on Postal Laws was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we, the members of the American Seed Trade Association in convention assembled representing practically all of the seedsmen of the United States, desire to renew our appeal to Congress for a genuine system of Parcels Post founded on the plans and principles of the Postal Progress League; further

Resolved, That we oppose any temporary substitute and shall deplore the enactment of such portions of the Bourne Bill (Senate 6850) as cater to the interests of any class or attempt to substitute temporary expedients for real reform. We object to any provision which sets aside that fundamental and world-wide principle of the postal service which provides for uniformity of rate without regard to distance; also

Resolved, That we object to the increase of any postage rates for any reason unless it can be demonstrated that the traffic cannot be carried without loss. We appeal to the good judgment of Congress to listen to this demand of the people which cannot much longer be denied.

An interesting paper was read by Mr. Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass., counsel of the association on the subject of "Recent Decisions on the Seed Trade Disclaimer," in which he contradistinguished English and American decisions on this subject. The paper though necessarily of a technical character was presented in an interesting and intelligible manner and those present found it exceedingly interesting.

Crop reports by letter and wire were received from divers sections of the country and were read by Secretary Kendel. This feature of the annual meeting is growing, and the reports are increasing yearly in numbers and in interest. The importance of this feature of the association's work is fully realized by the membership, but because of the fact that at the present time other agencies are doing considerable work along this line the special committee appointed to consider the advisability of establishing a crop reporting bureau reported adversely to taking any action in that direction at this time.

Arthur B. Clark, of Milford, Conn., read an interesting paper entitled "Opportunities for a Young Man in the Seed Business," for which on motion of Secretary Kendel he was tendered a unanimous vote of thanks.

Albert McCullough, delegate to the National Board of Trade, presented his report on the meeting held at Washington, D. C., Jan. 16, 17, 18, 1912.

Election of officers resulted as follows: Charles N. Page, Des Moines, Ia., president; Harry L. Holmes, Harrisburg, Pa., first vice-president; Arthur B. Clark, Milford, Conn., second vice-president; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., secretary-treasurer; J. H. Ford, assistant secretary; Albert McCullough, Arthur B. Clark, J. C. Robinson, membership committee; Leonard H. Vaughan, Kirby B. White, Chas. D. Boyles, C. N. Keeney, W. D. Ross, executive committee.

One of the always pleasant incidents of the annual conventions is the presentation to the retiring president. The convention appreciated the fact that President Vaughan has proven an excellent administrative and presiding officer and that much of the success of the convention was due to his untiring efforts, and so as soon as the election was over the next proceeding was to present to the retiring president a handsome cathedral chime clock, the speech being made by Kirby B. White in characteristic, witty and eloquent words. An appreciative response was made by Mr. Vaughan.

After the officers had been installed a rising vote of thanks to the Chicago seedsmen was carried by unanimous vote.

Thus closed one of the most successful and perhaps the best attended of all the conventions in the history of the association, which was not marred by a single untoward incident, which not only reflected the greatest credit upon the Chicago seedsmen for its efficient management and for the lavish entertainment extended by them. During the past year the largest accession of new membership was received of any of the later years in the association's history.

Exhibitors.

The MacFarland Publicity Service, Harrisburg, Pa., showed a line of their specialties and were represented by Jefferson Thomas and O. P. Beckley. Mr. Thomas gave a talk on business matters before the convention during one of the discussions.

Annual Banquet.

At 8 o'clock P. M., Wednesday, June 26, in the Hotel Sherman, an elaborate banquet was laid at which some two hundred and fifteen guests were seated as at the afternoon luncheon. At the head table were seated Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dickinson, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard H. Vaughan, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Green, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Stokes, Albert McCullough, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Vaughan, Charles N. Page, President-Elect W. H. Grenell, H. W. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Watson S. Woodruff, J. C. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Page and S. F. Leonard, all of the gentlemen named being Past Presidents except Messrs. Albert Dickinson and S. F. Leonard. Walter P. Stokes of Philadelphia acted as toastmaster.

The list of speakers included Henry C. Barlow of the Chicago Association of Commerce, Albert McCullough of Cincinnati, president of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association; J. C. Vaughan of Chicago; Lester L. Morse of San Francisco; Charles D. Boyles, Chicago; H. W. Wood, Richmond, Va.; A. Bryan Clark, Milford, Conn.; Theodore Cobb, Detroit; L. L. May, St. Paul, Minn.; E. L. Page, Greene, N. Y.

The exercises of the evening closed with a standing vote of appreciation for the magnificent hospitality of the Chicago hosts. The company thereupon rose and drank a toast to the Chicago seedsmen, and the toastmaster rang down the curtain on a most pleasurable and enjoyable function.

Resolutions on Death of Jerome B. Rice.

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God in His infinite wisdom to summon to his great reward our friend and colleague, Lieut. Jerome B. Rice, and

Whereas, It is fitting that we, who for so many years have been associated with him and have enjoyed the inestimable boon of his friendship, do suitably express our sorrow, be it therefore,

Resolved, That in the death of Lieut. Jerome Bonaparte Rice the American Seed Trade Association has sustained the loss of a member second to none in enterprise, in ability, in integrity and in honor.

Resolved, That each individual member of the Association mourns the loss of a personal friend, whose loyalty was unquestioned, whose friendship was constant, whose willingness to befriend was limited only by the recipient's necessities.

Resolved, That the fortitude and patience displayed by this veteran of history's most terrible conflict, the American Civil War, permanently afflicted by a ma-

Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association.

Simultaneously with the convention of the American Seed Trade Association at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, Ill., June 25-27, 1912, there was held a meeting of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association, at which routine business was transacted and officers elected. The following new members were elected: W. A. Simpson & Company, Baltimore, Md.; S. M. Isbell & Company, Jackson, Mich., and L. Teweles & Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

Officers elected were: President, A. E. Reynolds, Crawfordsville, Ind.; vice-president, Charles D. Boyles, Chicago, Ill.; secretary-treasurer, William G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md.; directors for term expiring 1915, D. I. Bushnell, St. Louis, Mo.; J. Charles McCullough, Cincinnati, O.; C. C. Massie, Minneapolis, Minn.

As many of the members of this association are also members of the American Seed Trade Association it was decided to hold the annual meeting in 1913 during the same week and at the same place with 31st annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association; but in order to avoid confusion between the two meetings it was decided by the board of directors of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association that they would hold their 1913 meeting one day in advance of the A. S. T. A. Measures were taken looking toward the establishment of a board of arbitration. This matter was referred to the board of directors, and is expected to be productive of excellent results.

MICHELL'S PANSY SEEDS

Chestnut Hill, Pa., May 25, 1912.
To prove quality to myself I have been making tests of various sowings of Pansy seed bought from different firms in this country and in England. Am pleased to be able to say, "Your Giant Exhibition Strain of Pansy is by far the best." They are simply magnificent in color and size and have a good long stem. They are far ahead of any other. Thinking this might interest you, I am penning these lines.

Yours very truly,
STEPHEN AGER.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON The inevitable midsummer dullness struck this market on regulation time July 1, and since then there has been very little doing. Roses of high grade are getting scarce and will be more so. Sweet peas are over-plentiful from out-door sources. Lilies are too numerous and there are enough cattleyas to fill all demands as the regular summer shipping trade has not yet started in. Carnations are not much called for. They sell very low although asters have not yet begun to come to this market. Peonies are finished up.

BUFFALO The days of the sweet graduate have past and the ending of June recorded a great number of weddings. During the month past there was no extreme shortage of the bridal flowers. The early part of the past week was a busy one for all but on Friday and Saturday business was not up to expectations. There were heavy receipts of peonies early in the week which caused carnations and other flowers to drop back a notch. Out-door sweet peas have come on so heavy that 10c. a bunch is the retail price advertised in the shop windows, together with carnations at a sacrifice price. There is a good supply of roses of all kinds including Beauties which are good and prices are reasonable. Gardenias are plentiful and no call; lily of the valley fine and has sold well; lilies also good and demand increased. Floral work was heavy in certain sections of the city caused by the fatal disaster which happened at a nearby summer resort in which some thirty-five lives were lost. The principal talk now is where is the picnic and where are you to spend your vacation.

The month of June kept CHICAGO up its record for good sales till the last, closing with genuine summer weather which did not in the least interfere with trade. The first day of July found local sales very slow though the shipping trade held good and there was plenty of scurrying round after first-class stock. There is no scarcity along any line but there is only a limited supply of really good carnations, roses or peonies. Some fine carnations are to be had for the season but each week the supply is less and there are more good white ones this week than colored. Of peonies the poor ones far outnumber the good also but there are enough first-class ones to go around. The really good peonies sell for fifty cents per dozen while the others sell all the way down to five cents per dozen. Asparagus sprays are more abundant than can be used while smilax continues scarce.

June proved to be a very good month in a business way. The commencement demand locally fell off somewhat but this loss was more than offset by the heavy shipping. The call for flowers and accessories for the blushing June brides held its own. This was especially true at the close of the month. The opening of the strictly summer months shows a fair supply of roses of all kinds, including Beauties. All have been selling nicely, especially the last named. More carnations arrive than can be readily utilized. The lily market seems to be in better shape than at the last writing. Gladioli and asters sell well. Lily of the valley has been cleaning up. Shasta daisies, however, are not among the good sellers. They are not as popular this year as they were other years at this time. Ferns are enjoying a good call.

PHILADELPHIA Market conditions here are about as good as could be expected for this season of the year. The only feature that differs is the better quality of the flowers offered. This gratifying condition does not seem to affect trade nor prices in the least. The crop of American Beauty roses fell off slightly and the offerings of these were as a rule fairly well marketed, but all other roses were in over supply. The quality of all roses is good as compared with carnations. The latter were distinctly in the discard—and good asters were generally preferred. A dull and featureless market characterizes all other stocks. Tremendous glut of sweet peas, with much poor stock—soft, flabby—very few bright, hard flowers with substance. Market much too long on all kinds of greens.

ST. LOUIS The week just passed was a good one, in fact for the whole month of June fine business was reported from all parts of the city. Summer dullness will prevail from now on. Stock as seen at the different wholesale houses during the past week is of extra good quality, roses and carnations holding up well. Outdoor peas and gladioli are now in, also a large lot of outdoor cut roses. These are expected to fill up our market for the next month and then the big cut of asters will come along. The large number of weddings has daily cleaned up the supply of lily of the valley. Adiantum asparagus and smilax sold well all week.

Detroit—Locally we have had a very brisk demand for cut flowers, particularly for bridal bouquets. Even though there was a strong steady demand during the week the accumulation in the wholesale houses was enormous and worst of all fared the Liliun longiflorum.

Washington—Business during the past week has been about the same as previously reported. There is plenty of stock, most of which is poor, although some of it shows signs of improvement, but there is not enough demand to clear it all off at profitable prices. The heat followed by so much rainy and dark weather has raised havoc with the foliage of roses making it very rusty looking.

NEW YORK NOTES.

Richard Vincent, Jr., and wife arrived from Europe on the 30th ulto.

G. V. Nash of the Botanical Gardens, Bronx, is taking his vacation at Spokane.

Arthur T. Boddington will be represented at Asbury Park show by Herbert B. Buck.

Condon of Brooklyn did the planting at Brighton Beach this season and it does him no little credit.

Harry A. Bunyard attends the meeting of the Sweet Pea Society executive committee at Boston on the 6th inst.

W. H. Waite is again in charge of Greystone, the fine estate of Samuel Untermyer at Yonkers. For the past two years Mr. Waite has been in Chicago.

At the B. Soltan Fernery, Jersey City, the seedlings (about 5000 boxes) are coming on apace. Apart from the ferns, Kentias, Phoenix Roebelenii and Asparagus plumosus nanus form quite a big item in this nursery.

Anton Schultheis of College Point is breaking up a goodly area of fresh ground which will soon be under cultivation—maiden soil of first rate quality with natural drainage, which should give him fine results. This with an addition of two new greenhouses indicates a flourishing state of business.

The Bloodgood Department of the American Nursery Co. has most of their new land comprising over 100 acres, now in good trim. This addition is planted mostly with shade and ornamental trees. This company has now in the neighborhood of 500 acres under cultivation and additional plantings going in each season.

Swarthmore, Pa.—The greenhouses of J. L. Day have been purchased by Schilder & Lefebvre.

A NEW VOLUME

Vol. 16 of HORTICULTURE begins with this issue and now is the time to subscribe. If you are not already on our subscription list, send $1.00 for the coming year, or 50 cents to January 1, 1913.

We do not need to dilate on HORTICULTURE'S worth. It's contents are sufficient evidence. The recognition it is constantly receiving in new subscribers shows the strong hold it has gained in the esteem and good will of the horticultural profession.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

Orders for the Peerless Brown magnolia leaves as supplied by Rice are coming in thick and fast—even in the dull season. We are kind of sorry for ourselves for being in the grass seed business at present!

DeForrest Ludwig, of Pittsburgh, who has just graduated from Cornell University, was a visitor last week at the "House of Rice," and was entertained by Bernard Eschner at his home in Elkins Park.

A new recruit in the ever-increasing growers' list is William F. Taubel, Riverside, N. J. He is erecting two houses and will grow carnations, lily of the valley and similar subjects. James Kenney is the superintendent. We wish we were able to chronicle from week to week as many new agencies for distribution as for production. On the contrary our sad task is always to announce a few more retail outlets closed up. The crying evil of the day too much production and not enough distribution. The latter is by far the most difficult problem. Yet most growers are fatuous enough to ignore this first and foremost factor to their success entirely.

The presence in town of Hugh Dickson on his return from his visit to California was taken advantage of by a party of his Philadelphia friends to extend a little entertainment, which took the form of an auto ride to various points of interest, including Wis-sahickon Drive, Wescott's green-houses, Fairmount Park, Cortside Inn, The Wannamaker, Newbold and Widener estates and Wyndmoor. John Burton and George Burton provided the autos and the other members of the party were Hugh Dickson, A. B. Scott, George C. Watson, S. S. Pen-nock, Robert Kift and John Westcott. It was a delightful affair. Mr. Dickson sails for England on July 6.

Visitors: John Wolf, Savannah, Ga., accompanied by his son (on re-turn from European trip); J. L. Whipp, sec. and treas. Mills, the Flor-ist, Inc., Jacksonville, Fla.; Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa.; N. J. Hagman, Hagman Greenhouse Co., Clarksburg, W. Va.; H. L. Holmes, Harrisburg, Pa.; Hugh Dickson, Belfast, Ireland; W. F. Fancourt, Farm School, Pa.; John A. Cook, Beverly, N. J.; E. W. Kohr, Lancaster, Pa.; Jacob H. Weaver, Witmer, Pa.

On Tuesday, July 2, occurred the great annual summer outing of the New York Florists' Club. The weather was superb, the crowd large and en-thusiastic, the competition for the prizes offered in the various games vigorous, and the committee deserves

Bring Back the Birds

While you are working out your ideal in the garden, why not provide a home for the birds that help to make life in the country really worth while? A rustic house placed in a tree or on a pole will make an excellent home for the birds and add to the attractive-ness of the surroundings. We have them in all sizes and shapes to suit any style of archi-tecture.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The sweet pea show of the Penna. Horticultural Society on Tuesday afternoon, July 2, was a good one, notwithstanding that many of the important exhibitors confined their attentions to the show at Asbury Park. Particulars later.

The St. Louis Florist Club will hold its regular monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon, July 11th, when the nomination of officers will take place. Secretary Beneke says that the competition for the presidency will be large and as there is perfect harmony no bolt is expected after the nomination.

At the monthly meeting of the Florists' Club of Phila. on Tuesday evening, July 2, Robert Pyle gave an interesting lecture on roses, illustrated with stereopticon slides, at the club rooms. Many ladies were present. John Westcott was appointed chairman of transportation committee and George C. Watson of hotel committee for the trip to Chicago in August.

FIRE RECORD.

Bristol, R. I.—The greenhouse of Thomas Brightman was damaged by fire on May 29.

Cotuit, Mass.—Fire destroyed the boiler house and office of the Cotuit Greenhouse on June 21. The adjoining greenhouses were somewhat damaged.

Chicago, Ill.—The upper floor of the building occupied by Paul Bloome & Co., 1361 North Clark street, was destroyed by fire on June 23. The lower floors were damaged by water. The damage is stated to be fully covered by insurance.

Holliston, Mass.—The establishment of the Eastern Nurseries here was almost completely wiped out by a fire which started in the barn on Sunday afternoon, June 30, and spread with great rapidity, consuming barn, dwelling house, two greenhouses and contents, frames, etc., and ruined stock in the field for a long distance. Among the plants destroyed were many valuable and new things of much intrinsic value. Harry Dawson, the manager, who was on his wedding trip, was called home by telegraph. Much sympathy is felt for the proprietors. The amount of loss is in the vicinity of $20,000. Insurance covered the buildings only. George Petfield, the gardener, who occupied the dwelling house, had only time to save his wife and children from the flames and lost all his belongings, including his library.

NEWS NOTES.

Rockford, Ill.—Leake & Offord have purchased the Dempsey greenhouse, 1010 Corbet street.

Grand Rapids, Wis.—The greenhouses of W. L. Scott have been rented by Wm. Giebels.

Allentown, Pa.—Ernest Ashley, florist and seedsman, has moved to his new greenhouses on the East Side.

SEEING how attractive and practical this arrangement is, do you wonder why THE LUTTON PATENT CURVED EAVE method has changed Greenhouse Construction during the past few years? The result has been the most successful house that can be produced; the other concerns who had been producing the same antiquated buildings for years had to simply destroy their patterns as well as their catalogues and start anew. Just ask some of our imitators to show you some of their curved eave houses built before THE LUTTON PATENT was granted; you will then be convinced that you had better consult with me.

GERANIUMS

VINCENT and GERANIUMS GERANIUMS and VINCENT

Are two names that have become so intrinsically linked together in the minds of a great majority of the Florists, that to think of one is to think of the other, and the reason for this is that they have learned by actual experience that it is to their advantage for them to secure their raw material from a specialist in that line, the same as other manufacturers do, rather than to go to the expense of carrying a lot of surplus stock of their own. It is our business to produce the raw material in the shape of 2 inch stock, so that the finisher can get what he wants when he has the room and is ready for it.

Last season we had to disappoint a great many of our customers, who failed to get their order in on time, and although we have doubled our stock this year, we would suggest that you place your order early.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Hydrangeas

Young hydrangeas that you are growing under continuous pot culture should have very strict attention as to watering as they dry out very soon this weather. They should be shifted as the pots become filled with roots, and never allowed to become potbound until their flowering size is reached. It is better to have them in 6 and 8-inch pots for forcing. These plants are great feeders. A fibrous loam, two parts, well decayed cow manure, one part, and a good sprinkling of bone meal will make a mixture to their liking. The pots should be plunged outside up to the rims in a good sunny place where they can make abundance of flowering wood. They should always have water in great abundance during the summer or they are bound to receive a check that will tell later on. The principal point to attain in their culture is to get a strong growth during the summer, and, when the fall comes, to get the wood well ripened by withholding the water supply; the cool nights and bright sun are the other aids that make fine flowering wood. Turn the pots around every couple of weeks to let sun reach every side of your plants.

Care of Cypripediums

Now is the time that all of these orchids will require great care. Where you are crowded inside or want to give your house a good cleaning empty frames can be utilized to advantage. First place a good layer of coal ashes which will give the plants a nice cool bottom to stand on. Here they will have an ideal location where they will be close to the glass and can have all the ventilation that they will need. On all bright days give them a good syringing both under and over the plants. Where you are sure that your plants have made lots of roots they would be better for some weak cow manure once a week. Keep a sharp outlook for thrips otherwise they will soon disfigure and check your cypripediums. Go over them often and dip and sponge with tobacco water or some good insecticide. Do not shade too heavily. There is nothing to beat either lath or cloth shading as it can be removed when the sun's rays will be an advantage and on dull days.

Hollyhocks

Do not forget to start a liberal lot of these stately plants; both the single and double varieties are good. Sowing now, you will have fine stock by the fall. It is always well to procure the best strains in colors of white, pink, crimson and yellow. Sow the seed in a cold frame where you can give them shade and water until they have germinated. When they have made sufficient growth they can be transplanted into other cold frames where they can have some winter protection during the severest weather. Give them a spray about every two weeks with ammoniacal solution as a preventive from disease. Every florist should grow a good lot of these as they come in handy for many purposes such as for hiding any untidy places, for the back ground of small growing perennials or to break up the formal lines where shrubbery is planted.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following. Calceolarias; Care of Nephrolepis; Pansies; Winter Fl. Ferns; P. S. C. for Pans; Orchids; Schizanthus.

Asparagus Sprengeri

Do not fail to plant quite a batch of this popular green for it always comes in very useful. It is not very fussy about having a very light house but likes solid beds rather than benches and can be planted in the narrow bench that runs along the front or the rear of any of your houses. It also does well when grown in baskets or raised receptacles. It makes such big and fleshy roots that it soon exhausts the soil so give it a rich compost to grow in—say to two parts of fibrous loam use one of well-rotted manure and a good sprinkling of bone meal and it will respond with a generous cut of green. A foot apart each way will give them enough of room to grow good. While they like plenty of water at the roots they should not be overwatered while in their young state, but when they begin to make lots of roots they will take plenty of it. Give plenty of moisture in the atmosphere with a free circulation of air. In the fall when they have made plenty of roots they should have manure water once a week.

Lilies for the Fall

Those who conduct quite a retail trade will always find many uses for lilies that come in the fall. A few hundred of cold storage Lilium speciosum rubrum and longiflorum started now will come in very handy when other flowering stock is becoming very short. They will do well in a compost used for roses or carnations. See that proper drainage is provided for each pot. You can use either 6 or 7-inch pots. It is always better two or three days before you intend to pot them to turn the soil over and moisten it nicely; they require less water until they start when this plan is followed. They should be placed in as cool a place as you have, so as to develop good root action before the tops begin to start. Where you have a cool cellar there is no better place for them; if this is not at hand a cold frame will do. When they show growth they should be brought in and placed on a bench in a light and airy house where they can have water and attention.

Repairing and Outside Painting

Now is a good time to look all over your houses and do any repairing that may be necessary such as putting in sashbars where they are rotting out. Go over all the ventilators and see that they are rightly adjusted and give them a good oiling and painting. Where the putty is in very bad condition it will be more profitable to take it all out and repaint all the sashbars and reset the glass with new putty. There is no better season for all this work than the next six weeks as the weather is such that a few hours exposure to the bright sun will leave the paint and putty in a complete dry state. Every grower whether large or small should make time enough to do all this kind of work now when the weather is so congenial. Do not be one of those who neglect their houses until it is too late to do anything in this line, but make every preparation now so as not to have your houses leaky or draughty when the cold weather sets in.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

George H. Penson

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Penson. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Crowded Bunches

It is not an uncommon thing at this season to find a few bunches crowded in spite of two severe thinnings. Late varieties, which will now be about half swelled, are often deceiving. The size of the berries found in some bunches of Gros Colman, Gros Maroc, Black Alicante and Madresfield Court are sometimes not given sufficient space in which to fully extend themselves. Madresfield Court may not be amongst these in this stage at the present time as it is generally used as a second early variety, but at times she is liable to want more room so can be classed with them for the occasion. Where bunches are crowded to such an extent as to be deforming the berries it will be well to remove a few more berries or they will easily crack later and spoil the bunch. A berry will make a large hole in a bunch at this stage so none should be removed without due consideration. Select for removal those which have a near neighbor which can be pushed down a little into its place to fill up the gap. There will be no harm done in taking out a few berries until such time as the color shows in them. After this every mark shows on the berries. Swelling does not finish with the first color coming into the berries; not until they are near ripe is the full size attained.

A point to guard against when working amongst grapes during the hot weather is to see that you do not touch them with a perspiring hand, arm or face. This has the same effect on berries as boiling water would. The side which comes in contact instantly shrinks away as though it were scorched and if allowed to remain only the one-half would swell again. This is different from berries being burnt or scalded with the sun. In the latter case the whole berry will go black in time and drop off, but not so one affected with perspiration; this will not drop. A case of this kind was recently brought to my notice. In tying up a shoulder of Gros Colman a hand accidentally hit the bunch with a result as described above. This is most liable to occur where a bunch is below where one is working, when having to reach up to them the chances of making a disfigurement are less.

Syringing

An illustration of syringing with force and yet without injury to the plants has come under my notice this spring and summer. In previous years, frequent fumigations have been necessary to keep down green and black fly on melon plants. With the commencement of the present season a small nozzle or reducer was used on the hose while syringing. This reduced the stream down to one-quarter of an inch giving force which at the same time was easily controlled. This was concentrated on to any leaf or young growth effected with aphids and it cleared them out before getting a stronghold without the least damage to the foliage. This is worth a consideration. There is nothing in it to spread the stream; this is done with the finger and it can be directed at any angle. With this in continual use all plants have kept clean during the present season.

Peaches and Nectarines on the Spur System

The spur system of training is one which is seldom met with in growing peaches and nectarines. The advantages of the straight fan trained trees are so much superior to it one wonders why it is used at all. True, it is claimed surer flower bud formation results from the pinching process, yet with ordinary care no tree should be shy on flower buds. After having been used to seeing trees literally covered with flowers should we come across one tree with only twenty-five per cent of this mammoth show, at first sight we wonder if it will carry a crop. In the majority of cases, these trees carrying a minority of flower buds are the best to set. The percentage of fruits left on to finish is very small as compared to the number of flowers open. All growths can be stopped when fifteen to eighteen inches long, but to keep this up continually there is no benefit. The fruit found growing on the spurs are usually at such an angle that they are marked by pressing up against some other part of the tree, making it difficult to obtain a perfect fruit. Putting the matter of shape and beauty in its proper place, after productiveness, no peach or nectarine tree grown on the spur system looks so good as one that is not. Summing the whole matter up the spur system has really nothing to recommend it.

Vegetable Houses

Although we are now sweltering in a heat wave the time is not far distant when we must think about the winter vegetables. With most of the other planting done up, attention should be turned to preparing the vegetable house for the next season's work. Some "catch crop" may be occupying for a few weeks, but as it is only a catch crop it may be able to give way to repairs, etc. The annual coat of paint should be applied. This is where many greenhouses are neglected. Paint is an insurance itself, and where an annual coat is not possible every second year it should be made possible. There are benches to be looked over and repaired and where no repairing is needed these should have a good dressing with whitewash. This will not only help to preserve the wood but will act as a fungicide, killing the mycelium of any fungus that is waiting to develop next fall. This will be much more effective if applied when the lime is quite hot. The heating pipes—are they all in good repair? No time like the present for this kind of work.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Watering

This will now become important and houses that have already started should be watered with great care. This is especially true where all kinds of plants have been planted together. We make it a point to grade the plants a little so as to get uniformity in the bench if possible, setting the taller plants to the back and the shorter to the front. In watering a bench of mixed plants be careful and give each just the amount of water they require. A small weak plant will want only about half as much as a strong rapidly growing plant will. Another thing to watch out for is not to allow the plants to become too dry although they should always become fairly dry before watering again. If allowed to dry out too much they will become weak and spindling and will not be in condition to produce the required result next winter.

Roses growing in less than four inches of soil must be carefully watched during these hot summer days. These will dry out much more rapidly than plants in deeper soil and should be watered accordingly.

Red Spider

This if allowed to go unchecked will spread very rapidly at this time of the year. Syringe the plants as often as is advisable, being careful not to have them dry when syringing. Remember that summer is the time to clean out spider, if there is any anywhere. If a nest is allowed to remain here and there plenty of trouble can be expected during the fall months, when syringing cannot be done as often as now.

Roses Outside

Killarney, Kaiserin, Radiance and other roses growing outside will now be in bud for their second crop and should receive a good mulch of cow manure. A little bone meal will also be good for them. Keep them well watered and if possible spray frequently with a good solution of ivory soap and water. This will keep most bugs away, and should it not, then give them a little paris green or arsenate of lead. We would prefer the former, as arsenate of lead shows so much on the foliage. Keep the plants well disbudded if you expect real nice flowers from them. With a little care these plants should produce almost as good roses as those grown in the greenhouses. If all are planted as advocated in these columns some time ago, they can be handled very easily and if kept well mulched will require but little looking after.

Cleaning Up

With most of the houses planted, it is a good idea to give the place a good clean-up and thus start the new season with a clean place. Scrape out well underneath the benches in all the planted houses and fill in all holes in the walks with ashes or cinders. Where it is not too expensive, sand makes a very nice covering for all earth walks. Apply just enough to cover the surface nicely. Many will claim that this is too rough for the hose but we find ashes alone wear a hose as fast as anything.

Hose

This is something which costs our florists a great sum of money every year. There are a great many good makes of hose on the market and with a least bit of care a hose ought to last. If possible, have a hose for each walk. This may seem like expense at first, but will save money in the long run. If there is only one or two hose for the house and it has to be dragged around the corners, have the corners covered with some soft material. A good way is to cut a piece of hose open and then nail it to the corner. Instruct all help to avoid kinks forming, which wears out a hose quicker than anything else would.

An Adept in Fruit Growing

As an old fruit-grower, I have noted with considerable pleasure, from time to time, the notes on fruit culture under glass contributed by Mr. Geo. H. Penson to HORTICULTURE. Anyone who saw the exhibit staged at Asbury Park Show by Duke's Park, where Mr. A. A. MacDonald presides as superintendent and Mr. Penson is the fruit-grower, will appreciate the excellent culture that produced such phenomenal fruits as were exhibited.

Duke's Park was awarded five firsts in the five entries in the competitive section. I do not believe I ever saw finer grapes staged anywhere. They were certainly very far ahead of the grapes staged at the International Show in London last month. Conceding that we have a climate that ripens grapes and all fruits better than that of England, the fact still remains that these were magnificent specimens. Black Hamburg, Appley Towers, Foster's Seedling and Bucklands Sweetwater, were the varieties staged. Melons which were on an average of nine pounds each were also remarkable for their size and finish; Hero of Lockinge, Duke's Park Seedling, Royal Jubilee, His Eminence, were the best.

The peaches and nectarines also were simply marvelous, and all fruit exhibited from this estate was a lesson to the gardeners present.

A noteworthy occasion

Boston is rapidly "getting the habit" of welcoming distinguished visitors. This week we have the Sweet Pea Society and early in August the Park Superintendents will be with us. The terrible weather of the past week has been a bitter disappointment to those who have been planning to make this sweet pea affair the most notable of its kind in history. Worse conditions could hardly be possible and the exasperation is all the more acute because the entire season up till within a few days had been unusually favorable for sweet pea development. Nevertheless, there will be an astonishing turn-out and to those of our readers who have not started and who see these notes in time to reach Boston either Saturday or Sunday, we have no hesitancy in saying that the occasion will repay the time and effort. In fact, it will be an eye-opener.

Two lives well spent

Again our obituary columns are called upon to record the passing away of one universally looked up to as a conspicuous leader in his profession. John A. Pettigrew, whose death was recorded last week and William R. Smith, in their respective relationships to and influence on the profession and the public, must be counted as among the greatest men who have ever adorned American horticulture. The work of these two men is by no means closed with their departure from earthly scenes.

Such souls,

"Whose sudden visitations daze the world,
 Vanish like lightning, but they leave behind
 A voice that in the distance far away
 Wakens the slumbering ages."

Each, a master in his sphere, has planted, stimulated and brought into healthy vigor that which will through years to come exercise an inestimable influence for the cause of humanity. They have done their part in laying the foundation of our future horticultural development. The good of their fellow-men was their prime incentive and it is fitting that we should revere their memory in life-long gratitude for the benediction of their lives.

A reprehensible predilection

In our issue of March 9, 1912, we took occasion to call attention to some instances of "narrow-mindedness" on the part of certain correspondents of foreign horticultural journals who had scoffed at "American" rose growers on account of their alleged proneness to change rose names. Within the past month several similar flings have been given space in a leading English horticultural weekly. In this connection we recall an admonition in Holy Writ regarding people who were prone to be so concerned about the mote in their brother's eye that they overlooked the beam in their own. The immediate cause of the present outbreak seems to be the use of the name Mrs. Taft for a rose already known by two names—Antoine Rivoire and Prince de Bulgarie. Renaming of plants cannot be too strongly condemned, and we are heart and soul with any movement which seeks to put a stop to the practice. But these pedantic critics "across the pond" should bear in mind that charlatans are not an exclusive product of any country or race. One of the objects of the extensive trials by the Royal Horticultural Society in former years was to straighten out the confusion caused by renaming in Great Britain and the reports of that society are so full of synonyms that comparatively few standard varieties are without one or more. As to roses, all one has to do is to consult the catalogue of any big rose dealer to realize how much of this "faking" has been done, while it is common knowledge that with peonies, sweet peas and other things which might be mentioned, the mischief that has been perpetrated is simply monumental. These things being so, the continued deriding of "American cousins" for their failings in this respect cannot be accepted here as "a friendly protest" for it bears the stamp of something very different. If these gentlemen will come out openly over their own names instead of aliases and will help to inaugurate a broad-spirited, unbiased movement to wipe out at home and abroad the crying evils of renaming and substitution from which the whole horticultural world has been suffering so long they will find the American growers and dealers, the American societies and the American horticultural journals as ready to extend cordial sympathy and practical co-operation as any on the face of the earth.

WILLIAM R. SMITH

The impending blow which we have for several weeks realized must shortly come, has fallen. The great, manly heart of William R. Smith has ceased to beat, and horticulture has lost a friend indeed. The long illness from which Mr. Smith had been suffering terminated on Sunday morning, July 7, and he passed quietly away.

Mr. Smith was born at Athelstoneford, East Lothian, Scotland. After leaving school he worked in the gardens at Fantesy, the residence of the late Thomas Mitchell Innes, after which he served a regular two or three-year apprenticeship in the gardens of Lord Elstone, near Dunbar. After serving his apprenticeship he went to Arthrey Castle, Lord Abercromby's, near Stirling, as a journeyman, where he served 12 months. He afterwards worked for the Duke of Atholes at Dunkeld, and from there to Mount Melville Gardens, near St. Andrews. After serving 12 months there he got an appointment at the Royal Botanic Gardens at Kew, remaining there two years. He then secured a position at Peter Lawson & Sons' Nurseries at Edinburg, November, 1852, where he studied trees and conifers until nearly the end of January, 1853. He then left for America, sailing from Glasgow, January 28th. Going to Philadelphia, he entered Dundass's famous old place on Chestnut street, at that time the finest institution of its kind in the New World. From Dundass's Mr. Smith was called to Washington to take charge of the Botanic Gardens, which existed then in name only, having been since the time of George Washington little more than an unreclaimed swamp. The plants brought by Commodore Charles Wilkes from his arctic expedition in 1848 formed the nucleus of the Botanic Garden as they then existed. The swamp at that time had the River Tiber running through it, enabling Moore to say that what was "Goose Creek once is Tiber now." The filling up of this swamp by Mr. Smith not only enabled him to make of it a thing of beauty, but saved the National Capital its reputation and made of it a fairly healthy city. During the 60 years that have elapsed since, the 11 acres of garden have been Mr. Smith's uninterrupted care, and in addition he served for 20 years on the parking commission and was instrumental in the planting of over 100,000 shade trees in the avenues of Washington.

In 1862 Mr. Smith married and took his young wife to the quaint little colonial cottage in the heart of the garden, where for 15 years they lived in happiness together. Then she was stricken with an illness which destroyed her mind, and since that time she has been an inmate of a sanization serves, owe an enormous debt of gratitude. He was an enthusiastic member from its early days, served on its executive board and as president in 1893, and it was solely due to his indomitable, persistent efforts, extending over 11 years, that the coveted National Charter, passed by both houses of Congress and signed by President McKinley on March 5, 1901, became their prized possession. Up to the last his interest in the society and the welfare of its members never lagged. His passing takes away one more of the few representatives of a distinctive epoch in American horticulture remaining on its rolls. He rounded out a well-filled and useful life. The inevitable had to come, yet we shall mourn for him and grieve with an inconsolable grief as we realize that the kind old face and loved voice are gone from our meetings and councils forever. His like we shall never see again. Following are some testimonials from friends who have intimately known and esteemed Mr. Smith for many years:

From Hon. S. W. McCall.

It was a piece of great good fortune to anyone to have William R. Smith for a friend. He was a genuine Scotchman, and nearly sixty years of residence in a city like Washington, where he knew intimately three generations of the public men of America, did not tend to obscure any of his strong racial qualities, but served to broaden him and make of him a cosmopolitan Scotchman. His library contained one of the very finest collections that could be found anywhere of the works of Burns and he was a worshipper of that poet. He was a rare Burns scholar, and it was an inspiration to listen to his talks about the poet and to his apt quotations from him. His literary interest, however, was not wholly centered in the great poet of Scotland, but its breadth may be seen in the admiration which he had for Shakespeare.

Mr. Smith was really the creator of the National Botanic Garden, transforming an unsightly mire into the beautiful park covered with trees, shrubs and flowers which it is today. The relations of Senators and Representatives with the Superintendent of the Botanic Garden were almost as tarium and Mr. Smith has been alone with his plants, his books, his Burns library and his many friends, whom he dearly loved to have accept his hospitality.

Of towering stature—6 ft. 2 in. tall—lordly of mein, poetic of temperament, with a soul filled with the love of nature, W. R. Smith was a unique and impressive personality. He excelled in all the human sympathies as he did in his physical presence. Everyone felt proud in the friendship of this remarkable man; statesmen and children, plants and animals, all responded to his magnetic influence, and he loved them all.

To William R. Smith the Society of American Florists and the entire horticultural profession which that organ-intimate as with any other officer of the government. They were constantly seeking different varieties of shrubs and flowers for their constituents and for their own gardens and lawns. As a result of this association Mr. Smith, during his long service beginning six or eight years before the civil war, probably knew personally and well more of the public men of the country than any other man who has ever lived. And he knew not merely the public men but also their wives and children, who would naturally have an interest in the wonders of his garden. Next to talking with him about Burns, it was most interesting to listen to his reminiscences of the men who had served in the Cabinets, in Congress and even in the Presidency. He was devoted to his art and it is doubtful whether he ever had a superior as a practical horticulturist. The passing of this most interesting figure will inflict deep sorrow upon a very wide circle of friends.

S. W. McCALL.

Washington, D. C.

From John Burton.

The distinguishing trait of William R. Smith to my mind was his breadth of view and democratic spirit. This was particularly the case with those younger than himself to whom he always had the open hand and heart—giving freely of his wisdom and experience to all, and encouraging the humblest to do their best. I believe that spirit animated this great man's labors during all of the sixty years in which he graced his commanding position at the heart of things in the capitol of the American Commonwealth. We in the trade owe him an especial debt of gratitude, as he never swerved from his loyalty to our and his profession, notwithstanding the allurements of the high and mighty; but always stood shoulder to shoulder with us in progress—guided by commonsense and practicality.

JOHN BURTON.

From J. Otto Thilow.

William R. Smith, the embodiment of conscientious, untiring and indefatigable effort to advance everything that was worthy and for the advancement of mankind. He was as enthusiastic in combining horticulture with the refinement of humanity, as he was interested in the welfare of his brother-man.

Yea, there has gone from among us, one who was ripe in years, thought and deeds, who by hard dint, and ceaseless application, was desirous to bring the results of his labors worthy of the appreciation of his Maker.

J. OTTO THILOW.

From George C. Watson.

William R. Smith was the only man I ever met in my 28 years' sojourn in America in the seed business, who was able to put up against me an argument that would hold water in favor of free seeds. He put the free seed idea on highly altruistic grounds. According to W. R. Smith, seeds are merchandise of course; but they are also more than merchandise. They are the beginning of everything. So why should we boggle about a few cents when planting a seed in some far away corner of Texas or Wyoming charged to the general account. The whole country will eventually benefit, the seedsmen included. What's two hundred thousand dollars? You pay ten times that for one battleship—that will be scrap iron in probably five years and nothing to show for it. All of which was good talk. What I said in rebuttal has nothing to do with this story. All I want to say now is that I found one man, at least, who had nothing to do with the vote-catching proposition—who advocated free seeds with all his might, and justified himself in so doing on purely patriotic principles! No man will ever know the amount of good William R. Smith did in his lifetime. The number of people who called on him at the Botanic Gardens in Washington—even in one year—and carried away saplings and seedlings of new and rare and fine things, to the remotest corners of the continent—to radiate in every direction—was legion. All of which is silent and unchronicled in history; but will nevertheless be a potent factor in the glorious development of the days to come. So what must such an influence have been, when it extended over the long period of sixty years? Think of the influence of a man of this character, the friend and intimate of all the giants in American history for sixty years! Thank God for W. R. Smith.

GEORGE C. WATSON.

Memorial Resolutions Adopted by the Cincinnati Florists' Society.

At a meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society in regular session, news of the death of W. R. Smith of Washington, D. C., was received with feelings of deep regret. Words of praise were spoken concerning the noble stalwart life he has lived, the inspiration and help he has always freely given. His large and varied storehouse of knowledge on many subjects was commented upon but especially that of the horticultural part of his life—his profession which he so justly loved and in which he so profoundly excelled and of which he was always to the last so ready to impart. The great help and impetus he has given to the horticultural world cannot be over estimated, especially his help and assistance to the S. A. F. and A. H. from its inception even to later years. In view of these few of his many-sided qualities, therefore:

Be It Resolved, That in the decease of W. R. Smith, horticulture has lost one of its most ardent and loving patrons, and

Be It Further Resolved, That the Cincinnati Florists' Society in full assembly express their deep sorrow and extend their heartfelt sympathy to all bereaved friends, and

Be It Further Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the trade papers and be spread upon the minutes of the Society.

A. OSTENDARP, Secretary.

CORRECTION.

In Mr. Fewkes' article on "American Seedling Peonies," page 9, of last week's issue, sixth line from bottom of second column, "stems are very short," should read "stems are very stout."

THE LATE J. A. PETTIGREW.

An Appreciation.

Dear Editor:

A friend has been taken from us. We know it now. We shall appreciate it the more as time goes on. He was a man. A simple statement perhaps, and yet we know what that means when applied to our friend, for such he is and will continue to be. He can not be longer with us in the flesh but so long as we are he will be—in our recollection, in our minds, in our hearts. Should we need any reminder of him—which God forbid—his undertakings, his works, his results accomplished in our midst will stand as beacons, and ever after serve as mute witnesses to the mind that originated and the executive ability that carried such to completion in many cases, while many, many more must have been unfinished; and it would have been thus had he survived for years for such a man never ceases in the good work. There is no halting. He never lets up. The citizens of Boston have lost a faithful servant and leader.

The citizens of your Commonwealth have lost a benefactor in the good work done by him. The great American public have lost the leader in his profession, for he was the leader and he made it a profession by his efforts and successes. The horticultural world has lost one, whose taking will leave a vacancy only to be filled by one of brains, with a learning broad, technical, practical, cosmic, and walled and buttressed with an innate love for his work and surroundings; each, every and all of which can be applied to and made a part of his work. Such a man was our friend. He had these qualifications and attributes. Furthermore he was honest to himself and consequently true to his friends. His friends—all who knew him were his friends—will deeply lament his going. May we all leave as fragrant a memory as John Allgood Pettigrew.

Nashua, N. H., July 6, 1912.

The funeral services of J. A. Pettigrew, late superintendent of Boston parks, whose death was chronicled in our issue of July 6, took place at the superintendent's house in Franklin Park on Friday, July 5. There was a very large attendance of mourners, including a creditable representation of the horticultural interests. There were many beautiful floral tokens among which were wreaths from the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston and the Horticultural Club of Boston, the latter being a very large wreath of foliage exclusively and the handsomest of all.

THE ASBURY PARK SHOW.

The much-heralded show of the Elberon Horticultural Society was held on the 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th insts. at Asbury Park. The venture was backed with a two-thousand-dollar appropriation by the city fathers for prizes and expenses. This liberality and enterprise on their part did not produce the results in attendance it should have done. The reason for that is probably because the details were largely left to professional growers than whom there is no class in the community so lacking in their knowledge of how to handle human nature in such enterprises. Very rarely do we find a man combining in his one personality genius at producing on the one hand and genius at marketing on the other hand. The same with flower shows. Never leave their management in the hands of the producers. Put a business man in charge—one who knows human nature and knows how to get the ear of the people—when there is something good around. Far be it from us to depart from the proper dignity due the profession, but a little red fire and excitement judiciously administered produces results and results are the main thing so long as they go in the uplift channel. We would say to the Asbury Park magnates now, with cordial appreciation: Go on! You have done nobly. All you lacked was the audience. If the fathers of Asbury Park can make the combination right, there will be gate receipts in plenty and no taxes.

Burpee's show in charge of George W. Kerr was the feature of the sweet pea end of the exhibition. The arrangement was a revelation to the old-timers and ought to be an inspiration also. A finer effect could hardly be imagined. The gold medal (the premier award) for the best exhibit was deservedly given to this. Four certificates for the latest and best new varieties were also among their trophies. These were for the varieties: St. Francis, Orchid, Burpee's Mauve, and Decorator.

Boddington's exhibition far surpassed Burpee's in the number of varieties. There must have been at least five hundred, all good flowers and a very attractive feature of the show.

That "two hundred dollar prize" for thirty varieties was "some prize" all right, and brought out over fourteen the same lines. Lager & Hurrell made a good display of orchids. N. A. Corlin, Elberton, was the designer of the general arrangements and proved himself worthy of his high office. Thomas Hambleton's group of Celosia Castle Gould, showing its capacity as a bedding plant was well done in the formal garden. Henry Goldman showed some pretty good geraniums in the same section. Even our own Wm. Robertson would find these hard to beat.

Among the most fortunate of our Philadelphia prize winners we must not forget to mention Martin Gohn, gardener for R. B. Ellison, Bryn Mawr; three firsts and two seconds went to his credit for sweet peas. Mr.

entries. Adam Patterson had to be a good one to get that. It was a great triumph for him and a close call for there was a whole bunch of them pretty near as good. Thank Heaven your scribe was not one of the judges. He'd have had a terrible half hour with himself in reaching a decision.

The Duke fruit show was more than a feature. It was a kind of an annex. Grapes, melons, peaches, nectarines. The arrangement was immense. In the hands of a good manager the town would have rung with it.

Dreer had a fine display of aquatics which made a basis for the waterfalls feature, one of the good ideas of the show, and well executed. Julius Roehrs Co. showed up well in their tub evergreens on the esplanade, also with groups of flowering and foliage plants as well as with orchids. Bobbink & Atkins were also strong along Gohn is a pupil of Wm. Robertson and comes out of a good school with flying colors. It takes some beating to beat the big boys of New York and New England as well as the nearbys.

To all the Elberon boys we say—well done! But add a showman to your outfit next time. We only spent an hour or so in the show on the 4th and have no license to call the above a report. There must certainly have been lots of good things worthy of mention that escaped us not only from the hurried run through but also because it was a four-day show and we were only there for "a fleeting moment." Still it was good and inspiring and worth the three hours' journey to see how these lads with their limited resources can beat some of the big municipalities without half trying.

GEORGE C. WATSON.

BOSTON'S NEW PARK SUPERINTENDENT.

Much interest has attached to the question of who should be selected as the successor to the late J. A. Pettigrew as superintendent of the Boston Park system. The choice, we have just been informed, has fallen on James B. Shea, who has been ably filling the position of assistant superintendent for a number of years. We think the action of the park authorities in advancing Mr. Shea to this responsible position will meet with most cordial approval from those who have had opportunity to know that gentleman's qualifications. He probably, more than any other person, knew

JAMES B. SHEA

Mr. Pettigrew's methods and purposes and can be relied on to follow along on consistent lines and governed by the same wise policies which made Mr. Pettigrew's work so notable. Personally, Mr. Shea is a genial, companionable and kindly gentleman, quiet in manner, but none the less influential on that account and has a myriad of friends among all ranks of the Boston public as well as among the park officials of the entire country. Boston's superb park system will still be in good hands.

Mr. Shea was born in West Roxbury in 1863. Graduating from the High School in 1880, he pursued his studies in Boston College and Lawrence Scientific School at Harvard. He has been employed in the Boston Park Department for 22 years. In 1903 he was appointed general foreman by Superintendent Pettigrew and in 1907 became assistant superintendent. He is at present vice-president of the American Association of Park Superintendents.

AT MARION, MASS.

On June 26 the committee on gardens of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society visited the notable estate of Col. Harry E. Converse at Marion which was awarded the Hunnewell Premium in 1911. The afternoon was spent in looking over the extensive grounds, noting especially the rose, fruit and vegetable gardens as well as the improvements made in the rock and water gardens since the visit of the previous year. The numerous greenhouses with their collections of flowering and foliage plants and fruits were also inspected and a fine border of larkspur and peonies attracted attention. The rose garden was in its prime and presented a magnificent picture. The fruit garden was in fine cultivation. Mr. Roy, the superintendent, finds that in strawberries the Nich Ohmer and Brandywine succeed best here and in peaches he grows the Elberta, Oldmixon, Stump, Early and Late Crawford, and the Carman. For plums he recommends the Burbank, and for raspberries the Cuthbert and Golden Queen. The extensive woodlands on the estate have been judiciously thinned and on the borders of the roads plantings of rhododendrons, foxgloves and sweet williams furnish pleasing touches of color. Numerous small trees of catalpa seem to take well here and Rosa rugosa, both white and red varieties, find a congenial home. For planting along the seashore in masses this rose is especially well adapted, and for a hedge plant in exposed points is unexcelled.

On the same afternoon the committee had the opportunity of making a brief visit to the beautiful seashore home of Andrew Gray Weeks also at Marion. The most important improvement made in this estate since the visit of last year is the completion of the sea wall thereby permitting the extension of the lawn to the very water's edge. This great expanse of lawn with its plantings of trees and shrubs is one of the features of Mr. Weeks' estate. In the rear of the mansion house is a luxuriant growth of native trees and shrubs with many introduced garden species planted along the numerous woodland paths.

The visiting committee consisted of President C. W. Parker, Secretary W. P. Rich, T. D. Hatfield, W. Wheeler, Wm. Downs, A. H. Fewkes and Jackson Dawson. WM. P. RICH, Secy.

The next exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will be held at Horticultural Hall, Saturday and Sunday, July 13 and 14. It will be devoted wholly to sweet peas and will be rendered additionally interesting from the fact that the National Sweet Pea Society of America will hold its fourth annual exhibition and convention in connection with this show. The schedule has been arranged to include the private gardener, the amateur, the school children, as well as the commercial grower and retail florist. Special features will be dinner tables and mantels decorated with sweet peas, centerpieces, and bridal and corsage bouquets of sweet peas. It promises to be a wonderful exhibition of the progress made in this popular flower in recent years. The exhibition will be free to all and will be open Saturday from 12 M. to 10 P. M., and on Sunday from 2 to 10 P. M.

A VALIANT PRIZE WINNER.

The accompanying picture depicts W. A. Manda attired in his truly English togs and the smile which he wore when he counted his 22 prizes at the International Exhibition. We are pleased to add to our previous felicitations, congratulations to Mr. Manda on the award of a first-class certificate for Polypodium Mandaianum at the Holland House Show—the highest award that can be given there to any novelty. Also the award of a first-class certificate for the same at the Yorkshire Gala Flower Show at York and a botanical certificate for Anthericum Mandaianum.

BRITISH HORTICULTURE.

The full details are not yet published as to the financial results of the International Horticultural exhibition. It is rumored that after meeting the very heavy expenses there will be a surplus of several thousand pounds available for the gardening charities. —Great satisfaction is felt in the gardening world that the Board of Agriculture in future will have a special division set apart for horticulture. Mr. A. G. L. Rogers will be in charge assisted by entomological and other experts.—This year the Council of the Royal Caledonian Horticultural Society has awarded the Neill Prize to Mr. John M. Hattie, the Edinburgh city gardener. The prize, awarded for eminent services in horticulture, is the interest of a sum bequeathed by the late Dr. Patrick Neill for the purpose, and is dealt with every two years.—The honor of knighthood has been conferred upon Lieut. Col. D. Prain, director of the Royal Botanic Gardens, at Kew.—A baronetcy has been conferred on Mr. Alexander Cross, the senior partner in the firm of Alexander Cross and Sons, manure merchants and horticultural sundriesmen. Sir Alexander Cross has for many years been a prominent public man, having for 18 years been a member of Parliament. W. H. ADSETT.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

NEWPORT HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual rose show held last week showed a decided gain in favor of the Tea and Hybrid Tea classes. The beautiful combination colors of many of the newer varieties seem to be the most admired, helping much to extend their popularity in comparison with the Hybrid Perpetuals.

In the H. T. collections seen here the following varieties seemed worthy of note: Laurent Carle, Mme. Sigmond Weber, Reine Marguerite d'Italie, Mme. Jenny Gillemot, Lieutenant Chaure, Mme. Melanie Soupert, Lyon Rose, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Mme. Leon Pain, Marquise de Sinety, Lady Ashtown and Prince de Bulgarie. The Miss Alice de Rothschild, winner of the Mrs. Burke-Roche prize, is a Tea resembling the Marechal Niel very much and has surely come to stay. In the H. P. class Frau Karl Druschki is still the leader as a white and Mme. Gabriel Luizet, Mrs. John Laing and Mrs. Sharman Crawford the favorites in pink. The new white climber Silver Moon, was shown in excellent form by A. J. Fish of New Bedford, Mass. and was awarded a certificate of merit.

A very choice display of cut orchids was staged by James Garthly of Fairhaven, Mass. The varieties were C. Schroderi and C. Mendelli. The most attractive exhibit was a large plant of Bougainvillea glabra of perfect form covered with flowers, staged by John Baumgartner. In the collections of annual plants in flower the Clarkia elegans and Schizanthus seemed to be the best adapted for pot culture. Petunias were also good. The judges were John Barr, Arthur Griffin, James Garthly, Alex. Fraser, Bruce Butterton and Richard Gardner. The committee of arrangements was ably headed by Wm. F. Smith.

J. R.

CONNECTICUT HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Hardy Rose Night, June 28, brought out a fine display of cut blooms, all classes. The exhibitors were John F. Huss, Warren F. Mason of Farmington, John Coombs and the Department of Parks (Alex. Cumming, Jr., gardener). The judges (J. Alfred Weber, Theodore Staudt and W. W. Hunt) awarded each a first-class certificate.

In discussing regarding hardy roses, much information was brought out. Messrs. Cumming, Hunt and Staudt, who had been appointed for this service, after conference, brought in the following list of the 12 best hardy roses for general culture:

Six best hybrid perpetuals: Frau Karl Druschki, pure white; Mrs. John Laing, light pink; Ulrich Brunner, cherry red; Hugh Dickson, bright red; Prince Camille de Rohan, crimson; Paul Neyron, pink.

Six best hybrid teas: Madame Caroline Testout, satiny pink; Gruss an Teplitz, cherry crimson; Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, creamy white; Rhea Reed, red; General MacArthur, red; Grace Molynaux, whitish pink.

President Huss, in his remarks, said that the hybrid perpetual rose season passed very quickly this year. Few bugs harmed them, but some mildew developed, partly on account of the cold nights and warm days. He commended the hybrid teas as of longer duration, as they can be cut down and will bear a second lot of blooms. Mr. Staudt strongly advocated propagating roses on their own roots, instead of by grafting.

No further business meetings will be held until the fourth Friday of August, when it is expected that vigorous preparations will be commenced for the Dahlia Exhibition to be held at Hartford on Sept. 19-20, at Unity Hall. The usual chrysanthemum show will be omitted this year. The Dahlia Show will include all seasonable flowers, as well as vegetables and fruits. A very liberal premium list is in preparation.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS AND ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS.

Trades Exhibition at Convention.

As the date of the convention draws near, greater interest is being manifested, and the balance of available space is being rented rapidly. During the week large blocks of space have been reserved by the following named:

Detroit Flower Pot Co., Detroit, Mich.; W. A. Manda, So. Orange, N. J.; Knight & Struck, New York; Cushman Gladiolus Co., Sylvania, O.; E. E. Stewart, Rives Junction, Mich.; Mead & Suydam, East Orange, N. J.; Superior Machine & Boiler Works, Chicago; H. N. Bruns, Chicago; George P. Limbert Co., Chicago; Illinois State Association, Illinois; Florists' Exchange, New York; Universal Portland Cement Co., Chicago; Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago (additional space); American Blower Co., Detroit, Mich.; Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Iowa.

There will also be a fine display of modern ice boxes and refrigerators for florists' use, by the leading manufacturers of the country. This will be one of the attractive features of the exhibition.

JOHN YOUNG,
Supt. of Trade Exhibition.

Department of Plant Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that Henry F. Michell Co., 518 Market street, Philadelphia, Pa., offers for registration the following new geranium (Zonal Pelargonium). Any person objecting to the registration or to the use of the proposed name, is requested to communicate with the Secretary at one. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date.

Raiser's description.—Variety originated with John L. North, Sewell, N. J., cross between Jean Viaud and Alphonse Ricard. Habit semi-dwarf, bushy and erect in growth; bears from 4 to 5 clusters of immense flowers on well-grown 4-in. pot plants; color intense scarlet, without any tendency to scald in bright sunlight, and showing no traces of pink. A great improvement on all scarlet varieties.

Name: "Helen Michell."

PENNSYLVANIA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Sweet Pea Show of the above Society, held on Tuesday, July 2nd, was a very good one, over 200 vases being staged. The principal prize winners were: Frank West, gard. to John A. Brown & Son, who staged the best collection of sweet peas taking first prize in the class of 12 vases, fifty sprays to a vase. Robert J. Morrow, gardener to Mr. George I. Bodine, Chestnut Hill, took first for 15 vases, and Walter Scott, gardener to Mr. W. W. Frazier, first for 10 vases, twenty-five sprays to a vase. William Fowler, gardener to Mrs. Charles Wheeler, carried away all the first prizes in the classes of one vase of fifty blooms. His flowers were probably the best ever staged here by a private gardener; the stems being 14 to 16 inches long. A new exhibitor was Mrs. C. Murdock Kendrick, Strafford, an amateur. She staged her own exhibits, which consisted of all the new Spencer varieties and was one of the prize winners. Joseph Hurley, gardener to Mr. Thomas P. Hunter, took first on 25 varieties of Japanese iris, also on 12 species of out-door cut flowers. David Aiken, gardener to Mr. George H. McFadden, was first on 12 species of hardy perennials.

It was noticed among the exhibits of sweet peas that the majority of the gardeners seemed to prefer the Grandiflora type. Two of them, being asked for their reason in doing this, stated "that they found the cut-flowers of the Grandiflora type to last longer than those of the new Spencers. The most noticeable of the newer varieties which seemed to be in favor were: Lord Nelson, Irish Belle and Florence Nightingale. The well-known variety, Helen Pierce, was staged in every collection shown.

The flower stems this year were probably shorter than usual, with the one exception mentioned above. All the sweet peas shown were spring sown and in the one exception where long stems were produced we found that the exhibitor had used a large quantity of native guano, mixing this with the soil in the trench before sowing.

The exhibits were all kept intact for the Florists' Club meeting, which took place on the evening of the same day, and were greatly admired by the large audience which attended that meeting. The collections of out-door cut flowers and hardy perennials attracted special attention from the members of the trade.

Dr. Robert Huey had on exhibition the new hybrid tea rose Robert Huey, which is a Dickson seedling. This is certainly a great acquisition to the out-door rose class. The flowers staged had stems 18 to 24 inches long; the flower is a very pleasing shade of deep pink, and those now before us (which were cut three days ago), are expanded to five inches in diameter, but the center remains full. Dr. Huey informs us that it is a very free bloomer, and last year flowered continuously until frost came.

DAVID RUST.

NEW YORK HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

There was again a capital little show at Bronx Park on the 29th and 30th of June, the quality of the flowers throughout being of high order. Special mention, however, should be made of the Japanese iris sent by Jas. A. Macdonald which were exceptionally fine, and of the grand collection of herbaceous flowers from the gardens of Mrs. F. A. Constable. The exhibition of gladioli will be held on August 31st.

Prize awards were:

Collection of outdoor roses—First, A. P. Stokes, Noroton, Ct., gard. Andrew Whitelaw; second, H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y., gard. P. W. Popp.

Japanese Iris, 12 vars.—First, Scott Bros., Elmsford, N. Y.; second, J. A. Macdonald, Flushing, gard. Richard Hughes.

Sweet peas, six vars., 25 of each—First, Miss M. T. Cockroft, Saugatuck, Ct., gard. A. Patterson; second, Mrs. J. B. Trevor, Yonkers, gard. Howard Nichols.

Sweet peas, 100 sprays—First, Miss M. T. Cockroft; second, H. Darlington. Herbaceous flowers—First, Mrs. F. A. Constable, Mamaroneck, gard. James Stuart.

Shrub and tree flowers—First, T. H. Havemeyer, Glen Head, L. I., gard. A. Lahodny; second, H. Darlington.

Japanese Iris, six vars.—First, James Macdonald; second, T. A. Havemeyer.

Sweet peas, three vars., 25 of each—First, Miss M. T. Cockroft; second, Mrs. J. B. Trevor.

Twelve vegetables—First, Mrs. J. B. Trevor; second, Mrs. F. A. Constable.

Six vegetables—First, J. A. Macdonald; second, T. A. Havemeyer.

The judges were William Scott, Richard Hughes and Ernest Prince.

NORTH SHORE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The North Shore Horticultural Society held a rose show on June 26-27 at Manchester, Mass. The special prizes were well competed for with results as follows:

M. H. Walsh Prize for General Display of Hardy Roses—Mrs. Lothrop Brown, gard. W. Swan, 1st; Mrs. E. C. Swift, gard. J. Chapman, 2nd. Morley, Flatley Co. Prize for H. P. Collection—Mrs. W. B. Walker, gard. E. F. Eicke, 1st; W. Swan, 2nd. John McKenzie Prize for 24 H. P. Roses—W. Swan, Dreer Prize for 8 H. T.—J. Chapman, Beaton Prize for Vase of Roses—J. Chapman, 1st; E. Hyland, 2nd. Gold Medal, for roses arranged for effect by lady—Mrs. G. E. Cabot, Table of Roses—Mrs. H. L. Higginson, gard. A. Cruickshank, Dinner Table Decoration—W. H. Clark, 1st, with pink sweet peas and single roses; Mrs. Jas. McMillan, gard. W. H. Beach, 2nd, with carnine pillar and sweet peas. Foxgloves—W. Swan, J. B. Dow Prize for Peonies—W. Swan, Jos. Clark Prize for Peonies—J. Chapman, Pansies—J. Chapman, 1st; Mrs. Allan Curtis, gard. Thos. Jack, 2nd. Lord & Burnham Prize for Group of Flowering Plants—Mrs. Lester Leland, gard. E. Wetterlow, Basket of Roses—Mrs. C. S. Eaton, gard. Jos. Warr, Canterbury Bells—W. Swan, Strawberries, 3 var.—R. Dexter, gard. J. Salter, Strawberries, 6 var.—Mrs. G. D. Curtis, gard. E. P. Hooper, Collection of Vegetables—Mrs. G. Abbott's Silver Cup to Wm. Swan, T. J. Grey Co. Prize for Peas—C. F. Eicke, 1st; W. Craig, 2nd. Brock's Prize for Peas—Thos. Jack, 1st; E. P. Hooper, 2nd. Lettuce—H. W. Clark, 1st; E. P. Hooper, 2nd. Specimen Flowering Plant—W. Swan, Collection Sweet Peas—Mrs. W. D. Denegro, gard. H. W. Clark, Collection of Vegetables—E. Wetterlow. The regular classes were also well-filled and brought out some excellent competition.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The annual term of officials of the American Rose Society dates from the 1st of July. President Adolph Farenwald does duty for the second term. Frank H. Traendly of New York City becomes vice-president; ex-President Robert Simpson of Clifton, N. J., and Frank R. Pierson of Tarrytown, N. Y., are to serve a term on the Executive Committee. This eastern concentration was intended to strengthen the Rose Society during the coming National Flower Show to be held in New York next spring.

A week ago a convention of the New York State Bankers, Group 6, was held at Lake Mohonk. The two large rose gardens were so attractive that when the time came for the morning session, which is the chief business session, there were scarcely enough members present to hold the meeting. When a search was made there were these bankers and trustees off in the rose gardens more interested in the beautiful bloom of the Queen of Flowers than they were in the active business which called them to the convention. Probably no one had seen such a sight before; the variety of roses seemed endless.

There will be a meeting of the American Rose Society in Chicago at the S. A. F. convention in August.

ST. LOUIS FLORIST CLUB.

The Florist Club held a very interesting meeting on Thursday afternoon, June 13; Vice-President Vennemann presided. After the regular opening proceedings the trustees reported arrangements for the annual picnic, and it was voted to hold the picnic at Preisters' Park on the East Side near Belleville, on Wednesday, July 17th. Wm. Ossick and Charles Young were appointed on the committee.

Resolutions on the death of Charles A. Juengel were adopted as follows:

Whereas, Death has removed from our midst Chas. A. Juengel, a member of this club;

Whereas, In the demise of Mr. Juengel the club has met with irreparable loss, and

Whereas, The deceased was known to us as a man of sterling worth, and as a good neighbor and citizen. Mr. Juengel has ever exemplified the highest qualities. Therefore be it

Resolved, That his memory will ever be cherished as an example of faith, friendship and true nobility, an inspiration of public fidelity. So to have lived and so to have died is not to have lived and died in vain. The St. Louis Florist Club mourns with a host of friends his taking off. To his bereaved wife and family we extend our deepest sympathy in their hour of affliction in the memory of the nobility of his character, the faithfulness of his private and public life and the sincere attachment of the vast host of friends who with them mourn. Be it further

Resolved, That the resolutions be spread on the minutes of this club and that a copy of the same be transmitted to the bereaved family.

Owing to sickness which caused the absence of Mr. C. E. DeWever, the discussion on Relative Value of Overhead and Sub-irrigation was laid over.

The next meeting, July 11th, will be nomination of officers and also a discussion of Pot and Cut Chrysanthemums by Henry Emunds, in which he will be assisted by Carl Beyer, C. C. Sanders, John Held and F. J. Fillmore.

PITTSBURGH FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB.

The monthly meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Pittsburgh was held Tuesday evening, June 4th, in the Dutch Room of the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Neil McCallum of West End Park showed a large and interesting collection of hardy perennials. An interesting collection of aquilegias from Schenley Park was also exhibited. Most of the members were cut-flower men; these hardy perennials did not appeal to them except as pretty things to look at, the invariable remark being that there was no money in them.

The Elliott nursery showed 20 varieties of peonies, the best ever exhibited at the club. A first class certificate was awarded them. Carl Beckerer, of Dixmont showed a good collection of the new French hydrangeas, which were "highly recommended" by the committee. Souvenir de Mme. de Chautard, a fine blue, was perhaps the best variety. It is an early one which the French say can be easily forced for Christmas. Avalanche, an excellent white, is an improvement on Thomas Hogg, but earlier. Dentelle, a dwarf variety with a large truss, is considered the best by Mr. Beckerer.

Randolph & Clements showed several 4-inch pots of dwarf calceolarias. His method of carrying them over the hot summers of Pittsburgh is to take cuttings in winter and carry these plants over without allowing them to bloom. They keep them in a shaded place in the greenhouse near the door where they can get plenty of air.

The wonder of the evening was some cucumbers exhibited by John Costoff, gardener to Wm. Flinn. He has found that Sutton's Delicacy will, if started warm and then transferred to a cool house—one growing lettuce and radishes—gives better results than Telegraph, and some of the other long varieties. He sets them in the vegetable house about the middle of March from 3-inch pots and has had the plants in fruit for several weeks already. Grown cool there is less trouble in controlling thrips and red spider.

One of the most interesting exhibits about Pittsburgh this past month has been the collection of tulips grown by Ernest Guter, gardener to R. B. Mellon. There was a display in the open of 35,000 bulbs, of which Pride of Haarlem, Pink Beauty, Cardinal Rampolla and Princess Wilhelmina were the best. Pride of Haarlem is a particularly good variety. The stems are very long and stiff. It is deep pink with a dark eye. If picked when just commencing to open it will last four weeks in water.

NASSAU COUNTY HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual summer exhibition of the Nassau County Horticultural Society held at Glen Cove, N. Y., on June 18th, was up to the usual good standard of previous years. Roses were not quite so good, but hardy flowers were exceptionally fine. Percy Chubb, A. Mackenzie, gardener, put up a beautiful table of orchids and gloxinias which won a certificate of culture. John Pratt, J. W. Everitt, gardener, was awarded a certificate of culture for delphiniums and La France roses. L. G. Forbes also got a certificate of culture for a table of roses. Other special premiums were honorable mention to Jas. Holloway for hardy flowers; Percy Chubb, for lilies, snapdragon and spirea; H. J. Pratt for English iris; W. V. Hester for sweet peas, and E. Pester for climbing rose Violet Blue.

First prizes in the regular classes were won by Mrs. H. L. Pratt, H. Gant, gardener, Percy Chubb, Mrs. H. J. Pratt, F. O. Johnson, gardener, W. E. Kimball, Mrs. F. S. Smithers, V. Cleres, gardener, for roses; Mrs. H. L. Pratt for herbaceous flowers; W. E. Hester, H. Baettcher, gardener, for annuals; Mrs. Smithers for sweet peas; Mrs. H. Whitney for peonies; J. R. DeLamar, R. Marshall, gardener, for delphiniums and lettuce; Mrs. H. J. Pratt for snapdragons; Percy Chubb for flowering shrubs and strawberries; Jas. Holloway for ornamental foliage and out-door fruit; A. G. Hodenpyle, F. F. Petrocia, gardener, for vegetables; Mr. W. Dabot, C. Stranger, gardener, for cauliflowers.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The annual summer show was held in Hollywood Inn on June 18th. The competition was very great in several of the classes, and, considering the lateness of the season, the outdoor products reached a high state of cultivation. The judges were, James Stewart, Robert Angus and George Wittlinger.

First prize winners were Mrs. Thos. Ewing, gardener R. Cochran, for caladiums and for gloxinias; E. C. Benedict, gardener R. Allen, for roses; H. Darlington, gardener P. W. Popp, for roses; E. H. McAlpine, gardener J. Woodcock, for roses; Mrs. J. B. Trevor, gardener H. Nichols, for sweet peas and for vegetables; C. N. McAlpine, gardener H. Scott, for herbaceous flowers; Howard Nichols, for bouquet; Mrs. H. Draper, gardener H. Wills, for strawberries; Mrs. E. L. Coster, gardener E. Kane, for strawberries; D. E. Oppenheim, for lettuce.

Certificates of merit were awarded to S. Untermyer, gardener W. H. Waite, for stove and greenhouse plants; F. Milliot, for floral work; L. Milliot, for palms, ferns and flowering plants. Cultural certificate to H. Darlington, for everlasting chrysanthemums.

The annual rose and strawberry exhibit of the Rhode Island Horticulture Society was held in Providence, R. I., on June 19th, the display being a large and successful one. One object of the exhibit, from a show point of view, was to create a vein of enthusiasm for the fall show in November, and the high character of the exhibits gave much encouragement to the members.

The exhibit of orchids by Edgar L. Nock was a leading feature and Johnston Brothers, H. Howard Pepper and Burke and Burns were also among the exhibitors that held the attention of the crowds. Eugene A. Appleton, president of the Florists and Gardeners' Club, was superintendent, the arrangement of flowers being under his jurisdiction and the clever manner in which the exhibit was arranged was a credit to himself and the wisdom of the officials of the society who selected him. The exhibition committee together with Mr. Appleton, included Joshua Vose of Pontiac, E. K. Thomas of Providence, Richard M. Bowen of Warwick, Harry V. Mayo of East Providence, Arthur C. Miller of Providence, Miss Addie F. Holland of Auburn, and Thomas Hope, president of the society. The judges who awarded the premiums were James Dillon of Swan Point and Cornelius Hartsha, gardener at the Rhode Island Hospital.

During Recess.

The Florists' Club of Washington.

A very clever ventriloquist created considerable amusement for the sixty odd guests of Mr. Edward Schmid at his annual crab feast held in the Grotto at 1214 F street, N. W., following the regular July meeting of the club. Other features on the program were dancing and monologues by Morris Stine, address of welcome by Ed. Schmid, a talk on the love of flowers on the part of the inhabitants of the Arctic regions by Julian S. Warmbath, a short talk by William F. Gude on the good feeling among the members accomplished through just such affairs as this one, an announcement of a few things that might be expected at the outing to be held at Chesapeake Beach on July 24 by W. W. Kimmel, and short talks on different subjects by other members and their guests.

One other feature that was not scheduled was the loaded cigars that found their way to the places occupied by our worthy president, David G. Grillbortzer, A. F. Faulkner, Harry Lewis, and a number of other notables. Then, again, it was hardly expected that Messrs. Lewis and Faulkner would prove themselves the heroes they did when a number of Japanese lanterns with which the Grotto was decorated caught fire and they had an opportunity of playing firemen.

A letter from the secretary of the Baltimore Florists' and Gardeners' Club asking for a list of the members who intend to go to Chicago as delegates to the convention, set the members to planning for the trip. A number signified their intentions of attending.

Following the report of W. W. Kimmel, as chairman of the outing committee, N. L. Hammer submitted a resolution wherein all florists in the city are requested to close their stores promptly at twelve o'clock on Wednesday, July 24. The resolution was passed. Mr. Kimmel announced that quite a number of prizes for the athletic events had already been received, but a few more would be acceptable and these will be forthcoming. Special cars will leave Chesapeake Junction at two o'clock. Following their arrival at the Beach, the members are invited to witness a baseball game between a picked team of florists and a team from Kallipolis Grotto. Every man who makes a hit will be awarded a glass of—lemonade.

New York Florists' Club Outing.

This enjoyable annual affair which took place on July 2 was, as briefly noted in our last week's issue, a perfect success in every detail. There were over 400 in attendance, ladies and children predominating. The games were enthusiastically entered into and in many instances with entries crowded.

In the boys' and girls' races, Jack Traendly, Martha Schmutz, Ethel Amos, J. Einsmann, Emma McMullen, Ed. Einsmann, Willie Einsmann, Charles Miesem, Laurence Einsmann, Irwin Einsmann, Elizabeth Manker, Anna Miesem, P. J. Walker, Helen Ehrhart, B. Munn, Chas. Walter and Fm. McMullen were the first prize winners. There were second's and third's also in each class. In the various ladies' races the first prizes went to Miss Anna Hughes, Miss Engel King, Mrs. A. P. Cain, Miss Anna Miesem and Miss Alice Gaynor. Second and third prizes were also all awarded. Growers' race, 50 yards, John Donaldson, Henry Hession. Ditto, over 25 yards, John Donaldson, H. Hornecker, F. Smith. Ditto, under 25 yards, E. Manda, H. Hession, A. Demensy. Men's race, 100 yards, E. Manda, A. Demensy, John Donaldson. Ditto, 50 yards, John Donaldson, E. N. Holt. Ditto, quarter mile, Engel King, S. A. Mills. Wholesalers' race, Phil. F. Kessler, M. L. Glass, A. J. Guttman. Retail florists' race, T. A. Mills, H. Crocker, D. Scott. Fat men's race, F. Smith. Greeks' race, Kokonas, Carlates, Fellouris. Seedsmen's race, E. Boylan, S. Dennison, R. J. Irwin. Sack race, J. Sternberg, Engel King, C. Andrews. Race for wholesalers' employees, M. Nagle, G. Jacobs, J. Sternberg. Press bowling, J. H. Pepper, John Young, J. Austin Shaw. Ladies' bowling (wives of members), Mrs. Wagenfohr, Mrs. F. H. Traendly, Mrs. J. A. Manda. Ditto, open, Miss Buckholtz, Mrs. Getty, Mrs. Guttman, Mrs. Miller. Gentlemen's bowling, Protin, DeForest, Holt, Totty, Einsmann, Glass, most strikes, Totty, Mrs. W. F. Sheridan and Miss O'Mara got the special prize for middle-aged ladies; Mrs. F. H. Traendly's mother, the prize for oldest lady and Miss Niegel for youngest girl baby; Miss Hession was the fortunate one in the drawing for Florentine basket, and P. Einsmann won the trophy for the largest family present.

Chicago Carnation Co. Entertainment.

A very attractive program planned for the baseball lovers and their friends was carried out successfully, July 4th, at the Chicago Carnation Company's grounds, Joliet, Ill. Fifty were there to take part in or witness the game between the local team and the visitors, and though the day was extremely hot the C. C. C. team kept cool heads and defeated the C. C. F. A. boys 13 to 0, the latter having just begun practice. Manager A. T. Pyfer in behalf of the Chicago Carnation Company supplemented the picnic dinner with hot coffee, lemonade, etc., and the outing was a success in every way.

The St. Louis Florist Club picnic will take place at Priesters' Park on Wednesday, July 17th, the trustees, who have the affair in charge, have completed all arrangements for the pleasure of the florists, their families and friends. No expense is attached as the Florist Club stands all that and all florists and employees are invited to come and take part. The four wholesalers and the five local seed houses have offered fine prizes for the games. There will be good fishing and boating and a fine band of music for the dancers. The Belleville florists will be on hand early and receive the party as they come. Take Belleville cars at the Eads Bridge entrance. Fare, 30 cents for round trip. Most of the retailers and all the wholesalers will close up for a half-day so that their employees can enjoy the outing.

At the regular meeting of the Yonkers (N. Y.) Horticultural Society held in Hollywood Inn on Friday, June 14th, Robert Cochran exhibited a fine collection of sweet peas and gave an interesting address regarding his method of growing them.

The Peony Show of the New Bedford Horticultural Society on June 18, was a notable success. Among the large contributors were M. H. Walsh, James Garthley, D. F. Roy, W. F. Turner, E. J. Shaylor, Forbes & Keith, J. P. Rooney and other horticultural celebrities.

Obituary.

Mrs. Fannie R. Holland.

The death is reported of Mrs. Fannie R. Holland, of Alexandria, Va., the wife of Mr. Joseph Holland, who formerly worked for the Gude Bros., Washington, but who recently entered into business for himself. She is survived, besides her husband, by three small children. Mr. Holland has the sympathy of all in his bereavement.

Frank W. Foster.

Frank W. Foster of the F. W. Foster Mfg. Company on Beverly street, Boston, and for many years connected with the steamfitting, heating and ventilating business, died at his home in Melrose, Mass., on July 8, after a month's illness from intestinal trouble.

Mr. Foster served as treasurer of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston in 1892 and was quite an active member of that body in its early years. He was sixty years old.

George M. Roak.

George Martin Roak, a well-known Auburn (Me.) florist passed away on July 7th at his home, that city, after a lingering illness of three years. Mr. Roak has been in the florists' business for many years and is well and favorably known throughout the country.

Mr. Roak was born in the city of Auburn and had always lived there. He was 64 years of age and went into business in Auburn in the year of 1874. He is survived by his wife and six daughters, four of whom are married, and two sons.

Mrs. S. Muir.

Mrs. S. Muir passed away at her residence, 4104 Prairie Ave., Chicago, July 6th, at an advanced age. For the past three years she had been failing and her death came as a release from suffering. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Muir were both born in Scotland and were among the very first to enter the florist business in Chicago. Their first place was at 33rd St. and S. Park Ave., which they started in the 60's, going to 55th and Centre about ten years later, and in 1883 buying the place at 3530 Michigan avenue where with the store at 47th and Grand Blvd. the business is still continued. Mr. Muir died 15 years ago and two sons and a daughter followed. Mrs. Muir leaves three sons, two of whom carry on the business, and two daughters, one of whom is also in the store. The funeral was July 9th, from the house, and interment was in Oak Forest cemetery.

3rd, without the slightest premonition, he having been attending to his business all during the day. He was one of two brothers, both of whom have been connected with the Thomas F. Galvin Corporation, Boston florists, ever since their childhood days. The other brother, James H. McManus, has been foreman and manager for the Thomas F. Galvin Corporation for many years.

Mr. McManus was a man of great accomplishments in his calling and was well known to many of the Back Bay residents, his skillful taste in landscape gardening being generally recognized. He will be deeply mourned by his family, consisting of a wife and four children, and by the concern with which he was connected. He was a man of the highest character, beloved by everybody, and leaves a record which is an honor and credit to his name.

His funeral took place on Saturday, July 6th, and was attended by all of the members of the staff of the Galvin Corporation, Thomas F. Galvin, the principal, and his son coming up from Nantucket to be present.

Convention Crop Reports.

We trust that a few remarks touching the recent Seedsmen's Convention at Chicago may not be considered out of place or out of date.

First of all, the attendance was a matter for congratulation as it undoubtedly exceeded any previous convention. The papers read were also as a whole, of unusual interest and importance. The effort to establish a crop reporting bureau as a feature of the National Convention did not seem to meet with much favor and was side-tracked for the present, though it is not unlikely to receive consideration another year. Such crop reports as were read were largely in line with those which have appeared in Horticulture on different occasions within the past two months.

Summing up the situation briefly, it may be said that European grown cabbage will be from 25 to 50 per cent. short and the same may be said of turnips, beets and in fact, nearly all biennials. As to crop conditions in this country, it is so well known that the sweet pea crop will be very short, as to make comment on this unnecessary. Several other California grown items are likely to be on the short list, including carrots, radishes and possibly lettuce, although some shortage in this latter item might not be an unmixed evil. Onion seed was generally reported as promising a fair crop, and beans, especially Limas, give an excellent promise for a fine crop. Reports from Long Island were somewhat conflicting, one or two of the growers there reporting crops as promising fairly well, others predicting a decided shortage.

Garden Peas.

As to garden peas, reports were also more or less conflicting, but the consensus of opinions seemed to be that conditions were vastly more favorable than a year ago at this time, and, while rain is badly needed throughout Michigan and Wisconsin, yet the prospects of a crop, while not for a full one, yet are fairly satisfactory, considering the same in connection with the past two or three years. It must of course, be borne in mind by all readers that these figures and opinions are nothing but estimates based on present crop conditions and there is yet abundant time for deterioration, and in some instances, improvement. So far as the pea crop is concerned, it is very unsafe to give figures as to the probable yield until the crop is practically in the bag.

Garden Beans.

Conditions affecting the general line of garden beans are about the same as in our last report, although the outlook, perhaps, is somewhat improved during the past two weeks. Beans were planted late and will suffer from that handicap and will require a warm late autumn to insure a crop.

The foregoing seems to be the best summary of crop conditions which we can furnish at this time, and we hope that as the season progresses, we shall be able to give a more hopeful and satisfactory outcome than now seems possible.

Charles N. Page.

Charles N. Page, president-elect of the American Seed Trade Association, was born in Clyde, Ohio, May 29, 1860. He moved with his parents to Omaha, Neb., in 1868, and thence to Des Moines, Ia., in 1876, where he entered the employ of S. L. Fuller & Co., seedsmen. The name of the firm was later changed to C. W. Dorr & Co. In 1886, he secured a controlling interest and changed the name to the Iowa Seed Co., under which name it has been conducted ever since. For about five years, he was editor of a monthly publication called "The Western Garden and Poultry Journal," which became quite prominent, but owing to the seed business growing so rapidly, he was obliged to dispose of the publication. He is also the author of quite a number of books which have had extended circulation, some of them reaching the 16th edition.

He has been prominent in the trade, serving as president of the American Seed Trade Association once before, the Society of Iowa Florists, and for five years of the Iowa Seed Dealers' Association.

Seed Trade Notes.

Jerome B. Rice, Jr., has been made President of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., to succeed his late lamented father. While the young Mr. Rice has not been very actively identified with the business, it is confidently believed by his many friends that he will make good as his father's successor. Those with whom we have talked are very sanguine that the young man has reserve force and ability which will be plainly made manifest in the near future. We have heard several times from those familiar with the facts, of his unvarying devotion to his father and it may be generally taken for granted that a loyal devoted son will generally make an efficient business man after he has had the necessary experience.

The election of Mr. Page of Des Moines, Iowa, to the office of President of the American Seed Trade Association, while not necessarily establishing a precedent, marks only the second time that a man has been twice elected to that office, the other case being Albert McCullough of Cincinnati. Mr. Page's election is a tribute on the part of the Association to a man who has been one of the most devoted and zealous in the interest of the Association since his election to membership some 24 years ago. Nevertheless, many expressed surprise that it was thought necessary to elect any man a second time in view of the fact that there were a number of aspiring delegates who were perfectly willing to serve the Association in the capacity of President.

We do not think that the method of nominating candidates now followed by the Association is any improvement over the old plan of making the nomination from the floor. In the latter case, if a candidate has good and sufficient reasons to offer against his election, he can state his reasons before the delegates go to the trouble of practically electing him and then compelling him to decline the election. However, this is a matter for the Association to thrash out and we simply offer these remarks as suggestions.

The many graduates of the ancient and honorable firm of Benjamin Reid & Co., Aberdeen, Scotland, including John Farquhar, George Watson, Dan Carmichael and many others, will be interested in the following clipping from an exchange:

"Benjamin Reid & Company, nurserymen and seedsmen, 72 Guild street, have received notice from the Lord Steward that the King has been graciously pleased to grant them a warrant of appointment as purveyors of seeds and plants. The firm was established over a century ago, and has extensive business connections, not only all over the United Kingdom, but also the Continent and America."

We extend our congratulations to Mr. Duthie and his partners and wish them continued prosperity in their august career as "Royal Seedsmen."

Carlisle, Ky.—Rogers & Linville, seedsmen, lost about $1,500 by fire recently and had but about $500 insurance.

An item omitted from our recent account of the Bronx Park Show, was the exhibit of Chrysanthemum Seven Oaks by John Miller, gardener for Mr. L. C. Tiffany, Oyster Bay, N. Y. The flowers were very fine, of great size and evidently from disbudded plants.

The Bourne Bill.

The following copy of a letter sent to Senator Penrose, by W. Atlee Burpee, on July 9th, speaks for itself. Seedsmen and catalogue trade men generally will find in it much food for thought:

Honorable Boies Penrose, U. S. Senate, Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:—Having been called home by wire from California I could not remain as intended in Chicago for the Annual Meeting of the American Seed Trade Association then about to convene. Calling to pay my respects to the president, Mr. Leonard Vaughan, you may imagine my surprise (and disgust) when he handed me a copy of the enclosed circular.

It seemed almost impossible to believe that the Senate Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, of which you were so long the able chairman, could even seriously consider such a measure as the Bourne Bill (S. 6850). Even its author, the Honorable Jonathan Bourne, Jr., of Oregon, surely must admit upon second thought that it is little short of the ridiculous to make a rate of 12 cents for 7 ozs. of third or fourth class matter when the same weight of first class mail at full letter postage would cost only 14 cents.

Such legislation would seem almost to justify the thought of extreme radicals that this is not a "Government of the people, by the people, or for the people."

The passage of this Bourne Bill would mean practically the ruin of the business to which I have devoted thirty-six years of strenuous work. It would spell ruin also (or necessitate complete reconstruction) of thousands of others in the seed and book business, as well as to houses in many other lines who now depend upon the mail to distribute catalogs as their "Silent Salesman." The injury to lithographic, printing and allied trades would also be incalculable.

The first edition of our retail catalog in December each year is more than four hundred thousand copies. These, weighing 8 ozs. each, are now conveniently mailed and routed direct from The Burpee buildings without trouble or labor to the Philadelphia post office, the wrapper containing each catalog bearing the indicia

4c. Paid,
Philadelphia, Pa.
Permit No. 6.

With stamps affixed this catalog is mailed also all over the world,—at the same rate of 8 ozs. for 4 cents. Now, by Senator Bourne's so-called "Parcels Post Bill" the cost of postage upon a large percentage of the issue would be trebled,—12 cents instead of 4 cents. Is there any reason for the United States wanting to charge three times the rate recognized and long established as fair by every civilized nation,—on both books and pamphlets?

The government of the United States recognizing that seeds like books must frequently be ordered by mail and that their proper distribution is vital to the welfare of the people, established the same rate two ounces for one cent. We would welcome an increase in size of packages from four pounds to twelve pounds, but neither ourselves or our customers could be expected to welcome an increase of fifty per cent in charge for the service,—together with rates on small packages that are absolutely prohibitive. We would certainly (as would all seedsmen and publishers) prefer to have four pound packages remain the limit at the present rate.

At the rate of 12 cents per pound for two thousand miles or more it is hardly likely that the P. O. Department would get much business as the present prepaid express rate to California is only 8 cents per pound,—unless, as is quite likely, the express companies profit by the opportunity to advance their rates.

Trusting that you and the other members of the committee, including Senator Bourne himself (to whom copy of this letter is mailed) may realize the injury this bill would work upon your fellow-citizens and also the protest that would be aroused should its passage be recommended, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
W. ATLEE BURPEE.

A MESSAGE FROM LONSDALE.

Dear Editor:

Herewith you will please find a photograph taken by David Burpee on the Burpee Floradale seed ranch here in the northern part of Southern California, which is located between seven and eight miles from the Pacific Ocean, so that we are less or more subjected to ocean breezes every day in the year. The evenings, nights and early mornings are generally calm and always cool. Temperatures rarely rise higher than 50 degrees at night and are more often below that mark than above, which makes ideal conditions for the production of sweet pea and some other seeds. The rainfall was short this year, barely reaching eight inches, whereas last year we had four times that number of inches. If we could only regulate conditions so that we would have not less than ten inches each season—and fifteen would be bet-and earlier if the land may be prepared in time (in an experimental way for the present).

We have a number of novelties on trial at Floradale, but as same are also on trial at Fordhook I will refrain from referring to them at this time, because I know that will be attended to by your Philadelphia representative, George C. Watson, a sweet pea enthusiast from away back in the eighties when Henry Eckford began to attract attention as a sweet pea expert and disseminator of practically all the novelties in the older grandiflora types in those early days. I shall watch with interest your columns to learn about the behavior of some of the newer Spencerised novelties which are now growing at Floradale.

It surely was a boon to all lovers of sweet peas when the original Countess Spencer was first class certificat-

AMONG THE WHITE SPENCERS AT LOMPOC

ter—we could then work to much better advantage; and if we could further control conditions so as to have rain commence in October and end in April, at intervals during that term the working of a seed ranch would then be ideal for sure.

The time must come when irrigation will have to be resorted to, so that, after harvest, water applied to the land intelligently would aid in the preparation of the land for future crops and especially those which should be planted early. If the land is fully charged with moisture in the rainy season, which is winter time, there is no necessity for irrigation in summer time, that is to say in Lompoc, for sweet pea seed crops. By referring to the photograph it will be noticed how very short the sweet pea vines are in this short year of 1912. In 1911 the vines grew four times the length and in 1910 about two and a half times, the difference being in the amount of rainfall.

From observations during the past two seasons it would indicate that it is a mistake to sow sweet peas after first week in February, for seed growing purposes, and to commence planting as early as possible in November, ed in 1901. Nothing in the whole floral kingdom has given us so many new and meritorious varieties in so brief a period as has this type of the sweet pea and the end is not yet! In the very short time which the writer has been so closely identified with the development of sweet peas he has noted some remarkable advances made in this, the most popular of all flowering annuals. Some varieties are more difficult to keep true to type than others, but this adds zest to their cultivation; the possibility of something new appearing causes us to be ever watchful hoping to secure a valuable prize.

Can be produced only from the giant strains. Our CHALLENGE PANSY seed contains only the giant self-colors, the giant striped and variegated and the giant blotched, etc., all carefully mixed in proportion. You could not buy better seed if you paid $100 per ounce. Our Challenge Pansy seed during the past season gave unprecedented satisfaction, and every order booked last year was duplicated and increased this year. All the testimonials received mentioned specially the high grade of flowers—color, form and size of the individual blossoms. This year, by adding improved types, intending customers can absolutely rely on a duplication of this season's success with increased satisfaction. Our "mark" for this strain is "Challenge," and it is all the word denotes.

Peter Henderson & Co., New York.—Mid-summer Catalogue for 1912. Cover illustrations of New Fall-Fruiting Strawberry Americus on front and Strawberries Great Ruby, Glen Mary, Excelsior, Success, Commonwealth and Gandy on back.

Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J.—Classified and Descriptive List of Orchids. This catalogue, issued by this well-known firm of orchid specialists, is finely illustrated and the covers show beautiful portraits in colors of Vanda teres and Vanda Sanderiana.

Yokohama Nursery Co., Yokohama, Japan—1912-1913 Descriptive List of Bulbs, Plants and Seeds. Wistarias form an appropriate cover illustration for this interesting oriental publication. There are plenty of pictures, several of which are in colors and the list comprehensively covers the category of Japan specialties in seeds, bulbs, plants and trees.

CHICAGO NOTES. Convention Activities.

All the florists' mail now going out bear the blue and white convention sticker. Committee meetings are almost a daily occurrence and the final details of the S. A. F. Annual Convention August 20-23 in Chicago, are nearing completion. Geo. Asmus says the souvenir album is ready for the printer and is the finest ever sent out by the S. A. F. The advertisers have responded heartily. Secretary of the S. A. F., John Young, is expected here this week and with his coming the convention will seem fairly begun. About 90 per cent. of the space in the large hall is now sold to those who appreciate the value of advertising.

Ravinia Park has been secured for the convention's Entertainment Day. Ravinia Park, which is called Chicago's "Summer Music Capital," is on the beautiful north shore, 21 miles from Chicago and is the "Dream come true" of Walter Damrosch, being one of the most charming places in the world, and the music, the scenery and the tables of good things all together promise a real treat which Chicago gladly offers its guests at convention time.

Trade Notes.

John Zeck broke ground this week for his new houses in Oak Park, not an extension range but of good size for the valuable ground they occupy.

N. Monsen, 1500 W. Huron St., will open a new store at 3310 Fullerton Ave. Mr. Monsen is a young florist, old in the business, having begun in Norway at the age of 12, later going to Germany and then to America where close application to business has won success. He will operate both stores.

Canger & Gormley took a ten year lease Wednesday, at 412 S. Michigan Ave., in the Fine Arts Building. This is one of the choice locations in the city and has a window 14x12 ft. adjoining the main entrance. Mr. Canger has still a five year lease on the store at 187 N. State St. and has not yet decided what to do with it. He has always attended strictly to business and his advance is a natural result.

At the annual meeting of the Chicago Flower Grower's Association the resignations of Joseph Schoos and F.

Mier from the Board of Directors were accepted, and Fred Schramm of Arlington Heights and Fred Stielow of Niles Center, were elected to fill the vacancies. Fred Schramm is a well known successful grower of carnations and peonies, and Fred Stielow has just completed a new range of modern houses devoted to roses and both will be valuable members of the Board.

Personal.

The two bridegrooms C. L. Washburn and Frank Johnson are back and receiving congratulations.

Miss Anna Wickstrom, who has presided over the store of Otto F. Larson, 63rd St. and Ashland Ave., will hereafter reign over the heart and home of the proprietor instead. The wedding took place June 29th.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Munzing are in Iowa with relatives.—Miss White of Samuelson's is vacationing.—From Winterson's, Adolph Benesch is in Texas; from J. B. Deamud's, Ernest Farley is in Indianapolis, Ind., visiting his home folks and Joe Einwich of Bassett & Washburn's is away to rest.

NEW YORK NOTES.

The Stumpp & Walter Co. anticipate putting up a large display of sweet peas at the Boston show and will be represented by William Sperling.

Alexander B. Scott, with Mrs. Scott, were passengers with Hugh Dickson on the Columbia, Mr. Scott making the trip in order to take stock of the seedlings on Messrs. Dickson's rose nurseries.

The effects of the continued dry spell are visible on all sides, and vegetation is sorely in need of rain. Much of the stock planted this spring will suffer severely unless we soon get a change.

An added attraction in the grounds of the Brighton Beach Hotel is a century plant now coming into bloom. This specimen is being displayed by Condon of Brooklyn, and is attracting the attention of the many thousands of visitors to this popular rendezvous by the sea.

Otto Heineken, representing J.

Hein's Sons, Halstenbek, Germany, is here this week. He reports heavy sales and good prospects for fall.

Owing to the exceptional shortage in crop which we are facing this season, bulk orders will, he thinks, be cut to 20 per cent, a serious outlook.

The town of Freeport, L. I., is contemplating among other improvements the construction of a public park. This is a step in the right direction and indicates a general public trend in the betterment and beautification of small towns as well as large. A public interest in landscape improvement and horticulture in general is a "bright sign of the times."

McHutchison & Co. report the best season in their history of raffia, which is a big item with this firm. Their stock at present is between 400 and 500 bales. Their staff at the temporary premises in Greenwich street are having a busy time just now shipping ferns in flats. James McHutchison sails for Europe on the 13th inst. on the George Washington, his "compagnon de voyage" being Thomas B. Meehan.

Hugh Dickson returned to Europe aboard the Anchor Liner, Columbia, on the 6th inst. In the course of a little chat with Mr. Dickson before his departure, he expressed the great pleasure and enjoyment he had derived from his visit to this country, where he is now so well known among all classes of the horticultural world. The automobile part of the trip out West was made in stages of about 80 to 100 miles per day—the enjoyment of which was none the less enhanced by ideal weather conditions, and it was only at San Jose that excessive heat was experienced where they registered 103. He was great in his praise of Messrs. Burpee's sweet pea ranch at Lompoc where, he remarked, Edwin Lonsdale was doing grand work. There were many beautiful novelties on view, but the one that appealed to him most was a lovely primrose Spencer, which at present goes under the name of Floradale Fairy. It is a genuine primrose throughout with standards perfectly fringed, and, says Mr. Dickson, "is the last thing in sweet peas."

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

David Adam of Dreer's moved his family from Jersey City to West Philadelphia on the 6th inst.

Charles E. Meehan and a number of other Philadelphia florists and near florists went to Lancaster on the 11th inst. to take part in the annual outing of the Lancaster brethren. A full account of this event will appear next week.

Arctotis grandis is the name of the new lavender daisy referred to in this week's market notes. It has petalage very much in form of the African orange daisy. The eye, which is dark also, is much larger than in Dimorphotheca aurantiaca. This item is being grown by John Savage, Gwynedd Valley. Has got length, stems and is entirely different from the Arctotis breviscapa, the yellow annual sort familiar to most of us.

There are horses for sale at Nielsen's. Pretty good horses too—for the shape they are in. Arthur says they have a record, but declines to give figures. Says their records are at least as good as mine. One's named "Bessie," the other "Ready Money." One's blue—the other gray. The reason for the passing of these good and faithful friends—with their wagons and harness—is the recent advent of another autocar for the delivery service. Who will be patriotic? Who will fire the first shot? Shall it be the blue or the gray? Start the bidding, gentlemen.

Raymond Brunswick, a nephew of Bernard Eschner, has joined the forces of M. Rice & Co. He will be thoroughly ground in the elementaries of the business, and if all goes well, we may hope to see in a few years this young man taking his place as one of the factors in this great establishment—the personnel of which holds its place entirely from merit and not from favor. No other policy could have placed this firm in the commanding position it now occupies. It has a fine, well-drilled army of splendid workers, each in his proper place and all pulling together for the glory and profit of "The House of Rice."

Visitors: John Miesem, Elmhurst, N. Y.; F. O. Tuemmler, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Myron Heller, New Castle, Ind.; Fred H. Lemon, Richmond, Ind.; C. B. Coe, D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich.; W. B. Hibbard, Durham Floral Nurseries, Durham, N. C.; Mrs. G. G. Goldback, Lancaster, Pa.; Jno. D. Lewis, Lewis Bros., Wilmington, Del. Antoine Leuthy, Boston, Mass.

POLYPODIUM MANDAIANUM.

LOOKING AFTER DETAIL.

Every man that's living has some aim,
Whether it's high, or low, or sporty, just the same;

Desire to live and gather up the gold,
As our fathers used to do in times of old.

Lots of us are chasing after whales,
Lots of us believe in grand old tales;
Few of us can catch the little sprat
With one swoop in a fedora hat.

Many are the misdeeds that prevail
By not looking after small detail;
When you have a purpose, to be sure,
Looking after small detail is cure.

Everyone can think, and think it twice,
Not a one can think, no matter if he's wise,
Three things at once, and efforts spent
Are lost divided on three different scent,

Now, while I'm at the subject, let me tell
If anything needs doing, do it well —
Do it with a will, and to be sure, Looking after detail is the surest cure.

—A. JABLONSKY.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

Miss Margaret Boyle, of the Centre Market, is now able to attend the market and stay throughout the entire day. Miss Boyle has had quite a siege of it, being ill for nearly two months.

Frank L. Schultz has removed his stock from stall 292 to stall 295, Centre Market. At the latter number he has erected a fine new sanitary tile stand which is very attractive and far superior to the old style stalls of wood.

The delay of Congress in passing the Agricultural Department appropriation bill may result in the failure of the Secretary to obtain seeds for the annual distribution by the Department. Last year 900 tons of seeds were disposed of and the applications for free seeds that are being received would make it appear as though an equal amount would be required this year.

Samuel Everitt is spending his vacation in Centreville, Md., the home of his parents. Walter Hawley leaves for New York and Boston, to be gone about four weeks. Both these young gentlemen are employees of the Gude Bros. Company. O. A. C. Oehmler will spend a part of this month and all of August with his family at his summer home at Colonial Beach, Va.

Quite a number of florists who have their houses in the Anacostia district are interested in the fight being waged by the Anacostia Citizens' Association for a free express delivery system in that section. All express and freight shipments consigned to them are billed only as far as Washington proper and in order to get them to Anacostia, the consignee is called upon to pay an additional cartage fee. Other sections of the District of Columbia now enjoy a free delivery service and the citizens of Anacostia have taken the matter up with the Interstate Commerce Committee.

A GOOD EXHIBITION FLOWER HOLDER.

The new flower vase which is advertised elsewhere in this paper by Messrs. Farquhar is well worth examination by all who are in any way interested in the proper displaying of cut flowers on the exhibition table. We understand that the Massachusetts Horticultural Society has purchased three gross of these vases and some of them may be seen in use at the sweet pea show this week. The metal bottom gives the stability required in so tall a holder and the little device for holding name card will appeal at once to everyone.

FIELD GROWN CARNATION PLANTS

We have them in all stages. Some ready for delivery July 15th, others will be in good condition in August and September. You can place your order now, and we will ship them when you are ready for them. Complete list and quotations on request.

Flower Market Reports

Business has been very BOSTON unprofitable this week.

A few little orders are stringing along into the wholesale markets, but altogether they count up pretty small in the final summing up. Roses burst out flat before they can be got into the cooler. Nothing can be done with carnations and sweet peas, which are in abundance, damp off in the box from the sultry heat. It is the worst period on record as to weather conditions and effect on flowers. The ice dealers are in clover.

Summer conditions pre-
BUFFALO vail and the past week had bad effect on business in general, also on all greenhouse material, the wholesaler having his share of trouble in not only handling the tremendous daily receipts but finding an outlet. Carnations and roses, also outdoor sweet peas were had in quantity and clean-up sales on large lots were not to be had. The bargain sign no longer has an effect on the public and the severe hot weather of the past few days has driven the people to cooler parts, where other things are indulged in. Peonies are just about over and candidum lilies were on for a few days and have had a fairly good sale. There are plenty of Beauties, also a fine lot of summer roses. Kaiserin, Carnot and Maryland have been no finer at any time. Ward and Taft are good but lack a demand. It is a matter of the wholesalers carrying all the stock and having whatever is wanted on urgent calls. The coolers have been overworked for some time and it looks as if a rest should come at an early date.

A very large proportion
CHICAGO of stock sold during the past week is said to have been confined to peonies. Where home-grown peonies were placed in cold storage they are proving all that could be desired and the supply will last well toward the end of July and prices are not below leaving a margin of profit. Those firms not handling peonies are depending upon roses and asters mainly, and the latter are now here in quantity. One house had a consignment of 7000 asters and none were lost, though price was not high, many selling for $1.00 per 100. Lily of the valley is still in demand and very fair stock is offered. Carnations of large size and good color are to be had, their appearance rather exceeding their keeping qualities. The usual varieties of out-door flowers are here. Gladioli of all shades and with tall, strong spikes are offered in plenty, price averaging more satisfactory to buyer than grower. There is plenty of good green.

A MAGNIFICENT LOT OF FIELD GROWN CARNATION PLANTS

We are now booking orders for July delivery from stock selected and grown especially for us, which is in extra fine shape. Our guarantee goes with every Carnation Plant we send out, thus insuring to you the very best of quality and satisfaction.

Business must have CINCINNATI been paralyzed by the heat. Plenty of stock is to be had but few seem to want it in any quantity. Roses and gladioli are good but they are not realizing the prices they should. Carnations are the worst offenders. The local stock is good as a whole but the shipped arrives in a soft condition. None bring a good price.

NEW YORK As is to be expected with the arrival of a genuine heat wave, the comatose state of the market during the past few weeks has shown no signs of increased activity, but adding the situation carefully up, business is really not so bad for the time of year. The supply of all stocks far exceeds the demand, but large quantities of carnations, roses and lily of the valley have been disposed of during the past week on account of important weddings and funerals. There has been a fair supply of asters, all colors and good quality, which found a ready market. Extra Beauties, Brides and Kaisersins have been going well, but this is no weather for Killarneys, Richmonds and similar thin varieties.

PHILADELPHIA Fourth of July with its attendant festivities and stoppage of industry, cut a big hole in last week's overturn. Not such an awful lot of flowers but even at that far too big an influx for the demand. Cornflower, coreopsis, gaillardia in big supply, but very little of these or the big offerings of other outdoor subjects, found a market. The best selling items were asters and water lilies. The rose market was very much overdone. Roses were perhaps an exception to the general rule and seemed to be much more plentiful for the week than in previous years. American Beauty, while really the best roses on the market, showed the effects of the warm weather and did not sell well. Next to Beauty came the double pink and double white Killarneys. Mrs. Taft and Maryland were also good, and, of course, there were some pretty fair Kaisersins. The bulk of the carnations arriving were of poor quality and sold for a few cents a bunch. The few good ones brought fair prices. There are some outdoor gladioli to be had, and these are having their effect on the prices of the indoor stock. In a week or so the outdoor gladioli will dominate the situation and prices will be down to zero. Blue arctotis is a new item. It is a pale lavender daisy with a dark center—very graceful and attractive. Seems to close up at night, but we have not verified this. Gardenias and orchids normal.

ST. LOUIS Markets have been overloaded with stock all during the last week. The hot weather shows its effect on all the stock that comes in. The store men are only buying in small lots now as they have passed a very dull week in all lines. The wholesalers are offering sweet peas at your own price. Roses and carnations suffer greatly from the hot spell and are none too good when shipped in and home-grown stock has the call just now. With a few exceptions all the stock that comes in now is outdoor grown.

WASHINGTON Business, as is usual this time of the year is quite dull, although there is considerable funeral work to be had. The social calendar is practically blank and until the return of the elite in the fall nothing much can be expected. Stock of all kinds is plentiful, although not of the best quality and is offered without price.

Aphine
The Insecticide that kills plant Lice
of every species

The Recognized Standard Insecticide.
Not a cure-all, but a specific remedy for all sap sucking insects infesting plant life, such as green, black, white fly, red spider, thrips, mealy bug, brown and white scale.

Universally endorsed by commercial growers and professional gardeners of reputation, as the insecticide that does excel all.

FUNGINE

"Actions Speak Louder than Words."
So we are willing to let the merit of this comparatively new fungicide speak for itself. We claim it has no equal for mildew, rust and wilt attacking flower, fruit or vegetable plants. A trial will convince you.

$2.00 per Gallon. 75c. per Quart.

Aphine and Fungine are spraying materials, readily soluble in water, used at various strengths, according to directions on each can. They are equally effective in the greenhouse and in the garden.

FIRST we built a range of Iron Frame houses. Then four or so years afterward, this conservatory, which in design harmonized with the architectural treatment of the residence.

Its interior arrangement is quite the most delightful and practical of any we have seen in many a day. It comes the nearest yet to being the ideal scheme. It's out of the question to describe it—but if you are interested we will gladly send you two charming interior views which tell the story.

SEEING how attractive and practical this arrangement is, do you wonder why THE LUTTON PATENT CURVED EAVE method has changed Greenhouse Construction during the past few years? The result has been the most successful house that can be produced; the other concerns who had been producing the same antiquated buildings for years had to simply destroy their patterns as well as their catalogues and start anew. Just ask some of our imitators to show you some of their curved eave houses built before THE LUTTON PATENT was granted; you will then be convinced that you had better consult with me.

"The Kenilworth Strain" of GIANT PANSY SEED

Must not be compared with the flimsy Trimardeau

It is much larger and of good substance; the immense flowers, of $3\frac{1}{2}$ to 4 inches, are of perfect form, and every tint and shade is produced in striking combinations and endless variations of beautiful colors and markings. The Stock Plants are most critically selected. It is rich with shades of brown, bronze, red, mahogany, and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.

A FEW EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS OF PLEASED CUSTOMERS

We have received hundreds of unsolicited letters from our customers praising our Pansy Seed. The following are a few extracts taken from them:

From H. K. Carter, Niles, Ohio.—I ordered seed of you last year and must say that I never saw such Pansies. They were entirely satisfactory in every way.

From M. L. Penwell, Washington, Kansas.—I used your seed last year and they are the best seed and finest bloom I ever saw.

From F. C. Winkelmann, Hillsboro, Ill.—Have tried your seeds several times and find them to be satisfactory. Can recommend them highly.

From C. C. Warburton, Battle Creek, Mich.—Last year I purchased Pansy Seed of you and was very much pleased with the results. I have grown Pansies for years but never had better ones. Please send me some more of the same seed.

From C. V. Wolf, Downers Grove, Ill.—Best mixture of Pansies we had. My customers nearly went wild over them last year. Send seed as soon as possible.

From W. J. M. Edmonds, Auburn, N. Y.—They have given great satisfaction for the past two years that I have bought from you.

From Geo. F. Wright, Bellevue, Pa.—I have grown Pansies for a number of years and have never had any to equal yours. They have been the admiration of my friends and I only hope I will be as successful next year as I was last in having such a beautiful variety.

From J. & A. E. Biram, Provincetown, Mass.—We have had good plants from your seed and hope these will prove equally good.

From Frank W. Doeks, Akron, Ohio.—Last year I bought $3.00 worth of your Giant Pansy Seed, the Kenilworth strain, and I was well pleased with the results; I got over 5,000 plants which were very fine.

From Walkes & Nicholson, Hammon-ton, N. J.—We got our Pansy Seed from you last year; they were fine.

From J. T. Temple, Davenport, Iowa.—The seed procured from you the past two years has given satisfaction.

From Ed. van Reuth, Jr., Baltimore, Md.—My seed from you last year was very satisfactory.

From Silliman Brothers, Syracuse, N. Y.—The Kenilworth strain of Pansy Seed bought of you last year proved entirely satisfactory.

From Bard & Davis, Syracuse, N. Y.—Last year we procured of you two packets, each containing 6,000 seed, of your Pansies. We were well pleased with your strain.

From John A. Newman, Mooresville, Ind.—Must say I raised the finest Pansies last year from the seed you sent me I ever saw; none to equal; compliments were passed every day in regard to those beautiful Pansies.

From M. A. Brooks, Germantown, Phila.—I grew the Kenilworth strain last year; they were the finest I ever had.

From Wm. Garrad, Davenport, Iowa.—The seed I got from you last year was the finest strain I ever grew.

From Mrs. J. H. Deal, Owosso, Mich.—We got your seed last year; they were fine; trust they will be as good this year.

From Edward Lott, Frenchtown, N. J.—I certainly had fine flowers from seed I bought of you last year and could have sold lots more if I had them.

From R. O. Stockbridge & Co., West-boro, Mass.—We were well pleased with the plants grown from your seed last year.

Please mention HORTICULTURE when writing.

From F. W. Wildmann, Fort Morgan, Colo.—The Pansy Seed received from you last winter gave me good returns as they were the finest I ever had.

From Chas. S. S. Sturtevant, Topeka, Kansas.—The plants grown from your seed last spring were all that could be wished for and I was pleased, not only with the size of the blossom, but also with the appearance of the plants. All who bought my plants were well pleased.

From Chas. E. Sanford, Forest Glen, Md.—I had Pansies from your seed this spring and they were the best I ever had and were greatly admired.

From Lucius S. Fife, Shelburne, Falls, Mass.—The Pansy Seed bought of you last year was very satisfactory.

From John Braje, Chicago, Ill.—Last year's seed was good; had fine Pansies.

From L. Palmer, Houston, Texas.—Your seed gave me good results last year so I have sent again this year, hoping to do well this season with them.

From E. A. Holton, Morristown, N. J.—The seed that I purchased of you last year turned out remarkably well in every way so wish to get more.

From Chas. Schuman, Delhi, Ohio.—I want to say that the Pansies raised from seed I bought of you last year were the finest I ever had. Please send seed by return mail.

From F. D. Keyes, Florence, Mass.—I had a package of your seed last year and had them very fine.

From J. Jack, Ash-tabula, Ohio.—The seed I had from you last fall was very good.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Calceolarias

Those who want to grow calceolarias can sow them any time from now and up to the end of September and have fine plants by next spring. Make up some pans by having them well-drained with crocks and filled with a mixture of new loam, leaf mold and sand in equal parts. Sift some of the mixture for the last half-inch on top. When the pans are filled within half an inch of the top they should be thoroughly moistened and allowed to drain, then sow the seed thinly and evenly over the surface. Press with a piece of a board or brick and stand in some shady place and cover with a pane of glass and a piece of paper. When the young seedlings begin to appear they should be placed in a frame or on the side bench of a cool house. In this position they should be shaded quite heavy, but as the fall comes the shading should be made lighter. For the next 8 or 10 weeks they will need the strictest attention as to watering, pricking, etc. When they have made 4 or 5 leaves they can be potted off into small pots in a compost of fibrous loam three parts, leaf mold one part, well decayed cow manure one part, and enough of sand to make it gritty.

Care of Nephrolepis

To have strong healthy plants of this fern they should not have too heavy a shading. They are much better when only given enough shading to break the direct rays of the sun. To maintain a healthful growth you should encourage plenty of moisture in the atmosphere with a liberal supply of water at the roots whenever they may need it. Larger plants that you keep for decorative purposes would be the better for some stimulant in the way of either cow or sheep manure water, made rather weak. This can be applied at first once a week and as the roots become more matted in their pots they should have it twice a week. Smaller plants that have been growing vigorously and have filled their pots with roots should have a shift. Use a rich mixture; say—two-thirds of fibrous loam to one-third of well rotted cow manure and pot firmly. Do not stint in giving ventilation on all favorable opportunities. Now is a good time to increase stock by potting up all the nice runners you can get. At this season there is always an abundance of these runners.

Pansies for Winter Flowering

Where you want pansies for winter flowering they should be sown at once. When buying pansy seed purchase only the best as they are most profitable in the end. Sow the seed either in drills or broadcast in a cold frame on soil that has been well pulverized and made moderately rich. Cover the seed slightly and keep shaded and well watered until they germinate, after which remove shading and sashes so they will not be allowed to "draw." When they are large enough to handle prick them out in other cold frames about four inches apart. Here they can stay until you want to lift them to follow chrysanthemums. To grow well in the winter they like a very light house and where a minimum temperature of 40 to 42 degrees can be maintained.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Adiantums; Callas; Care of Chrysanthemums; Coreopsis for Easter; Double Pansies; Fraesia Bulbs

For a compost use fibrous loam three parts, well decomposed cow manure one part, and after the New Year they can be given liquid manure once a week which will be found very beneficial in giving color and size as well as increasing the number of flowers. See pansy seed advertised this week.

Poinsettias for Pans

Where you have use for a lot of pans and dishes for Christmas trade keep on propagating poinsettias right up to the middle of August. When the cuttings are taken and until they are placed in the cutting bench they should never be allowed to flag. Give them shade and plenty of moisture until they begin to root. Keep a sharp outlook and just as soon as any of them have rooted they should go into small pots as when they are left too long in the propagating bench you are bound to break their roots which always cripples them for some time. When they are potted up keep them shaded with frequent syringings until they begin to make new roots when they can have the fullest light and plenty of ventilation. In 6 or 7-inch pans they always make ideal material for the holiday trade. Do not plant any pans until after the middle of September as they make too much growth when planted earlier. After September they will want a house where they can have a little fire heat.

Orchids

Give your Coelogyne cristata every attention now, such as damping down—which should be done at least three times a day, to encourage a liberal amount of moisture in the atmosphere. Now that the weather is quite warm they should be syringed overhead twice a day—morning and early in the afternoon. This orchid is now in active growth making and pushing lots of roots so where it is possible give them weak liquid manure once a week. Place them where they can be shaded from nine o'clock in the morning until about four in the afternoon as they always make better plants by the fall when exposed to the early morning and late afternoon sun. Give plenty of water at the roots and plenty of ventilation. Many cattleyas such as labiata, Trianae, Schroederiae, etc., that are in full growth will need lots of water at the roots and a syringing once or twice a day now. They like shading as mentioned above.

Schizanthus

Sow the best strain of seed now and you will get nice plants that will flower well during the early winter. Sow in pans where a fine compost of loam and leaf mold are mixed together with a dash of sand. Cover seed quite lightly and press the soil firmly. Place in shady position and cover with a pane of glass until they start to come up when they should have full sun. When they are large enough to handle pot off into small pots, and shift as they may require it until 7 or 8-inch pots are reached. Give them a rich compost of two parts of fibrous loam to one of well-rotted manure and always pot firmly. Keep in a frame and pinch them freely for the next 8 or 10 weeks and you will have nice compact plants.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

George H. Penson

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Penson. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Pot Up Strawberries

Strawberries should be repotted as soon as they fill the three-inch with roots. Do not let them remain in the small pots long enough to become root-bound or a difficulty will be experienced in getting them started in the sixes. No plant grows as it should, if allowed to starve in a small pot. The six-inch pots should previously have been cleaned and now require to be properly drained. This is a point to emphasize in strawberry growing; the pots must be drained thoroughly, or when they are being forced no end of trouble will be caused. Growing at this stage a strawberry relishes lots of water and feed is also applied in liquid form. If this cannot pass and allow the soil to get a shade dryer and absorb a little air, the whole ball will soon turn sour, with such results as will cause failure. Broken pots or rough ashes will answer the purpose, the former preferable. After adjusting the drainage in each pot drop a teaspoonfull of soot on top of it. This will help to keep out worms whose delight it is to stop up all drainage.

As to suitable soil for potting strawberries, one need not be so particular so long as it is sweet and rich. Ordinary loam chopped down from the heap with some lasting manure added (fine bone meal is good) will be all right. Should the loam be heavy and there is any danger of its ramming too hard to allow the water to pass, mix in enough old mushroom bed, previously passed through a three quarter-inch sieve, to keep it open. Needless to say, select the best plants for potting all the time and right from the start use the rammer with vigor. Providing the soil is not wet it will be difficult to make the plants too hard. When potted remove the plants to a level space having an ash bottom and stand them pot thick for a time. This will help retain the moisture around them. Spray the plants over continually to encourage them to get off the mark. The chief aim which should always be kept in mind is to get a good sound well-developed crown before winter.

Mushroom Spawn

Which of the two manufactured mushroom spawn is the best—American or English made—is a question often discussed with some vigor. The very name itself makes one slide up and down the scale of uncertainty. To begin with we must remember there is poor, as well as good spawn found no matter where it is made and, as I have stated before in these columns,—often the spawn is not to blame. Those beds must be right or good spawn will go wrong. Growing both side by side in the same bed will prove what little difference there is. To us the noticeable difference is that the American spawn comes a little earlier, throws up a speedy crop of medium-sized mushrooms and gets through in a short time lacking the recuperative powers of its slower rival. The English spawn has been known to take a week to ten days longer to come and the mushrooms take longer to grow, making up a thicker and larger product. The beds seem to have a good "come back" or later crops in them after a watering. These are distinctions; it is for the growers to say if any are benefits.

Pot Trees

A word in favor of those trees now plunged in the open, subject to the elements, trying to rest in adverse climatic conditions. These which occupied so much time and attention through the spring must not be forgotten now that regular watering and syringing is needed. Do not expect a shower to water these pots as they ought to be watered; it takes a good rain to do this and then the foliage above always takes so much off. This must be taken into consideration, and also the mass of roots confined in a small space. Earlier-forced trees, not having the time to make the quantity of roots the latter ones did, will take a little less water. This should be noted in dull weather. By this time the trees will be free of any "live stock" which may have been infesting them at the time they were brought outside but there are the fungus pests. These can in a measure be prevented by timely applications of Bordeaux mixture or the preparation Fungine extensively advertised in HORTICULTURE. These fungous troubles are the worst things to contend with in peach growing and no "easy street" should be left for them.

A Gardeners' Friend

Who is it? No noble creature, elegantly arrayed, a thing of magnitude and beauty, in this instance. On the contrary, one sometimes hailed with a scream and motions of retreat from the "fair sex," sometimes carried on a shovel by the "braves" of the greenhouse. Who is this insignificant friend with such an introduction? No one else but Mr. Toad. Have you ever watched him making short work of such unwelcome tenants of the greenhouse as sow bugs, crickets, roaches, spiders, caterpillars and bugs of all descriptions, doing it all with lightening rapidity once he has decided on the stunt? These pests find welcome retreat in many parts of our fruit houses, making it difficult to get at them, yet making their presence known at unwelcome times. Now if one or two of our "friends," as I have described them, can be induced to tenant the houses, it is wonderful how fat they will get and how lean (in number) our unwelcome guests become. The charges for this work of extermination are as small as they possibly could be and amount to—a little kindness.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

The Planting

At last! These words uttered with a sigh of relief from the lips of many growers, when the last rose is planted in the benches, and the last wheel-barrow load of old dirt and soil scraped out from under the benches. Looking after the newly planted houses will be quite a relief from the hard work of filling the benches.

Many growers who have a large number of small old-fashioned houses to contend with will find refilling and replanting a none too pleasant job.

Try to connect up the houses so as to have easy access to all the doors on one end at least. Smilax or asparagus can be grown in the connecting houses, which, by the way, should be started now. Set nice strong plants out of 2½-inch pots (if larger just so much better). Do not give these too much soil. Four inches is plenty, more can always be added, and you will find it pays to have room for a little extra soil. This applies especially to the spring of the year when beds dry out so rapidly, and the old soil seems "worn out" as we say. A little mulch of soil, bone, manure and soot, will put new life into things then. But now for the present work.

Beauties

The early-planted houses will now be making a nice growth and will soon call for their second tier of wires. Plants set as we advised some time ago,—say 20 to 24 inches apart may look rather thin as yet, but from the looks of some of ours they will fully make up for it later. Some of the best growers of Beauties in the East are learning that the Beauty is not to be crowded. What is a houseful of wood, so much of it that it can hardly be kept clean, when no stuff is cut? We prefer houses that have less wood and yet cut all the time.

Many growers claim they can make Beauties flower whenever they wish to. No doubt this can be done but we find it pays best to let them grow their own way and producing some all the time. We do not aim to have a great crop for Christmas or for any of the other holidays. It is the average for the season that counts with us. We have known Beauties to bring as good and better prices during January and February than they did at Christmas.

Beauties are unlike other roses. We find they are in a class by themselves. We never try to figure just when to bring in a crop, as we would with Killarneys or other roses. We find that by trying to "set" a house we check so much of the other growths, that whatever we gain by having a crop at a certain time we lose it by checking the shorter growths. There is no other rose that will turn up its nose to improper treatment sooner than our American Beauty. Most roses if abused will produce some blooms at least, but a Beauty will stop and refuse to move nine times out of ten.

Keep a watch on the leaves that touch the surface of the soil in the bench. Pick off all leaves that have a tendency to be flat on the soil. These will be very difficult to syringe and may only breed spider, beside inviting blackspot.

Blackspot

There are so many causes which this disease may be attributed to, that it is impossible to ascertain just what made it appear in a house. We have had no trouble with it whatever except toward spring in some of our solid benches. But in the raised benches and semi-solid benches no blackspot appeared. By propagating from clean healthy plants our young stock is absolutely free from it so we hope we shall have no trouble this coming season.

When tying, scratching, watering,—no matter what you are doing,—and you happen to spy a large blackspot on a yellow leaf among the bottom moist leaves, stop long enough to pick it off. This may seem so small a thing that it may be considered of little importance and yet that very spot may be responsible for a "black-spotted patch" in the bench later on. These big spots may safely be called the seed, and if allowed to remain, will show you what they can do the first time that conditions are favorable. Spraying with ammoniacal copper carbonate, will help keep spot from spreading, but is by no means a cure, and should never be considered as such.

The Early Planted Houses

If you have any houses planted early, say the first of April or earlier, get some manure ready and as soon as these may require it give them a nice mulch of well-decayed manure. Do not use any soil with it, for it is too early in the season for that. If the manure is well decayed and the plants watered before it is applied and again after applying, no damage should be done.

Be careful not to have the plants too dry when applying this mulch or you may have occasion to regret it. We would not advise using any bone meal with this mulching; a little soot would do very nicely, but if the plants are given too much fertilizer early in the season they are likely to become too soft and subject to mildew next fall, when the cloudy moist weather comes. Beauties, too, are apt to become weak and spindling if overfed during the summer. The main object is to protect the young tender feeding roots near the surface of the soil and to keep the benches from drying out too rapidly.

An opening for real artists

Attention is called, in our account of the exhibition of sweet peas in Boston, to the tendency of florists in their decorative work to overload, a failing which is not only expensive but very destructive to graceful artistic effect. This is, of course, nothing new. With the majority of workers in flowers it has been an invariable failing since the infancy of the business. In the early days of the flower trade when the supply was meagre and every available flower represented money the man who could make the least number go the farthest in "making up" was the one who could command the best price for his services. In addition, he was also the one who achieved the most repute as an artist. Today, with the inexhaustible supply of material the economical side of the question makes no very strong appeal and, judging from the examples of decorative work seen at flower shows generally, artistic perception is very weakly developed in the majority of exhibitors. There is, perhaps, no phase of florists work in which education through public trade exhibitions and otherwise is so sorely needed as in this. It may safely be said of the great majority of floral designs put out that one-half of the stock used would, in the hands of a capable artist, make a much more beautiful and appropriate piece.

We endorse most heartily the views expressed by Mr. W. Atlee Burpee in his letter to Senator Penrose, which we published last week, relative to this Bill (S.6850). It would be preposterous to make merchants and manufacturers of the United States pay a higher rate of domestic postage than that at which their competitors abroad may mail their catalogues to any destination here. To the seed and nursery trades, the proposed increase of fifty per cent in the rate of postage would be the imposition of a needless and wrongful hardship. Next to the Bible, there is no book more highly treasured and put to more frequent use in the rural home than the "Seed Book." There, it is an educator and a means of bettering the condition of its recipient by calling his attention to new and improved kinds of crop materials, thus enhancing the value of the products of his land. The average seed or nursery catalogue is really a valuable work, replete with instructions for the growing of crops of all kinds, carefully prepared, printed at great expense, and is vastly more than a mere advertisement or price list. An advance in the rate of postage would tend to reduce its descriptive, cultural and educational features, for which it is now welcomed and preserved as an institution of the rural household. The bulletins of the Department of Agriculture, and we believe too those of the Agricultural Experiment Stations of the various states, are now admitted to the mails free—it is a question whether the seed and nursery catalogues are not accomplishing a work equal in value to both.

On page 88 of this issue appears in full the decision of U. S. General Appraisers as rendered under date of June 20, relative to the classification of "evergreen seedlings" under the tariff act of 1909. This was the result of a protest by R. & J. Farquhar & Co., of Boston, against the levy of twenty-five per centum ad valorem duty on transplanted evergreen seedlings over four years of age and entitles all seedling evergreens regardless of age to free entry. It appears that certain New York importers had come to an agreement with the customs officials, that seedlings over four years old should be classified and become dutiable as nursery stock, and in accordance with this agreement evergreen seedlings exceeding this age were everywhere classified and duty levied as nursery stock. Messrs. Farquhar in their protest contended that such classification was arbitrary, inconsistent, and a contra indication of paragraph 668 of the Customs Tariff Act of August 5th, 1909. They claimed that evergreen seedlings, of any age, were entitled as such to free entry, citing in support of their contention paragraph 264 in which stocks, cuttings or seedlings of pear, apple, quince and the Saint Julien plum, are limited to three-years-old or less. They contended that there was nothing whatsoever in the act to indicate or suggest that Congress had intended any limitation on the age of evergreen seedlings—in fact the limitation of other kinds of seedlings and the absence of any limitation as to evergreen seedlings may be taken as a clear indication that it was the intention of the framers of the Act to leave these seedlings unlimited as to age. We like to allude to this outcome of a protest under circumstances particularly unpromising, because it was won by a Boston house, single-handed. The decision is, of course, one of no small importance to the American nursery trade.

A Great Triumph for the Sweet Pea

Editor of HORTICULTURE:

I feel like asking every lover of the sweet pea, "Have you heard from Boston?" Others may express their gratification as they will, but I feel that we are on the threshold of a new decade in this popular flower. Peace hath its victories as well as war. The banner of loveliness that we saw at Boston was a glad token to the men who have put their faith in the Spencer type of the sweet pea. From Countess of Spencer to Earl of Spencer we have the greatest chapter in the history of the developed form of this flower. They are doing wonderful things in England, and now I wish we had flashed a message to the men over them, that the American Sweet Pea Society had proven itself their worthy competitor. It was not the mere vision of color that spread out before the visitor at Horticultural Hall, Saturday, that characterized the show; it was the genuine Spencer quality of the flowers shown that made the 1912 exhibit a floral event. It is a curious fact that for at least sixteen years the interest in this flower has been at such a low ebb in Boston that the Massachusetts Horticultural Society has not cared to invite anybody to come and talk about it. Hail to the fact that its day has come again.

Those who have recently been across the water to see what the successors of Henry Eckford have done bring back such a contagion of enthusiasm that their description of length and of stems, and lustiness of haulm are laughable. They say the latter suggests a cabbage leaf, and the former require a yard stick to measure them. But, making all due allowance for exaggeration, they have certainly made a floral sensation of what was once the modest sweet pea.

If any one here in America asks, "What is this wonderful thing?" the answer is this: the sweet pea has made periodic leaps forward as the result of scientific crossing. It took Mr. Eckford ten years or more to bring it to what we have termed the Grandiflora type. In this type the increased size and substance gave it the graceful hooded form. And with all Mr. Eckford's persistent work it held this form for a decade or more. And then began the story of a still more remarkable decade. Since Silas Cole discovered in 1901 the first Spencer blossom among his Grandiflora stock, and named it the Countess of Spencer, almost every color has lined itself up to this magnificent type. As if by a preconcerted signal every variety drops the grandiflora form and come forth in this Spencer dress. Nature keeps her own counsels,—who can tell why both in Great Britain and California such a general break in form should simultaneously occur? Nobody had said,—Go to, let us create a new type of sweet pea. Nature held concealed the secret, that the time had come to re-enforce this flower with a new measure of vital fluid to win for it a new chapter of enthusiasm and admiration. Its loveliness and grace are preserved, while its scope of size and color is greatly enhanced. We thought the hooded form was lovely, but the waved form is more lovely. And it indulges in other variations, putting increased vitality into duplex form, although these variations are neither popularly or commercially regarded with much favor.

But the real animus of my present writing is this,—Just where are we now in America as touching the sweet pea? We cannot line up with Great Britain in one respect. Probably their finest exhibition flowers come from seed stock naturalized at home, with an island climate that greatly favors them. Their specialists go right on with the work Henry Eckford began. We shall look to them to carry and hold the flower up to its greatest potential beauty. The Boston show of last Saturday showed where we actually are in this country. It showed that the American Sweet Pea Society is well on its feet. The confidence with which we turn our faces to the Boston show of 1913 is greater than ever. The exhibit of 1912 was a phenomenal success. Our sweet pea men "produced the goods." I have heretofore written in a solicitous strain; this time I write in the most sanguine vein. Great praise is due the officers of the society, and congratulations should be extended to the Massachusetts Horticultural Society that they have lent their aid to this historic exhibition. And to the man whose faith in the Spencer Sweet Pea has been greatest and whose devotion has been unbounded,—W. Atlee Burpee,—we owe more than to anyone else. No flower ever had a more inviting opportunity for popularization than the sweet pea of today, and the Boston show proved that it can be popularly grown.

SWEET PEA WILT AND MILDEW.

Editor HORTICULTURE:

Dear Sir—In a paper read by Prof. Taubenhaus, of the Delaware Agricultural Experimental Station, on sweet pea diseases before the meeting of the American Sweet Pea Society, in Boston, on Saturday last, he stated that while he had tried many remedies to control what is commonly known as wilt and mildew, which affects the sweet peas, he had, however, not yet found anything which would give satisfactory results as a cure.

The writer approached the speaker after the meeting to inquire of him whether he had ever tried the fungicide Fungine. He admitted that he had never heard of it until that day, but had been approached by several gardeners who had spoken favorably of this product and told him of their results obtained, and he expressed a willingness to try out this material to learn for himself of its merits. I will say Fungine is used today by men who have been prize winners at the two important sweet pea shows here in the east, and who do not hesitate to endorse it highly for the blights which at times overtake the sweet pea plants.

You undoubtedly will give space to the article read by Prof. Taubenhaus, and I ask that you give some space to this communication to avoid any misapprehension going abroad that there are no remedies today for the sweet pea diseases. I do not believe it was the speaker's intention to create this impression, but what he really meant was that he had not yet come across a remedy. I believe that after this next year's experiments he will readily report otherwise.

Yours truly,

M. C. EBEL.

JULY.

When the scarlet cardinal tells
Her dreams to the dragon fly,
And the lazy breeze makes a nest in the trees,
And murmurs a lullaby,
It is July.

When the tangled cobweb pulls
The cornflower's cap awry,
And the lilies tall lean over the wall
To bow to the butterfly,
It is July.

When the heat like a mist veil floats,
And poppies flame in the rye,
And the silver note in the streamlet's throat
Has softened almost to a sigh,
It is July.

When the hours are so still that time
Forgets them and lets them lie Near pink petals 'till the night stars sink
At sunset in the sky,
It is July.

—Susan Hartley Scott.

AMERICAN SWEET PEA SOCIETY

On another page of this issue appears an interesting review of what the American Sweet Pea Society was able to demonstrate at its exhibition in Boston last week, from the pen of a gentleman recognized in this country and abroad as a leading authority on the subject. On that topic, therefore, we need to say but little, other than to compliment the members of the society on the magnificent showing they made in the face of most adverse conditions that were beyond human control and to congratulate Boston on its selection as the location for the next annual feast of sweet peas.

The Meeting.

The annual meeting of the National Sweet Pea Society of America was called to order by President William Sim at 4 P. M. on Saturday, July 13, in the committee room at Horticultural Hall, Boston, about 75 gentlemen being present. A brief address of cordial welcome was made by Wm. J. Stewart and then President Sim presented his annual address. The secretary, Harry A. Bunyard, made a general statement on the growth and work of the organization during the year and was followed by Prof. A. C. Beal of Cornell University, who reported on the trial grounds, giving a brief outline of what had been accomplished during the past season.

Nomination of officers was the next business. W. Atlee Burpee made an eloquent appeal for Wm. Sim to succeed himself as president and M. C. Ebel nominated J. C. Vaughan for vice-president. On motion of Mr. Burpee these gentlemen together with Secretary Bunyard, Treasurer Boddington and Recording Secretary Pepper were unanimously elected as the officers for the coming year. For the next meeting place invitations were presented from the Chicago Florists' Club and Chicago Horticultural Society on behalf of their city—from the Elberon Horticultural Society on behalf of Asbury Park, N. J., and by Wm. J. Stewart for Boston and Boston was selected by a unanimous vote. After a somewhat amusing debate it was voted to change the name of the organization from National Sweet Pea Society of America to American Sweet Pea Society. Prof. J. J. Taubenhans of the Delaware Agri. Coll. Exper. Sta., then read his paper on Our Present Knowledge of the Sweet Pea Diseases and Their Control, which was closely listened to and then came adjournment.

The Luncheon.

On Saturday evening the visitors were entertained by the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston at an informal luncheon in one of the basement halls in Horticultural Building. About 200 were present, a fair sprinkling of ladies being in evidence and the affair was an exceptionally happy and enjoyable occasion. President Thomas Pegler of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club extended a few brief words of hospitable welcome and called upon Wm. J. Stewart to officiate as toastmaster. Brief and full of snap and wit were the responses of the various speakers called upon and applause was frequent and spontaneous. When President Sim was presented as "the man who does things" he received an ovation of which any man might well be proud. W. Atlee Burpee was given another rattling reception as he told of the big things that were being accomplished in California. J. K. M. L. Farquhar waxed eloquent as he voiced the generous welcome of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and W. A. Manda, fresh from his triumphs across the Atlantic also brought down applause unstinted. Rev. W. T. Hutchins made a splendid and inspiring address which was really the gem of the evening. E. H. Wilson made a most interesting little talk on the new hardy plants he had collected in China, Ed. Jenkins voiced the appreciation of the Lenox fraternity. Thomas Logan, president of the Association of Gardeners was an excellent spokesman for that organization. B. Hammond Tracy presented the congratulations of the Gladiolus Society and last came President Pegler with a delightful little speech of felicitation.

At intervals throughout the evening songs were contributed by Miss Elizabeth C. Edmands and Miss May E. Bews, and violin solos by Miss Jennie A. Corson. These ladies all displayed talent and ability such as is rarely heard on occasions of this kind and encores were almost insatiable. One Scotchman was heard to say that he now realized that he had never heard "Annie Laurie" in his life until he heard it from Miss Corson's violin. The hall was elaborately decorated with plants and flowers, sweet peas by thousands adorning the tables.

Aside from this Club affair many little private entertainments were extended to the visitors—on Sunday especially, when an auto trip through the parks, a visit to Wm. Sim's and Thos. Roland's places, and to Mr. Tracy's gladiolus gardens were enjoyed by many. Come again.

The Exhibition.

The spacious halls of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society were filled to the limit. The scene was a sparkling one and had the weather not played such a scurvy trick on Wm. Sim and Duncan Findlayson, ruining the hundreds of big tubs and boxes of growing peas which were to have transformed the largest hall into a sweet pea garden, it was very evident that the contributions of flowers would have far exceeded the capacity of the building. It is said that Mr. Sim alone had to send three truck loads to the dump as useless. Secretary Bunyard told us there were no less than 900 entries and he was busy the greater part of Friday night getting them in order. It was a big task. Robert Cameron as exhibition manager had his hands full and accomplished what seemed almost an impossibility without friction or fuss. The new Jones Patent exhibition vase proved especially well adapted for the display of sweet peas and very many were in use.

The Spencers made a much more effective impression than the Grandifloras and there were some remarkable displays from New England points remote from Boston which had escaped the destructive storm of Thursday and where the heat spell had been less violent.

As to the arrangement of the flowers there was evidence on all sides that education is still needed. The display by Burpee was commented upon favorably as an object lesson in breaking away from the old beaten track of stuffing quantities of bloom into small vases and placing them in flat array on the tables. Exhibits where sweet pea foliage with tips and tendrils were used among the flowers were the more pleasing. The mantels tables, baskets, hampers, etc., in the retailers' section showed evidence of the same great fault, with but few exceptions, many of them being overloaded with probably five times as many flowers as would have been required for graceful effect. The judges evidently had this prominently in mind for they favored the simpler arrangements in every instance. The tables taking first and second awards were beautiful in their simplicity and delicacy. H. F. Michell's pagoda arrangement in the lobby made a very good effect. In addition to the exhibitors named in the appended award list there were many showy displays entered for exhibition only, among these being a show of lily of the valley and peas by T. J. Grey & Co., a collection of about 60 named varieties of peas from Stump & Walter, a similar one of about 75 named varieties from Peter Henderson & Co. and a collection of peas, snapdragon and hollyhocks from Jos. Breck & Sons.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society supplemented the American Sweet Pea Society's schedule with a generous list of prizes for sweet peas. The table decorations alluded to in the foregoing paragraph came under this section, also. As will be seen by the list of prize awards which follow, the competitors in the various classes were mostly the same as in the Sweet Pea Society's competition. There were, however, some other displays of the Horticultural Society calling for more than passing notice. Chief among these was the display of Lilium myriophyllum, which filled the stage in the lecture hall with a richly beautiful grouping of hundreds of blooms, the aroma of which faintly pervaded the entire hall. This display won for the exhibitors, R. & J. Farquhar & Co., the rare award of the Mass. Horticultural Society's gold medal. Four other beautiful Wilson introductions—Lilium Duchartrei, L. Chinense, L. Bakerianum and L. Sutchuenense, won distinction also as the following list of awards shows:

LIST OF AWARDS.

Private Gardeners—Section A.

Joseph Breck & Son's silver cup, value $50, 12 vases sweet peas, Miss Fanny Foster.
R. & J. Farquhar & Co.'s prizes. Six vases, 6 Spencer varieties, Mrs. T. D. Richardson, W. D. Sloane.
Thos. J. Grey Co.'s prize, cut glass bowl, vase of 10 Spencer varieties, W. D. Sloane.
Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co.'s prizes, 20 vases, 20 varieties, Winthrop Ames, W. B. Field, H. E. Converse.
Jerome B. Rice Seed Co.'s prize, Vase of White Spencer, S. P. Shottel.
Vaughan's Seed Store, silver cup, 8 vases, 8 Spencer varieties, S. P. Shottel.
Arthur T. Boddington, cup and prizes, vase, a collection of 25 varieties, Giraud Foster, S. P. Shottel, Hon. Seth Low.
Watkins & Simpson prize, 6 vases Spencer or Unwin, Mrs. J. S. Kennedy.
National Sweet Pea Society's medals and cash. For display covering 24 square feet, S. P. Shotter, W. J. Clemson.

In the 8 classes for Spencers in specified colors, first prizes were won by Mrs. J. S. Kennedy, Miss Fanny Foster, S. P. Shotter, Mrs. T. O. Richardson, Giraud Foster.

In the 6 classes for Grandiflora types in specified colors, first prizes were won by Giraud Foster only.

Private Gardeners or Amateurs—Section B.

Mrs. Seth Low's silver cup. For collection, all types, Hon. Seth Low, W. D. Sloane.

W. Atlee Burpee cup. 12 vases, 12 varieties, Giraud Foster.

W. Atlee Burpee prizes. Spencer type introduced 1912, G. Foster, S. P. Shotter, Miss Foster.

W. Atlee Burpee prizes. Grandiflora type, S. P. Shotter, E. L. Lewis.

Peter Henderson & Co.'s prizes. For fifteen varieties of Spencer, 12 spikes each, Mrs. W. B. Leeds, S. P. Shotter, G. Foster, W. A. Merrill, G. C. Atwood.

J. Horace McFarland Co.'s prize, 12 vases, 6 Spencer, 6 Grandiflora, W. J. Clemson.

Stumpp & Walter Co.'s prizes. 6 vases of Spencer, Mrs. T. J. Emery, G. Foster, W. D. Sloane.

Section C was devoted to amateurs who do not employ a gardener regularly, do their own gardening and do not sell flowers. The classes were well filled and the prizes worthily won.

Commercial Growers—Section D.

Vase of 100 sprays Countess Spencer. The Penn silver cup, to H. F. Calder.

Six vases, 50 sprays to the vase. Boston Cut Flower Co.'s silver cup, to H. F. Calder.

Twenty vases, 20 varieties. M. J. Tuohy's silver cup, to Marion C. Collins; National Sweet Pea Society prize to H. F. Calder.

Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co.'s gold medal for 20 vases, 20 varieties, to H. F. Calder.

Henry Comley, cut glass bowl, for 12 varieties, to H. F. Calder.

The Boston Flower Exchange, Inc., prizes. Six vases, 50 sprays to a vase, Mt. Desert Nurseries, H. F. Calder, J. N. Lipman.

Boston Co-operative Flower Market prizes. Six cases, 25 sprays to a vase, Mt. Desert Nurseries, H. F. Calder.

Thos. J. Grey Co.'s prize. Three vases, 50 sprays, to H. F. Calder.

Henry F. Michell prize. Three vases, 50 sprays, to J. N. Lipman.

Section D, classes 12 to 23 for vases of 50 sprays each, in specified colors, were captured by Mt. Desert Nurseries, with the exception of one which was won by H. F. Calder.

Retailers—Section E.

Basket of sweet peas. Boston Co-operative Flower Market's silver cup, awarded to Wax Bros; second prize awarded to Henry Comley.

Mantel decoration, silver medal and cash to Wax Bros. Bronze medal and cash to Boston Cut Flower Co.

Bridal bouquet. First, Boston Cut Flower Co.; second, Wax Bros.

Hamper. First, H. Comley; second, Wax Bros.

Corsage. First, Boston Cut Flower Co.; second, S. Hoffman.

Centerpiece. F. Michell Co.'s silver medal to Penn, the Florist; second, H. Comley.

School Children—Section F.

F. R. Pierson cup, to Saugus High School.

S. J. Goddard cup, to Normal Practice School, Framingham.

James Wheeler cup, to Wilson School, Natick.

The prizes offered by The Saugus Home and School Association for Saugus were practically all awarded, as were also all the Gardeners' and Florists' Club prizes, the Joseph Breck & Sons, H. F. Michell Co.'s and Doubleday, Page & Co.'s prizes for children.

Open and Miscellaneous Classes—Section G.

President William Sim's prize. For the best display in pots, tubs or boxes, Duncan Finlayson.

Lunt Moss Co.'s prize. Display, H. F. Michell.

C. C. Morse & Co.'s silver cup, for finest collection (seed trade only), to W. Atlee Burpee Co.; second, National Sweet Pea Society's silver medal, to A. T. Roddington; third, National Sweet Pea Society's bronze medal, to Stumpp & Walter Co.

POLYPODIUM MANDIANUM SUPERBUM.

Winner of a First Class Certificate at Holland House Show.

Dreer prize for vase of Queen Alexandra Spencer, S. P. Shotter, G. Foster.

Dreer prize for Juanita Spencer, G. Foster, S. P. Shotter.

National Association of Gardeners' cup for 12 vases in 12 varieties, to Miss M. T. Cockcroft; second, J. W. Pepper.

For the most meritorious exhibit of sweet peas, the N. S. P. S. A.'s gold medal was awarded to W. Atlee Burpee.

Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston.

The grand annual picnic of the club will be held at Cunningham Park, East Milton, on Wednesday, July 24, 1912.

To reach picnic grounds take Milton and Ashmont cars at Park street or Dudley street, then at Milton Lower Mills take East Milton car to entrance to park. Via steam cars take train at South Station for East Milton. It is then about 10 minutes' walk, or you can take car for Milton Lower Mills, getting off at park entrance.

The prizes consist of a selection of valuable and useful articles donated by our many friends.

We hope every member of the club will be present with wives and families and make it your business to invite your friends, whether in the garden, greenhouse, store wholesale or retail, seedsman; in fact, everybody connected with the profession in any way help make this a banner picnic. We have the grounds and the prizes. All we want is the crowd. Do your part.

Lancaster County Florists' Club Picnic.

With an ideal day the outing was a glorious success.

First came the beautiful ride from Lancaster to Pequea. At Pequea the first greeting was a well-filled picnic table to which ample justice was done, after which the time was spent sight-seeing. At 4.30 a substantial dinner was served, after which adjournment was made to the dancing pavilion, where games were indulged in.

Paul Weaver, son of Elmer Weaver, won first in the peanut running match and Robert Kohr, son of Frank Kohr, won second prize. In the running race Frances Moore won the prize for girls, Mrs. Albert M. Herr the first in women's race and Mrs. Brandt of York second. In the men's running race Wm. Beamenderfer won first and Harry Rohrer, treasurer of the club, second. In the general peanut scramble open to everybody, Miss Weaver won first. After the games we danced and if the florists of the United States had known it there would not have been room in the galleries for the on-lookers. Our Philadelphia and Chester County guests distinguished themselves on the dancing floor and everyone had a good time until about an hour before our car was due for the return trip and then down came the welcome rain just late enough not to spoil the fun and in time to cool it off for the trip home.

The committee of arrangements were Frank Kohr, Elmer Weaver, Willis Girvin, Edw. F. Law, Lemon Landis and Albert M. Herr. From Chester County we had: Wm. Swayne, C. P. Barnard, E. C. Marshall, James Brown, Jr., J. M. Palmer; from Philadelphia, S. S. Pennock, Charles E. Meehan and George C. Watson; from York, Mr. and Mrs. Brandt; from Shiremanstown, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Rupp.

ALBERT M. HERR.

Below, George C. Watson relates some of his sensations on this occasion:

In our innocence we thought it was the peaceful Conestoga we were racing around. Instead, it was the Pequea—another tributary of the Susquehanna. It was a blood-curdling trolley ride; in any case, you could look down a mile deep among the tree tops, and imagine what would happen if a cog slipped! We had several thousand kinds of heart throbs before we finally got to the end of the journey.

Lancaster County, however, is a peaceful and picturesque paradise. With all our heart we wished we had been among the pioneer farmers of Lancaster County two hundred years ago and pre-empted our share of that land. Pequea is a miniature Atlantic City in its way for Central Pennsylvania. They have cottages and bungalows, terraced all along the hillsides above the river and more being built every minute. Boating and bathing without limit. On the other hand, back in the woods were copperheads and any amount of botanical resources.

To this outing came the trade and all the old settlers for fifty miles around, in autos, in wagons, on horseback and by trolley until we had a real old convention. It made one imagine he was again in old Scotland where every parish has about a dozen different and distinct and only real religions! The poke bonnets looked good to me. We saw no clergymen, but there were lots of shady lanes. So wags the world! May the goddess of good fortune still continue to watch over winsome Lancaster.

GEORGE C. WATSON.

Cook County Florists.

The Cook County Florists' Association had a successful initial picnic July 14th. The grove was visited by about 400 florists and their friends during the afternoon and evening and the program was carried out without anything to seriously mar the event. A collision between the runners in one of the races makes John Zech a temporary sufferer, but like a good sportsman, he does not complain. The weather was ideal. All expenses were met and a neat sum left over.

Winners in the races were as follows:

Girls—6 years and under, R. Keimel, Alice Henderson; 10 years and under, Esther Keimel, Alice Henderson; 15 years and under, L. Koropp, M. Koropp.

Boys—6 years and under, Fred Ottenbacher, R. Koropp; 10 years and under, M. Pallaskey, D. Driscoll; 15 years and under, J. Lipp, R. Wittey.

Single ladies—Miss Ambler, Miss W. Jacobs.

Married ladies—Mrs. Olsen, Mrs. Plank. Fat men—Frank Potocka, M. Mayer. 150-yard dash—L. Koropp, Jr., W. Pagels. Sack race—L. Koropp, Jr., J. Jacobs. Pie eating contest—L. Koropp, Jr., J. Jacobs.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF GARDENERS.

The summer meeting of the board of directors of the National Association of Gardeners, was held in Horticultural Hall, Boston, on Saturday afternoon, July 13th. After disposing of the routine business before the session and deciding on holding the annual convention during the early part of November, the exact date and place to be announced later, adjournment followed to enable the members of the National Association present to attend the meeting of the American Sweet Pea Society, to which they had been earlier invited. In the evening the members were entertained at an informal banquet, together with the members of the Sweet Pea Society, by the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston.

On Sunday, the day following, several members of the National Association with others, enjoyed an automobile tour of the city's parkways and parks, also a visit to the Arnold Arboretum, the newly-elected superintendent of parks, Mr. James B. Shea, accompanying and entertaining the visitors at one of the park inns. Our members returned to their homes even more impressed than heretofore that to the gardener Boston leads as the city of genuine hospitality.

CHICAGO FLORISTS' CLUB.

An adjourned meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held July 11, over 50 members being present.

The evening was devoted to discussion of the proposed changes in the by-laws and to the reports of the S. A. F. convention committees. D. A. Robertson, chairman of Ladies' Entertainment Day Committee, reported favorably on the South Shore Country Club and the matter held for further consideration.

W. N. Rudd, chairman badge and ticket committee reported selection made and 3000 ordered. E. F. Winterson reported that sports and pastimes committee had their plans all ready for the O. K. of C. Graham, chairman S. A. F. sports committee. Geo. Asmus asked for any further suggestions for the souvenir album. E. A. Ollinger reported the baseball team complete, and P. J. Foley spoke of the outing at Ravinia Park.

An invitation was telegraphed to the National Sweet Pea Society at Boston, to hold its next meeting here.

Next meeting will be held July 25.

J. W. Page, Paul Diebold, James Fisher, Tony Einwech, G. E. Raedlein, A. L. Randall and S. G. Anderson were elected to membership.

ST. LOUIS FLORIST CLUB.

At the meeting on Thursday afternoon, July 11th, all the officers were in attendance and a large number of members when President Windler called the meeting to order. Trustee Weber reported that the trustees had completed all arrangements for the annual outing for Wednesday, July 17,

FERN GROUP BY W. A. MANDA AT INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.

Winner of Silver Cup for 12 Specimen Ferns and First Prize for 6 New Ferns at Preister's Park near Belleville, Ill. C. E. DeWever of the Bulletin Committee made a favorable report. Fred H. Weber, S. A. F. State vice-president reported on transportation matters pertaining the coming convention and a vote was taken in favor of going by the Wabash R. R. Eight applications for membership were received. Officers were nominated as follows: President Windler having declined reelection, the nominees for this office were Fred H. Weber and Jules Burdet; vice-president, Chas. Young and Gus. Grossart; secretary, J. J. Beneke and W. C. Young; treasurer, W. C. Smith and C. Bergesterman; ofr two trustees F. J. Fillmore, John Connon, Will Ossick, Hugo Werner and F. Venne-mann, were placed in nomination. The next business was two discussions—one led by C. E. DeWever on Relative value of Overhead and Sod Irrigation, and the other by Henry Emunds on Growing Chrysanthemums Late and Early. Interesting discussions followed. The next meeting will be on August 8 at 2 P. M.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The Greek American picnic of the New York florists on July 8 was a great success.

The N. Y. and N. J. Association of Plant Growers had a dinner and theatre party at Coney Island, July 18.

The Albany (N. Y.) Florists' Club will have a family clam bake the latter part of August. The regular August meeting of the Club will be held at Henkes Bros' place in Newtonville.

President Joseph A. Manda has appointed Frank H. Traendly, C. B. Weathered, W. F. Sheridan, C. H. Totty, I. S. Hendrickson, Robert Koehne and A. L. Miller as the Nominating Committee of the New York Florists' Club.

The monthly meeting of the Westchester and Fairfield Society was held in Greenwich, Conn., Friday, July 12th. Sweet peas were greatly in evidence that night, and a vote of thanks was given to all the exhibitors. The annual outing will take place on Wednesday, August 7th, at Edward's Hotel, Rye Beach. Information and tickets can be secured before July 25th from the outing committee secretary, W. J. Sealey, Port Chester, N. Y.

PRESENT KNOWLEDGE OF SWEET PEA DISEASES AND THEIR CONTROL.

A paper by J. J. Taubenhaus, Delaware College Agricultural Experiment Station, Newark, Del., read before the American Sweet Pea Society, Boston, July 13, 1912.

It is indeed a great privilege and pleasure for me today to address you on a topic which I am sure interests us all alike. I am also glad to take this opportunity to express to you in behalf of the Delaware College Agricultural Experiment Station, and of the University of Pennsylvania our sincerest appreciation of the kindness of all the seedsmen who have so generously sent us sweet pea seeds and thus founded a nucleus for our investigations of the diseases of the sweet pea. I am a lover of flowers, and especially a lover of the sweet pea. The more of this flower I saw the more convinced did I become that it is far from being as free from insect and fungus attacks as the majority of the seedsmen and growers honestly but erroneously believe. In some of our best written manuals on sweet peas the topic of insect and fungus diseases hardly occupies one-quarter of a page. That the sweet pea is becoming more popular with the American people needs no proof. If once we grow sweet peas we shall grow them continuously. However, most amateurs, for reason either of lack of space or unknowingly, grow their sweet peas in the same lot year after year. The result is that disease set in and make it impossible any longer to grow sweet peas on that same place. Immediately, the seeds are blamed and the customer begins changing trade from seedsmen to seedsmen, but with no better results. Thus, lack of information on the part of the grower or amateur on the one hand and the slowness of the seedsmen to admit that the sweet peas may be troubled by diseases on the other, causes the trade invariably to suffer. Hence, when considered purely on an economic basis, the seedsmen are the losers. For whatever disease the seedsmen is willing to admit, he usually throws the blame to high feeding or to the dry weather. From inquiries sent out to most of the seedsmen who grow sweet peas in this country, only two very vaguely admitted that their sweet peas were troubled with blight. We do not for one minute doubt the truth of the statements of all these gentlemen, but we believe that if the seedsmen took this matter more seriously they would soon realize that their interests are at stake. We should feel highly gratified and our efforts would be well repaid if we could impress you with the fact that sweet peas suffer from diseases caused by either insects or parasitic fungi. It is to the benefit of the seedsmen and the well being of the trade to admit these facts and recognize the necessity of investigating these diseases and finding remedies for them, and of disseminating broadcast the results of these findings to all those interested in them.

Before entering into the discussion proper of the diseases of the sweet pea, I wish to state that the Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station, in co-operation with the University of Pennsylvania, made it possible for me to carry on, for the last two years, investigations of the diseases of the sweet pea. The information which we are about to give is of necessity of a preliminary nature, since we have by no means exhausted the subject. Nevertheless, we believe that we have gathered enough to justify the presentation of this paper. The information is first hand, as it is all the result of our personal investigations and studies in both field and laboratory. In Newark, Del., we now have one-half acre of sweet peas devoted exclusively to the study of the diseases.

Obituary.

Charles E. Brinton.

Charles E. Brinton, of George W. Brinton & Sons, florists, Wilmington, Del., died suddenly on June 30 in Benton, Arizona. He was 51 years of age and unmarried.

George Farrant.

On July 3, George Farrant, manager of the Pleasantview Greenhouses, Madisonville, Ky., dropped dead in the street. He was born in Devonshire, England, fifty-four years ago. His wife and three children survive him.

Frank D. Voris.

Frank D. Voris of Neoga, Ill., once president of the Illinois Horticultural Society, was buried on July 9. He was a frequent attendant at University of Illinois meetings, particularly in connection with the Illinois Horticultural Society. He had been in feeble health for several years.

Joseph Wetzler.

Joseph Wetzler, in charge of the conservatories of Dr. H. B. Jacobs, 11 West Mount Vernon Place, Baltimore, Md., died on July 4, from the result of a fall down an elevator well at the home of Dr. Jacobs. He was born in Germany where he learned gardening and came to this country in 1885. He was 53 years of age.

Mrs. A. S. Burns.

Mrs. A. S. Burns, wife of Alex. S. Burns, Woodside, N. Y. and mother of A. S. Burns, Jr., of Spring Valley, N. Y., died on July 12. The funeral took place on Tuesday, July 16th, at Mt. Kisco. Mrs. Burns has never recovered from the effects of an almost fatal trolley car accident several years ago and has been a constant sufferer physically and from nervous shock ever since.

NEWS NOTES.

Clintonville, Ohio.—The North Side Floral Co., A. C. White, proprietor, Plantangy street, has begun business here.

Ansonia, Conn.—Thomas J. Mooney, proprietor of the Ansonia Floral Co., has purchased the flower and truck farm of Frank L. Hotchkiss, on the Seymour road.

Rockton, Ill.—Lightning struck the greenhouses of J. H. Farnsworth on June 29 and two houses were destroyed. Loss partially covered by insurance.

THE HOLLAND HOUSE SHOW.

The summer show of the Royal Horticultural Society is always a popular fixture in the society's calendar. The three days' show, held in the grounds of Holland House, Kensington, Eng., on July 2, 3 and 4, was far in advance of any preceding ones which have taken place here. Eight spacious marquees, with improved methods of ventilation, were erected. There were 143 exhibitors, the leading specialists in each branch of horticulture being well represented. The principal tent presented a charming spectacle, with its artistically arranged floral groups. The wall, court, and water gardens were splendid examples of the highest form of garden craft. The orchids were not numerous, but well known exhibitors including Sander & Son, St. Albans; Mansell & Rawdon, York; Stuart Low & Co., Bush Hill Park; and others contributed from their valuable collections. The season has been very favorable for rose culture, and this section was one of the best ever seen at Holland House. Sweet peas were also a striking feature. The excellent show of herbaceous plants was in keeping with the high standard which prevailed. The characteristic features of a Dutch garden were faithfully represented by Piper & Son, of Bayswater, in the outdoor section. Waterer & Sons, of Bagshot, had a collection of handsome large yews in tubs; Russell of Richmond, Surrey, made an admirable show of tree ivies.

Carter & Sons, of Raynes Park, Surrey, laid out a picturesque Japanese garden. Some remarkably well grown bay trees in tubs formed an imposing avenue, these coming from the nursery of Veitch & Sons. A group of Araucaria Silver Star, by Rochford & Sons, attracted considerable attention. The Coronation challenge cup was won by James Veitch & Sons, for fruit trees in pots and stove plants. The Wigan challenge cup was won by John Mattock of Oxford, for roses. A silver Flora medal was allotted to W. A. Manda, South Orange, New Jersey, U. S. A., for a splendid group of foliage plants. Included was a fine specimen of Polypodium Mandaianum, which was awarded a first-class certificate.

W. H. ADSETT.

Miss Nora Ohl of the Primrose Flower Shop, Ardmore, who has been established in that progressive and populous Phila. suburb for some time, and has built up a good business in the retail flower line will erect a conservatory 18x68 feet and also a new store 20x70 feet on a lot recently purchased located near the station. The Foley Mfg. Co. have the contract.

CHICAGO NOTES.

New Roses Seen in Chicago Now.

As the summer advances and the hot weather puts all stock to a severe test, it is interesting to note the effect upon the several comparatively new varieties of roses being tried here. Poehlmann Bros. are always ready to devote time and space to new varieties and just now Lady Hillingdon is seen on their counters. If a rose that holds its color without fading and is carried on a two and a half and three-foot stem is a success, then Lady Hillingdon is one. In the store it is said this rose had been considered doubtful, but that it holds up well in color, foliage and stem in a July crop causes the verdict to be favorable.

Prince de Bulgarie (also called Mrs. Taft and Antoine Rivoire) is now proving a better shipper than Killarney, having more body. Killarney Queen is promising well, keeping good color in this hot weather. Double Pink Killarney is coming now in large quantities and on account of its extra petals make an excellent summer shipper. Mr. Poehlmann says Melody helped out finely in June when yellow is so much needed and so little to be had, but loses its color later. Mrs. Aaron Ward has held up better, its color being strong enough while still in bud, though fading when the flower opened.

Personal.

Roswell Schupp is at Lake Geneva. E. B. Bassett is reported as improving.

Charlotte Paradise leaves Saturday for Glen, Mich.

Adolph Benesh of Winterson's is taking a trip through Illinois.

W. J. Nissen is the new bookkeeper at Chicago Flower Growers' Association.

Miss Amy Schultz, from, J. A. Budlong's office, is spending a month in Colorado.

A. L. Vaughan and family are at Freemont, Mich., where report says the fishing is excellent.

C. N. Dickinson and son, Donald, are in Michigan looking up a camping place for the Boy Scouts.

Frank Potocka and Miss Wallace are no longer connected with the Chicago Flower Growers' Association.

J. F. Sinner, who has a severe case of blood poisoning in his arm is considered better but not yet out of danger.

H. C. Wulbrandt has returned from a southern trip in which he invested in southern land. Mr. and Mrs. Wulbrandt are now leaving for a month's visit in their old home in Nebraska.

D. D. Johnson of the United Fertilizer Co., left Tuesday for Atlantic City, N. J., to attend the American Fertilizer Convention, July 15-19. Mr. Johnson will visit several eastern cities in the interest of his company before returning.

Visitors—Chas. Graham, Cleveland, O.; Mr. Joy of Joy Floral Co.; Memphis, Tenn.; J. J. LeBorius, Duluth, Minn.; A. F. Barbee, Kansas City, Mo.

The Senate Committee on Agriculture has made a favorable report on Senator Burnham's bill authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to create an Horticultural Commission with powers to enforce quarantine regulations against plant diseases and insect pests.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

Walter Hawley has left for New York where he will visit his parents, later going to Boston to finish a four weeks' vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Small, Jr., have sent out cards announcing the marriage of their daughter Madison to Mr. H. B. Leary, Jr., which took place on the lawn of their country home, Longmeadow, at North Chevy Chase, Md., last week. The young couple, upon their return from a bridal tour, will take up their residence for a time at Longmeadow.

Preparations have practically been completed for the holding of the joint outing of the Florists' Club of Washington and the Kallipolis Grotto, a Masonic organization which numbers among its members many florists, at Chesapeake Beach next week. The principle features scheduled is the baseball game between the two and the field and track events. One thousand tickets have been distributed by the florists themselves and it is expected that fully one-half of the holders of these tickets will attend.

A bill has been introduced into the House of Representatives which, if it becomes a law, will close up all the florists stores within the District of Columbia on Sundays. By the terms of the Bill, "any person, firm or corporation, who shall follow their usual avocation or work at their ordinary calling on the Sabbath Day, excepting works of charity and necessity, shall be punished as for a misdemeanor." Floral work cannot be called a charity or a necessity and so they would fall within the meaning of the law. Other trades would also be so hit and a lively opposition to the bill may be expected.

At a meeting of the joint congressional committee on the library held on Monday last, C. Leslie Reynolds was named as superintendent of the Botanical Gardens to take the place of the late William R. Smith, and plans for the enlarging of the scope of the Gardens were discussed. Mr. Reynolds the newly appointed superintendent started in the government employ as a page at the capitol. In March, 1873, he secured his transfer to the Botanical Gardens as a messenger boy, later becoming an apprentice and, after many advances, assistant superintendent. In recent years, while the late William R. Smith was in such feeble health, he has acted as superintendent and showed that the past thirty-nine years of his service fully warranted his being placed in charge. Personally, he will make but very few changes, preferring to carry on the work as outlined by his predecessor. As the work of the Botanical Gardens is more or less limited by a lack of space, it is possible that sooner or later a new location will be looked for. Sites in Rock Creek and Potomac Parks have been suggested but no definite action towards securing them has been taken nor will anything be done this year.

Boddington's Gigantic Pansies

Can be produced only from the giant strains. Our CHALLENGE PANSY seed contains only the giant self-colors, the giant striped and variegated and the giant blotched, etc., all carefully mixed in proportion. You could not buy better seed if you paid $100 per ounce. Our Challenge Pansy seed during the past season gave unprecedented satisfaction, and every order booked last year was duplicated and increased this year. All the testimonials received mentioned specially the high grade of flowers—color, form and size of the individual blossoms. This year, by adding improved types, intending customers can absolutely rely on a duplication of this season's success with increased satisfaction. Our "mark" for this strain is "Challenge," and it is all the word denotes.

Pansy—Boddington's "Challenge"—All Giants.

This mixture contains all the finest Giant strains—of the leading Pansy Specialists in the world—the Giant self-colors, the Giant striped and margined, and the Giant blotched, etc., all carefully mixed in proportion—the finest that money can buy—the finest your money can buy. A florist who has grown it said: "Why don't you call it Defiance."

ST. LOUIS NOTES.

It has been rumored that Fred Pape will be appointed assistant city forester this week by City Forester Julius Koenig.

Mr. A. Roherbach has bought the greenhouses and grounds from the Brix Floral Co. at Jennings Station. He will grow for the local market.

Geo. T. Angermuller will, along with Mrs. Angermuller, leave this week for a western trip by automobile, having recently bought a new touring car.

Julius Schafer, manager for Mrs. M. M. Ayers on Grand avenue is visiting Chicago for a ten days' vacation and on his return Mrs. Ayers will leave for a summer trip east and will return when the fall season opens.

State Vice-President F. H. Weber of the S. A. F., reports that he has a large list of florists who are going to the Chicago convention next month. There may be as many as sixty going. This will be the largest delegation ever out of here for a S. A. F. Convention.

The C. Young & Sons Co. held a stockholders' meeting last week and the following officers were elected to serve one year. James Young, president; W. C. Young, vice-president and manager of greenhouse plant; Edna Young, secretary, and Charles Young, treasurer and manager of the store.

Beloit, Wis.—Lightning struck the greenhouse of J. H. Farnsworth, near Rockton, on June 29 and two buildings were destroyed by the fire which followed. Loss partially covered by insurance.

Boddington's "Quality" Christmas-Flowering Sweet Peas

We are Super-Headquarters

All true stocks of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas will be scarce this season. Some varieties are a total failure owing to the exceptional season in California this Spring. Our advice to intending planters is to order at once. Mr. Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., the great winter sweet pea specialist sows our seed almost exclusively.

Our stocks of Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas have stood the test for years, and we can refer you to the largest growers of this increasingly popular flower, as to the trueness and quality of our seed, earliness of blooming period and strength and habit of plants.

The following varieties are the "best by test" and include Zvolanek's and our own introductions, grown for seed from selected stocks by the leading California grower and specialist in Sweet Peas.

Our output last year was nearly 3000 lbs. Few kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and trueness to type.

On the varieties preceded by a * we can make immediate delivery.

Seed Trade

Garden Peas From New Zealand.

F. R. Cooper of Wellington, New Zealand, who attended the seedmen's convention in Chicago, is calling now on the trade in the east on behalf of his firm, offering garden peas for seed purposes. He is very enthusiastic about the outlook in his line in the United States, where every seedsman is admiring the fine samples he is showing and no doubt New Zealand may fill the wants caused by bad crops in peas in the northern half of the Globe. Mr. Cooper is in company of two of his sisters and is combining business with pleasure.

Notes.

Rocky Ford, Colo.—H. D. Garwood, secretary of the Ebbert Seed Co., has sold his interest to the president, A. W. Creager.

Washington, Iowa—L. D. Langworthy and S. H. White have purchased the interest of Mr. Mills in the Mills Seed Co.

Madison, Wis.—The L. L. Olds Seed Co. has purchased property on Williamson street on which they will erect a four-story building for their own use.

R. T. Edwards, formerly with N. B. Keeney & Son, bean and pea growers, is now with the Everett B. Clark Seed Co. as assistant superintendent of their Green Bay, Wisconsin branch.

The Northern Seed Company held its annual meeting at Cass Lake, Minn., on July 9th, and elected the following officers: President, N. E. Jondahl; vice-president, Chris Burns; secretary, Al. J. Hole; treasurer, L. B. Galbraith. The board of directors includes the above list with the addition of H. Mullen, A. J. Swanberg and Lester Bartlett. The company also ordered a good supply of Alberta red winter wheat and farmers hereabouts will be induced to plant some of it this fall. Two hundred shares of stock were also placed on sale.

NEWS NOTES.

Cincinnati, Ohio—The Lebanon Nursery Co., Lebanon, O., have opened a store at 213 Fourth avenue, east.

Milwaukee, Wis.—The firm of Heitman & Baerman, North avenue and 58th street, has been dissolved, Mr. Baerman retiring. Eugene Oestreicher has joined Mr. Heitman in forming the Heitman-Oestreicher Co., which will continue the business.

EVERGREEN SEEDLINGS.

(COPY)

Board of United States General Appraisers.
New York, June 20, 1912.

In the matter of protests 52474-5443 - 529325-5706 of R. & J. Farquhar & Co., against the assessment of duty by the collector of customs of the Port of Boston.

Before Board 3.

Waite, General Appraiser.

It is claimed in these cases that merchandise which was assessed as nursery stock under paragraph 264, tariff act of 1909, should be free of duty as evergreen seedlings under paragraph 668. It seems to be conceded on the part of the Government (see report of appraisers) that the goods in question are seedlings, but they were assessed for duty as nursery stock, for the reason they had been transplanted Under the rule adopted by the board in Harris' case, abstract 28011 (T. D. 32346) the fact of transplanting will not remove evergreens grown from seed from classification for tariff purposes as evergreen seedlings under paragraph 668. Therefore, as to such evergreens on the invoices as are conceded by the Government to have been produced from seed, we sustain the claim that they are entitled to free entry under paragraph 668, regardless of the fact that they may have been transplanted. As to such goods, the collector is instructed to reliquidate, the protests being overruled in all other respects.

Signed

BYRON S. WAITE,
H. M. SOMERVILLE,
EUGENE G. HAY,

Board of United States General Appraisers.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Charlesworth & Co., Haywards Heath, London, Eng.—Descriptive and Priced List of Orchids. This is a superb production and lists a most unusual number of rare species and varieties. Every orchid lover should have a copy where he can have frequent access to it. No less than 150 genera are listed. Life-sized portraits in colors are given of Cattleya Rhoda "Illuminata," Odontoglossum Harwoodii, Laelio-Cattleya Sylvia, Odontoglossum Jeanette, Odontoglossum Ossultonii, Sophro-Cattleya Jeannette, Odontoglossum Harwoodii Shrubbery variety, Odontodia Euterpe, Sophro-Cattleya Lotte Muller.

Luther Burbank, Santa Rosa, Cal.—Gold Medal Newest Agricultural-Horticultural Opuntias, Spineless Cactus. A quite pretentious title, and the claims made for the Burbank breed of spineless opuntias in the pages of this catalogue are equally so, even to the assertion that the production of these new spineless fruiting cacti is as im-

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON As elsewhere, Boston has been struggling since July came in with a surfeit of flowers and a famine on buyers. Buyers are not very plenty yet but there is a drop in the supply and things move less clumsily. Carnations are scarcer and of miserable quality. Short roses are in abundance; good ones seldom seen. Asters are coming in plentifully and of fair quality. Gladioli are not a factor yet in this market. Sweet peas plentiful enough but soft and shortlived on account of damp weather, whites especially. There is a little better call for lilies.

BUFFALO Only a slight improvement in market conditions during last week, the receipts being heavy and business practically at a standstill. Carnations continued to fill the market, also roses. Asters have made their appearance, though only in light shipments, the stem being short and can only be used for floral work. The severe hot weather has caused a shortage in sweet peas and there is only one-half of the supply we had a week previous. Lilies have moved up with a little better demand. Other stock in normal supply.

CHICAGO Stock moved rapidly this week—by the garbage route—and slowly by the more profitable ways. A few days of almost intolerable weather brought stock to the market in poor condition for shipping and local demand was almost at a standstill. On July 15th the extreme heat suddenly changed to a low temperature and trade picked up using up what good stock was to be had and the little flurry was very acceptable to the trade. Carnations have, perhaps, suffered the most and sleepy flowers are more plentiful than fresh ones, but the fact remains that there are some very fair carnations to be had for July. Peonies still come from the storage houses with a fair proportion in good condition and bring a satisfactory price. On roses, sales are made by the lot and a little money buys many. Quantities of field daisies are coming in. Gladioli of all varieties, some good and some good for nothing, are filling the counters. The usual miscellaneous summer flowers are to be had and green seems more abundant than can be used. Some very fair Beauties are seen and several varieties of lilies, good stock but slow sales.

The market is in its usual early summer condition. The carnations are going out and asters are just beginning to come in. Neither is a very important factor right now. Roses are the one flower that is good and in more than a sufficient quantity. Others are either inadequate in amount or of poor quality. The gladioli, particularly the large varieties, are fine and for the past fortnight have been snapped up quickly. The sweet pea season is about at an end. While it lasted the average quality of the blooms and stems was very high; in fact, better than the usual run of out of door blooms of other years. Some very fine giganteum and auratum lilies are included in the offerings. Indications are that the cut of the former will soon shorten considerably.

DETROIT Regular mid-summer conditions are prevailing with very little business on hand and stock plentiful but of very poor quality. The rank and file of steady workers is more or less broken through vacations. Prices for flowers are so unstable as to be beyond quotation possibilities. Gladioli are coming in very good. Lilies are plentiful, all kinds.

PHILADELPHIA Half the people are at the seashore, the other half are at the mountains; but the flowers keep on blooming just the same. If some nobody gives a reception, meantime, there are enough flowers in the backyard. Even the mortuary channel seems to be down to the lowest ebb. There's neither life nor death in the market. It is the usual summer dullness—only more so than usual. If it were not fear of a protest from Judge Hoitt we would be tempted to say that the people are so discouragingly healthy they refuse to die to give life to the florist business. Under such distressing circumstances it would appear to be the best thing for all of them to turn the key in the door and stay home. Longiflorum lilies are very good and very plentiful. Outside gladioli are now very much in evidence. Too many reds and too many muddy colors and poorly done. Why do growers waste their space and time on anything but the best? Local Beauty roses are about done. Another week will finish them. There are good Maryland. As-ters are in evidence and good but not so many as might have been expected. Carnations are getting scarce and of course the quality has kept pace in retrogression. This market report will be the death of me yet. Wish the editor would cut the feature out for a few months. It is martyrdom to a cheerful spirit to wallow in weeps. Couldn't we forget it for a while and nobody be the worse?

NEW YORK There has been a distinct falling off in the quality of stocks this week, roses especially being of a miserable description—with the exception of Marylands which have just passed muster. Large quantities of Lilies have been dumped while lily of the valley and gladioli have been well able to keep up with the weak demand. The recent rains have done a power of good to outdoor stuff and asters are now coming in with a rush.

WASHINGTON Sunday night last was visited by one of the worst storms in years. About 2½ inches of rainfall was recorded although in some of the low places the water accumulated to a depth of five feet. Much damage was done to the outdoor stock and many of the houses will require minor repairs as a result of the storm. Flowers of all kinds are plentiful but the quality is poor and the demand is still worse. The local temperature has been upward of 93° for the past ten days which is not conducive to large sales of cut flowers. Funeral work, however, has kept the stores quite busy.

ST. LOUIS Of late on some days the demand is quite heavy and others very slow and fluctuations in prices are almost daily. Taking the quality of the stock into consideration it's not worth much and especially so with roses and carnations. The great lot of sweet peas that come in now must be sold the same day and the price is put at $1.50 per 1,000 in order to clean up. Gladioli are lower but extra stock of America runs $6 to $8 per 100. Great quantities of asters and single tube-rose stalks are soon expected to swell the market. We have had enough good rain lately to put all out-door stock in splendid condition.

NEW YORK NOTES.

W. A. Hanft, late of Young & Nungesser, is now in business for himself at 54 W. 28th St.

George G. Stumpp, of Barclay St., is now at the Catskills with family for a month's relaxation.

John Kral, of Moore, Hentz & Nash, is on three weeks' vacation, motor boating around Port Chester, N. Y.

The store of N. J. Hills was completely burned out on Thursday night, last. He was not insured, but as he says it might have happened at a more inconvenient time. The store will be in working order again next week.

George Scott, manager for the John Scott greenhouses of Brooklyn, reports a better than average season and is about cleared out. Stocks coming on for fall look promising—especially fine are Pandanus Veitchii and the Dracaenas. J. H. Fraser, who left after several years with this firm, is back again, and takes up the position of foreman.

Clinton, Mass.—Edward W. Breed, who recently sold his florist business, is now devoting his attention to the landscape and nursery departments in which he has been engaged for several years, with offices in Worcester and Clinton, Mass., and a nursery at Lancaster. A. P. Meredith, the purchaser of the florist department retains former employees of Mr. Breed and with his son the new firm of A. P. Meredith & Son starts out under favorable auspices.

Philadelphia visitors: Paul Lindley, Greensboro, N. C.; H. L. Holmes, Harrisburg, Pa.; W. F. Gude, Ernest Gude, Greenville Gude, Washington, D. C.; Phil Breitmeyer, Detroit, Mich.

M. Rice & Co. tell us they are receiving on almost every incoming steamer, new and classy novelties, and that the trade can look forward to seeing the greatest line of goods ever shown by this enterprising house. They have an absolutely new adjustable waterproof ribbon and shields that all florists will be interested in.

A NEW VOLUME

Vol. 16 of HORTICULTURE began three weeks ago. Now is a good time to subscribe. If you are not already on our subscription list, send $1.00 for the coming year, or 50 cents to January 1, 1913.

We do not need to dilate on HORTICULTURE'S worth. It's contents are sufficient evidence. The recognition it is constantly receiving in new subscribers shows the strong hold it has gained in the esteem and good will of the horticultural profession.

THE GARDENER'S SONG.

(Henry Edward Warner in Baltimore Evening Sun.)

Come on, Sun, and shine
On this garden of mine!

Come on, Rain, and sprinkle it, too!
Come on, Night, and rest it—
For hot days may best it;

Come on, O beneficent Dew!

Come on, all ye elements, kiss them and love

The things in my garden all growing!
Come sprinkle, O Rain, wondrous fount from above,

And coax the new life, barely showing!

Come on, Wind, and blow—

For the breezes, you know,
Must freshen when gardens would droop;

Come on, Friends, and cheer me—

Come, ever be near me,
O merry, O rollicking troupe!

For mine is the Garden, and mine is the care

And yours is to shiue, rain and blow;
And I turn the soil—and you things of the air Shall coax my young garden to grow!

Come on, Sun, and shine

On this garden of mine!

Come on, Rain, and sprinkle it, too!

Come on, Night, and rest it

For hot days may best it;

Come on, O beneficent Dew!

An illustrated lecture was given in the town hall of Avon, Conn., on the evening of the 11th by Mr. J. Patterson, superintendent of the A. M. Dodge estate at Simsbury. The subject was "Floral Emblems of Various Countries, Their Origin and History." It was Flora's night at the grange and the stage was tastefully decorated with flowers and there was an appreciative audience. Mr. Patterson is a well known authority on horticulture, and the garden at Wanakawin is considered one of the best in the state. The owner, Mrs. A. M. Dodge, is a great enthusiast on flowers and each

Bring Back the Birds

While you are working out your ideal in the garden, why not provide a home for the birds that help to make life in the country really worth while? A rustic house placed in a tree or on a pole will make an excellent home for the birds and add to the attractiveness of the surroundings. We have them in all sizes and shapes to suit any style of architecture.

About the Cost of Building

Occasionally some one asks us if we "can't get the price of our Iron Frame house down." To which we always reply: "Of course we can—but we can't."

Can't, because the best of materials and best of mechanics cost just so much, and to cut costs, means cheapening either the materials or employing unskilled men.

You simply can't put your prices down and keep your quality up. We have a reputation for building one of the best Iron Frame constructions it's possible to turn out; and just as long as Hitchings & Company is Hitchings & Company, we are going to build the best house it's possible to build. Such houses can never be cheap; but they will always cost less in the end. An the end begins right at the beginning. Send for catalog.

SEEING how attractive and practical this arrangement is, do you wonder why THE LUTTON PATENT CURVED EAVE method has changed Greenhouse Construction during the past few years? The result has been the most successful house that can be produced; the other concerns who had been producing the same antiquated buildings for years had to simply destroy their patterns as well as their catalogues and start anew. Just ask some of our imitators to show you some of their curved eave houses built before THE LUTTON PATENT was granted; you will then be convinced that you had better consult with me.

GERANIUMS

At about this time of the year there are quite a few not only of small growers, but large growers of Geraniums of a marketable size, that are hunting around and planting out for stock such plants as their customers would not buy. Is there any reason, then, why we so often hear the complaint that a certain variety does not grow and bloom as good as it did some years ago? There couldn't be anything more natural through such a sure method of degenerating conditions.

With us it is different. We are constantly selecting our stock, with men trained to discover any signs of variation, with instructions to discard every stock plant with habit which does not measure up to the highest standard of its variety, and to mature those that show an improvement in any way. In this way we have gradually improved our stock until now it represents the highest possible type of perfection.

Our Catalogue and Price List is yours for the asking. We are booking orders for next fall and winter shipment.

Lilium myriophyllum

The many visitors to the delightful exhibition of sweet peas, recently held in the Massachusetts Horticultural Society's Hall under the auspices of the National Society devoted to this flower, had an opportunity of seeing and passing judgment upon this new introduction from China. Messrs. Farquhar staged a magnificent exhibit consisting of about two hundred stems in a setting of Kentias, the whole nicely filling the lecture platform. The Massachusetts Horticultural Society recognized the display by awarding it a gold medal, the society's highest distinction. The representative horticultural gathering present was of the opinion that the honor was well-earned and judiciously bestowed. The display itself and the encomiums unstintedly expressed were a gratifying reward to one who was privileged to discover and introduce this fine addition to a world-wide appreciated and beautiful family. I first met with it in 1903 and the year following sent a few hundred bulbs to Messrs. Veitch who in due course distributed them. Later under the auspices of the Arnold Arboretum, I collected a large consignment expressly for Messrs. R. & J. Farquhar & Co. of Boston. That it has proved so eminently successful to cultivation hereabouts is a source of profound satisfaction to all concerned in its introduction. Had my efforts in China resulted in nothing beyond this lily I should not have labored in vain.

LILIUM MYRIOPHYLLUM

plied when planting or as a top-dressing. Dung I do not recommend unless it be that from an old, spent hot-bed which is good as a top dressing or mulch for nearly everything. Peat is deadly; artificial fertilizers unnecessary and highly dangerous.

III. Its constitution is most vigorous and free from disease. The same bulbs which yielded the exhibit withstood the severe drought of 1911 and showed no distress during the dry spell of June last. No water was given them during either season. (The accompanying illustration from a photograph taken on July 11th last, shows what a portion of the field looked like on that date.)

IV. The flowers are of pleasing color. The outside is more or less suffused with red-purple becoming paler as the flowers expand, but very rarely is it entirely absent. The inside of the tube for two-thirds its length is flushed with clear canary-yellow. The mouth is of the purest white. Sometimes the outside coloring is reflected through giving a delicate rose-tinted flush to the interior. The anthers are golden-yellow and add much to the beauty of the flower.

V. The flowers cut last a week to ten days in a room diffusing a delicate fragrance which is pleasant and not over-poweringly strong as is the case with many lilies.

VI. Lastly, it forces admirably without losing any of its charms as all who saw the blooms at Messrs. Farquhar's Italian Garden exhibition in March last will allow. Personally I believe it may become the Easter Lily of the future but there is no need to enlarge upon this subject.

The plant grows 1½ to 4 feet tall (usually averaging 2½ to 3 feet), the stems being very densely crowded (hence the name—myriophyllum) with narrow 1-nerved, gracefully decurved leaves, each 2 to 5 inches long and generally roughish along the mid-rib below. The flowers vary in number from one to seven or even more on rare occasions, are 5 to 6½ inches long and horizontally disposed from the summit of the stem. Its elegant foliage adds much distinction to the plant whilst the yellow

In HORTICULTURE, Jan. 22, 1910 (p. 106), I made the following statement, "the writer inclines towards L. myriophyllum and believes it the finest hardy tubular-flowered Lily extant." This I hold to more strongly than ever and am happy in the knowledge that competent judges have also arrived at this same opinion. It possesses all the qualities necessary in a first-class plant of its kind. Let us take them seriatim:

I. It is perfectly hardy even here in Massachusetts. The flowers on exhibition were cut from open-ground, the bulbs having been planted last fall. They passed through the winter quite unprotected and were unscathed in spite of the bleak situation they occupied. Never a bulb of the several thousands planted failed to produce its flowering stem in due season.

II. It is of easy culture requiring no attention whatsoever beyond weeding. The stems though slender are rigid and wire-like and no stakes are needed. Being a stem-rooting lily the bulbs should be covered to a depth of 6 to 8 inches. Good, mellow loam and a well-drained sub-soil are the essentials for its successful culture. Well-decayed leaf-soil is good for all lilies and may be ap-

Requisite Damping

The determination of the amount of moisture required in the various houses is no small factor towards ultimate success. This with 101 other things which all come under the same head cannot be set down in black and white with a stated amount for certain periods of growth or for a certain length of time—not even with two houses growing the same kind of fruits. These two houses may be located in different sections and each will have some little peculiarities, all its own. There are houses which lie damp; others are the reverse. Heating mains will sometimes account for this, elevation at other times is responsible and the drainage of the houses themselves will also furnish variation. The quantity of heating pipes, too, will have something to say in the matter. Through the summer time, when not in use so often, a house containing a quantity of heating pipes is going to be dryer than one that has only half the number providing other conditions are the same because the pipes themselves will attract so much more sunheat.

Fruit houses claim an additional thought on the moisture problem as they do on the temperature. The variation is greater than the majority of plant houses—from a humidity of the tropics down to fire heat to keep the atmosphere as dry as possible—this all in one year. The one extreme we find when trying to persuade trees to break, and at times up to the flowering period, the other with fruit ripe and efforts being made to keep it in a good condition. As no set rule can be laid down each house must become a study—the nasal organ playing a prominent part. At this time of year, where in some instances the fires are stopped off for the summer months, no houses will need the usual damping at quitting time, unless it happens to be a hot and dry day. Inclement atmospheric conditions for a whole day will almost debar inside damping. This and the fire heat must always be taken into consideration and the scale fixed on it.

Timing

This may not be a very appropriate time to discuss the timing of crops. The spring is when one looks to it more, yet not a week passes but what some seeds are sown or some trees started so it is really an "evergreen" subject. The winter vegetables will soon be engaging our attention. In every instance when making the sowing we have to figure when that crop will be in under ordinary conditions; successions have to be made, crops edged so that all do not mature at once. What time and profit would be lost if forethought were not utilized! Forethought sees a house today, cleaned and planted up with partly grown plants out of pots tomorrow. The gardener who has only a certain season to provide for or one in which most is expected must so arrange his crops so as to be within the required time. Special occasions call for an extra amount of produce. This is where one has to do some tall thinking. 'Tis true a week can be drawn on or off but a right start beats all. Houses started the same time each year should ripen about the same date under ordinary cultivation. A hurry-up order on a half-developed crop will be apt to put the usual routine out of commission. Here is where the advantage of reference boards come in, which have been referred to previously. By keeping them correctly entered up you can see exactly how the crop stands with other years and figure with a greater degree of certainty on the date of ripening.

Mulching

This subject was dealt with in issue of May 25th at which time probably only a light mulch was given to late vines, the crop at that time being young. This will have worn away with successive waterings and should be augmented by an addition of half decayed cow manure. Do not mulch to excess or the border will seldom dry out. Use the necessary precautions when applying it as detailed in issue of May 25th.

Figs

Continue to give figs all the attention needed to produce the late crop. Nearly a repetition of preceding events—the house perchance will not want closing down in the afternoon, as the early crops did; in fact it is wise to gradually harden the trees until they stand full air at all times. The fruit of this last crop will not be so elegant in size as its predecessors, yet the flavor will be quite equal. Keep a wary eye open for thrips or red spider and do not let the foliage become crowded. Use the usual stopping method and give the trees liberal feeding. Figs relish green manures. Small trees in pots or tubs can be transferred to the open tubs. If these have been growing in any partially shaded position, they should be shaded through the hottest hours of the day until they become hardened to the sun. For a time they will dry out frequently, the additional air being the chief cause of this. Look all such trees over at least three times daily until they are accustomed to their new surroundings and atmospheric conditions.

anthers give a pleasing charm of gaiety to the flowers. When looking intently on this lily it would seem to say, "I am a joyous sun child, glorying in my beauty and vigor. Your winter frosts and droughts I laugh to scorn, but I like your country and intend to stay and colonize. I care not if churls call me vain or egotistical. My beauty is more than skin deep and who sees me wishes to possess me. I am no fickle jade or whim of fashion but a blushing beauty constant to my deity, the sun; a mountain child carried from my wild home some half a world away, yet I do not repine since now a wider field is mine in which to accomplish my work of spreading joy and happiness among you all."

E. H. Wilson

NOTE.—This is the name by which this Lily is generally known and under which it is figured in the Botanical Magazine (t. 8102), but it is very doubtful if this is the plant so-named by Monsieur Franchet in Journ. de Bot., VI., p. 313. If these doubts are ultimately substantiated, a new name will be necessary and in that case I propose that it be called Lilium regale.—E. H. W.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Adiantums

Where you have some benches of this valuable green that have been cut down a good deal it would be wise to give them a rest as the market for adiantum fronds is now at a low ebb. Now is the time to renew root action to induce an abundance of fine fronds late in the fall. Cut away all the top growth and dry them off somewhat until they show new growth. After they are fairly well dried off scrape off all the old soil you can remove without breaking too many roots. Mix up a good mulch of cow manure and loam in about equal parts and renew to the depth of two or three inches. They then should have a thorough watering, with a spraying two or three times a day, until the fronds are well started. When the fronds have made good growth they should be given liquid manure feeding regularly once a week to give rich green color. See that they have sufficient shade to keep the fronds dark green. Where they are bothered with snails lay bait in the way of lettuce leaves or slices of some root crop; these can be examined two or three times a day and the snails destroyed.

Callas

Callas that have had a rest of 6 to 7 weeks, lying on their sides, should now have attention. The tubers can be shaken out and repotted now anytime, the sooner the better. Do not use any diseased or decayed tubers. For a compost give them a generous mixture as they are very rank feeders. To two parts of fibrous loam, use one part of well-dried cow manure and a good sprinkling of bone meal. For commercial purposes 6, 7 and 8-inch pots are the best sizes to use. See that every pot has ample drainage, for while callas like plenty of water at the roots they will not thrive with stagnant moisture around their roots. When planted they can be placed in a cold frame until the middle of September. Here they will make lots of roots with a stocky top growth. Be careful as to watering until they begin to fill the pots with roots. If you intend to buy a new stock of tubers do not forget to try some of the Godfrey calla as you will find them far superior to the old stock.

Care of Chrysanthemums

This is the season when the chrysanthemum grower is kept very busy. See that they have plenty of syringing on all bright days as it refreshes the plants and keeps the foliage glossy and healthy. See that they have proper water at the roots, for when allowed to wilt they soon become hard and stunted and will never produce fine flowers. Give them all possible ventilation as this is of the greatest importance in bringing the plants through the hot weather in good condition. Early-planted chrysanthemums will now be making very heavy growth, so examine the surface of the benches and when you detect the roots running near the surface give them a rich mulch of equal parts of soil and cow manure about an inch deep and repeat in a couple of weeks. This will give them something to feed upon while making such fast growth. Just as soon as the buds begin to form they should have liquid manure water once a week and increase this to twice a week later on. Give close attention to weeding, staking and tying. Keep your plants clean and free from the aphid by frequent light fumigation.

Coreopsis for Easter

A nice lot of Coreopsis lanceolata in bloom at Easter will be found to be a paying proposition. If you have not sown earlier, sow now without delay. They can be sown in a frame allowing plenty of space so the young seedlings will not spindle up before they are transplanted. Keep shaded and well watered until they begin to germinate. When they are large enough to handle they should be pricked out into other frames, from 5 to 6 inches apart. Here they can stay until about the middle of September when they should be potted into six-inch pots, and grown until freezing weather sets in. They can then be placed in some frame where they will have protection from hard frost until they are wanted for forcing. This is the age when people are looking for something new around the spring holidays and a few of these will be appreciated by many customers.

Double Daisies

Every florist should grow a good batch of these daisies in pink, white and red, as they always come in very useful for different kinds of work, such as edging for spring flowering beds, rockeries and for the ground work of bulb beds. They also can be used in pans and baskets for the early spring trade. Sow now in frames on finely made soil. Guard against sowing the seed too thickly. Plenty of room is needed for fine stocky seedlings. When large enough they can be planted out in other frames and carefully watered until they take hold of the soil. Cultivate between the rows and keep clear of weeds.

Freesia Bulbs

These are usually the first to arrive of the long list of bulbs for winter flowering. Where it is desired to have them flower early they should be potted or benched as soon as received. It is a good plan to start a few hundred every two weeks until November, thereby having a succession right along. For a compost use fibrous loam three parts and well-rotted cow manure one part, as they like liberally enriched soil. If on a bench, the bulbs can be planted in rows six inches apart and about two inches apart in the rows, but for early flowering there is nothing better than 6-inch pans. The bulbs can be dotted all over the surface so they stand about two inches apart. Do not overlook proper drainage for each pan. They can be placed in some frame until about the middle of September. See that they do not get too much water after they are planted for many bulbs are ruined by overwatering at the start. The bulbs that are not planted should be spread out in a cool dry shed until wanted. Keep the plants when they are well up, in full sun. Do not labor under the idea that any old place is good enough for them, while they really require as much attention as anything that is grown inside. They like a house where the temperature during the late fall and winter is kept from 55 to 60 degrees at night.

Schemes and schemes

The full program for the approaching S. A. F. Convention at Chicago appears in this issue. Many of the Society's staunch friends and well-wishers will view with misgiving the several proposed amendments to the Constitution and By-Laws. We can see nothing in the circumstances of the Society demanding any one of these proposed changes which all together are almost revolutionary in effect. Uncalled-for tinkering with the Constitution is the worst kind of folly in a society of this kind. Unfortunately, in every organization are to be found those who are never content to "let well enough alone"—actuated by a chronic mental unrest and an insatiable propensity to pull things to pieces and start some sort of a fuss.

Proposed memorial to W. R. Smith

The movement for the erection of a "cairn" or memorial of some description as has been previously suggested by a number of friends of the late W. R. Smith and advocated by W. F. Gude on another page of this paper, to be dedicated to the memory of that grand old man, is one which, we believe, will receive a spontaneous and hearty response from every part of our country. It seems eminently fitting that some appropriate memorial should mark the spot where for sixty years he made his home, and record his virtues and the gratitude of the gardening craft for his sublime endeavors in behalf of their art and for the welfare of his fellow workers. We hope that the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists will take up the matter promptly at its convention in Chicago next month and constitute a special committee for that purpose. As it appears probable that the territory so long occupied by the Garden and Mr. Smith's cottage will soon be turned to other uses early action should be taken to secure approval by Congress of the reservation of a suitable spot on which to erect the memorial, preferably as near the site of his cottage as possible.

The park superintendents

Now that the Sweet Pea Society visit has passed into history the next horticultural event to directly interest Boston is the meeting of the American Association of Park Superintendents to take place on August 12, 13 and 14th. This is the fourteenth annual meeting of this organization which had its birth in Boston mainly through the initiative of the late John A. Pettigrew. Mr. Pettigrew was at all times very active in the Association's work and was regarded with deep affection by all the members and it will be somewhat in the nature of a sad and lonesome reunion when they meet in Boston this year. There is no doubt, however, that they will be well looked after by Mr. Pettigrew's successor as Superintendent of Boston Parks, Mr. J. B. Shea, and the Commissioners both City and Metropolitan, so that a pleasant and profitable time is thus assured to all who come and there will be private hospitality in abundance as well. No body of men can be more welcome than they in any community where horticulture in its relation to the public welfare, physical and moral, has its due recognition. The sphere of the park superintendent is a wide and beneficent one and as a rule, although a comparatively young avocation in this country, their work is being done most creditably.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

The Pots

As we have suggested before, through these columns, summer is the time for cleaning and washing all pots and having them ready when the propagating season comes along. It is very hot in all the houses as we all know only too well and washing pots is much more suitable work for this kind of weather, than working in the houses would be. Various devices and machines have been devised and used on many of the large places, to make more headway in washing pots. The most successful and economically operated device we know of is a regular pot-washing machine driven by an electric motor which is used in driving a pump for syringing or liquid manure. This pump is so arranged as to be easily disconnected from the motor, and then a belt is put on the pot washing machine. To save time and labor, brushes, etc., it is well to have the pots soaking for at least 24 hours before they are washed.

As soon as the pots are washed store them away carefully in a frost-proof building if possible, keeping them piled up nice and neat, all sizes separate. Many places have a special building where all pots are stored, yet we find it much handier to provide a pot storage when planning a potting shed or work room, so as to have the pots near at hand, when there is potting to be done. We find, too, that the less we have to handle the pots the better, for not only is time expensive but some pots are bound to be broken in handling and where thousands of pots are handled this breakage and the time required is bound to eat into the profits.

The New Roses

Do not turn all the new roses down without giving them a good trial first. During this trial study the variety carefully; find out its necessities, its weak points, and do not do any guessing when it comes to figuring up the returns. Keep careful account of every little thing which may be of value to you later on in deciding whether this one variety should be planted more freely next season. Know the rose from A to Z before you attempt to grow it on a large scale.

Greenfly

Where houses have always been kept clean and free from this pest little trouble will be experienced in keeping it in check. Syringing alone should keep greenfly out providing of course that the plants were clean to begin with. You will find it a great help by following each syringing with a thorough spraying, using some good reliable insecticide. As is needless to say the green-fly likes to hide on the under side of the leaves and if blown off by syringing will quickly crawl back on the plant again. Syringing scatters the greenfly pretty well and if a thorough spraying is given right after each syringing the largest part of the fly will never bother rose or any other kind of plants again. In spraying the solution should be mixed full strength, the plants being all wet which will dilute the solution so that there will be absolutely no danger of burning the plants. If this spraying is kept up after each syringing little trouble should be had from greenfly.

Fumigation

Never think of fumigating unless the houses are below 70 degrees F. and always see that the plants are not dry when this is done as fumigating dry plants heavily will burn them terribly. Hydrocyanic acid gas is fast taking the place of tobacco papers because of its simplicity, but it is very deadly and should never be entrusted in unskilled hands. Tobacco stems are also largely used by some of the best growers for fumigation. Although we formerly used quite a lot of stems in a season the amount seems to have diminished until but a bale or two is used and that only for the young plants.

Old Beauty Plants

These should be kept disbudded until the growths begin to touch the second wire. Should the plants dry out too much a light mulch of lumpy cow manure may be applied. Do not use any soil with the mulch, for, if the benches become too full, you will have trouble in making them dry out properly next winter, and the chances are that your roses will not do as well as they should.

Killarney

Do not overdo the pinching on these or—for that matter—on any other roses. After the plants attain a fair size it is better to let the flowers come on for if the pinching is kept up too long the wood is bound to get a bit hard and it will be difficult to make it break strong after a crop is cut off.

Here is another important thing, especially on a small place where only a few plants are grown. After the first crop is cut off and the second begins to come on try to break up the second crop by pinching some of the shoots. This will give you some roses all the time. Many of the large commercial places will run a whole house to a crop at one time and then just alternate the houses to have one house or section in full crop at all times. Where this can be done it is much better all the way around for a house can be forced more after a crop is cut off and then run cooler when the crop comes on, without the least injury. This could not be done where plants have to flower and grow new wood at the same time.

Prof. H. H. Whetzel, of Cornell University, official pathologist, will have on exhibition an extensive collection of specimens and descriptive material covering plant diseases. The educative value of this exhibit will make it an important feature of the convention.

NEW YORK TO CHICAGO.

Arrangements have been made with the New York Central Lines to operate special train, New York to Chicago, for the accommodation of New York members and their friends who will attend the S. A. F. Convention in Chicago. Special train will be scheduled to leave New York, Grand Central Terminal, at 10.30 A. M., Monday, August 19th, due to arrive in Chicago about 8.45 A. M., Tuesday, August 20th.

The cost of Pullman accommodations, New York to Chicago, will be $5.00 for lower berth; $4.00 for upper berth. Should the party be made up of sufficient numbers to justify the New York Central operating special train, the railroad fare will be $18.15 per capita in each direction. If, however, the number of persons should not be sufficient and will number ten or more traveling together, the railroad fare will be $18.15 per capita, in addition to which an excess fare of $5.00 each person will be charged, in which case equipment will be handled in regular train. It is, therefore, urged that everyone attending this meeting from points in Greater New York, New Jersey, and contiguous territory, arrange their plans so that they may join the special train party, giving sufficient numbers to assure of its success.

All applications for reservations should be made to W. V. Lifsey, General Eastern Passenger Agent, New York Central Lines, 1216 Broadway, New York, or to Walter F. Sheridan, Chas. B. Weathered, Arthur Buckholz, Anton Schultheis, Jr., Frank H. Traendly, chairman, 131 West 28th street, New York City, Committee on Transportation.

ST. LOUIS TO CHICAGO.

There seems to be some misunderstanding regarding the official route for the delegates to the S. A. F. Convention from here. At the last meeting of club it was voted to make the Wabash the official route but letters sent out by State vice-president F. H. Weber, state that the delegation will leave here on the C. & E. I. R. R., on Monday, August 19th at 9 A. M., arriving at Chicago at 5 P. M. same day, and that the fare would be $11.60 for the round trip. More will be known as to who are going at the next club meeting. Any one contemplating making the trip should send names in at once.

CHICAGO NOTES.

D. M. Cumming's new Lord & Burnham house is just completed. Knut Loefeng is the gardener.

Stock is showing the effects of the recent hot wave to a marked degree. It was not the excessively high temperature, but the great humidity which accompanied it that took the life out of the flowers and injured the plants.

The usual friendly but keen rivalry exists between the private gardeners at Lake Forest, Ill., as the annual exhibition draws near. The Lake Forest Horticultural Society has taken the broader name of North Shore Horticultural Society and will hold the mid-summer exhibit on July 31st.

The first steps were taken by the West Park Commissioners last week to add still another small park to Chicago's already long list. The new one is on the West Side between Central and Austin avenues and a little to the south, between Adams and Harrison streets, covering 154 acres and costing $500,000.

Geo. F. Crabbe, of Grand Rapids, Mich., in his recent visit here said the escape from severe loss of life in his city during the storm, which amounted to a cyclone, was wonderful. The roof of the baseball grand stand was lifted and dropped into the vegetable market upon the teams. The conservatories of John Ball Park suffered the loss of a large smoke stack. Not a chimney was left in the path of the storm.

Personal.

Michael Fink has moved to 5219 Strong street to his new home recently purchased.

Miss G. Harper has accepted a position as assistant bookkeeper with Bassett & Washburn.

Florence Scriven is a new member of the office force at the Chicago Flower Growers' Association.

John Young, superintendent of trade exhibition for the S. A. F. and O. H. Convention in this city, August 20-23, arrived Monday and opened an office in the Coliseum.

A. L. Vaughan is back from a vacation spent in wading in the deep streams of Michigan, fishing. He is several inches smaller in circumference and several pounds heavier.

Mrs. W. Romaine, daughter of the late John Thorpe, who has been dangerously ill in a Chicago hospital, is now convalescing nicely at the home of her sister, Mrs. D. W. Evans, 3478 Archer avenue.

C. Pruner and F. Longren are both in from trips which practically closed the season. They say they are finding it much harder to kill time than to sell goods. They are planning a big year ahead for E. H. Hunt.

Visitors: Henry Dresel, New Orleans, La.; Louis Dresel, Detroit, Mich.; Eric Benson, E. A. Russell and Knut Loefeng, Lake Forest, Ill.; Geo. F. Crabbe, Grand Rapids, Mich.; G. H. Sinclair, Holyoke, Mass.

On Wednesday, July 24, John I. Raynor of New York while motoring from Portland to Boston, accompanied by Mrs. Raynor had the misfortune to break two axles. Luckily no one was hurt.

DURING RECESS

Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston.

The annual outing of this club held at Cunningham Park, East Milton, Mass., was the best attended and altogether one of the most enjoyable in the club's history. The grounds which were the most convenient and well-adapted of any the club has had are conducted under a bequest for the use of the people of Milton and were had without cost through the kindness of the superintendent and trustees. The officials who had charge of the various features did their work with the promptitude and efficiency of veterans and the number of contestants in the different games was unusually large, girls under 12, Mary Iliffe, Susie Rogers. Three-legged race for men, Palmer and Westwood, Collins and Prae. Race for boys under 12, P. Roland, Lawrence Hollingsworth. Three-legged race for boys, Westwood and Iliffe, Hargraves and Prae. Sack race for men, W. J. Collins, C. Prae. Obstacle race, Tom Westwood, Walter Westwood.

St. Louis Florist Club Picnic.

The much talked of annual picnic given by the Florist Club for florists and their families took place on July 7th at Preister's Park. The attendance was not quite so large as in former years when the picnic was held on this side of the river, still some 300 were in attendance and enjoyed the day greatly.

Frank Weber, chairman of the trustees, worked hard all day and was Buffalo Florists' Club Outing.

On Wednesday last the Buffalo Florists' Club held their annual affair, and were certainly treated with an ideal day, which members with their families, friends and fellow-florists fully enjoyed. Again Bedell House, Grand Island, was selected by the able committee and they had in store a treat for all. No better program of sports was ever arranged in previous years, and prizes worth making an effort for were awarded. The sports commenced on arrival, and as usual the ball game was first on the program—East Sides vs. West Sides. On account of time limit only five innings were played and the East Siders won 12 to 10. Judge Neubeck handled the indicator several of the races having to be run in three or more heats. In the baseball game the Private Gardeners under Capt. R. W. Curtis whipped the Commercial men under Capt. M. F. Ruane by a score of 7 to 1. In the tug-of-war the Private Gardeners under Capt. J. L. Smith again put it all over the Commercial men under Capt. Jas. Wheeler. The results in the other events are given below. The greatest amount of amusement was caused by the obstacle race, in which many comical situations were evolved:

Base ball for boys, White Sox, Capt. Palmer, 11; Red Sox, Capt. Phil Roland, 5. Quoit match, Private Gardeners, under Capt. Kenneth Finlayson, 5; Commercial, under Capt. D. Iliffe, 1. Novelty race for ladies (Geo. Waldbart prize), Mrs. R. Bremer, Mrs. H. Berning. Seed guessing contest, St. Louis Seed Co. prize, Mrs. Schoenle, Miss Becker; Schisler-Cornell Seed Co. prizes, R. Winkler, Miss Muldoon; Schisler Grain Co. prizes, Miss Viola Spitzel, Mrs. Fillmore, Jr.; Triesley Seed Co. prizes, Mr. Flanagan, Mrs. Bergestermann. The tug-of-war, always eagerly watched for, was between two teams of ten men on each side, drawn by Joe Hauser and H. Emunds. The pull lasted for fifteen minutes of uninterrupted endeavor and was finally won by Joe Hauser's team. Prizes, a box of good cigars for the winners and a box of ropes for the losers.

Cincinnati Outing.

The annual outing of the Cincinnati florists was held at Coney last Thursday. The attendance was very good.

and he made raw decisions. Slattery had much to say. Kramer, the West Sider, pitched wild and Greiver replaced him. Bad errors by Walters, and the slow running for bases by Eliss cost them defeat. For the old men's race, a fast bunch were in line ready for the word. The betting was on Hale 3 to 1, but the dark horse, Neubeck won, with Metherell second, and Sommenberg, third.

The tug-of-war was the hardest pull the greenhouse men have had in some time. The opponents, the store men, who naturally are light weights, gave them a hard time, and only lost by a small margin, the time being two minutes. Neubeck was timekeeper and Andy Adams again furnished rope and cheers.

Other games and winners were as follows:

Three legged race, Greiver and Walter, Kinkel and Dobbie. Ladies' race, Miss Jensen, Miss Kirchhoff, Miss Stroh. Boys' race, Harrison, Domaris, Meyer, Gaskin. Hop, step and jump, Kinkel 35 9-12, Greiver 35 8-12, Stunts 35 4-12. Sack race, Jerome, Greiver, Walters. Men's race, Brucker won the sack of flour (guess the position); Slattery was also a runner, and J. Priesach of Corfu crossed the line first. John had been training running for a long time.

After the games, all were ordered to the banquet hall, which was beautifully decorated in the club's colors. Brief remarks by President Greiver, Mr. Neubeck, Wm. Legg, W. A. Adams and others were appreciated. All in all, it was a very successful outing, and the committee is to be congratulated upon its success. E. C. B.

On Tuesday, July 23, a party of horticultural people from Boston enjoyed an auto trip to Dreamwold, Thos. W. Lawson's farm at Scituate, Mass., as guests of Edward MacMulkin. The party included: J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Judge C. W. Hoitt, E. H. Wilson, M. H. Norton, E. Allan Peirce, Thos. A. Cox, H. Huebner, Thos. Roland, W. Hastings, T. J. Grey, W. R. Nicholson, W. J. Stewart. After an interesting inspection of the famous stables, kennels, barns and gardens, the visitors were lavishly entertained by Mr. MacMulkin at his farm house at Sea View.

The Minneapolis Florists' Association held their annual picnic at Spring Park, Lake Minnetonka, on July 18th.

INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION OF HORTICULTURE, 1913.

The Secretary of Agriculture has received through the Secretary of State official notification from the Imperial Embassy of Russia at Washington, D. C., that under the patronage of his majesty, the Emperor of Russia, an International Exposition of Horticulture will be held at St. Petersburg during the spring of the year 1913.

The Exposition will comprise the following sections:

- I. Floriculture.
- II. Decorative horticulture. (A) Green house; (B) Outdoor.
- III. Pomology.
- IV. Fresh fruits and those kept naturally during the winter.
- V. Vegetables and market-garden plants.
- VI. Preservation and use of fruits and vegetables.
- VII. Grains.
- VIII. Apiculture and agriculture.
- IX. House plants.
- X. Scientific section.
- XI. School section.
- XII. Tools, instruments and apparatus.
- XIII. Floral art.
- XIV. Commercial section.

The organization of the Exposition is in charge of an executive committee under the direction of A. de Jacewski, Vice-President of the Imperial Society of Horticulture of Russia. President; and M. K. Borowski, General Secretary of the Society, Secretary.

Requests for registration should be addressed to the executive committee care of the Bureau of the Imperial Society of Horticulture of Russia, Quai de la Cour, 32, St. Petersburg, Russia, on or before February 1, 1913, by Russian exhibitors, and not later than January 1, 1913, by foreign exhibitors.

Provisional and foreign exhibitors who can not themselves or by their representatives be present to receive their exhibits should send them prepaid to the Bureau of the Imperial Society of Horticulture. Exhibits not prepaid will not be accepted and the Society will not assume any responsibility therefor. The committee will receive exhibits sent prepaid by railway or steamship and will put them in position at the expense of the exhibitor.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

There will be a meeting of the Board of Directors of the American Carnation Society at Chicago at 9.30 o'clock on Thursday, August 22nd. Members who are in attendance at the convention are invited to meet with the board. The schedule of premiums for the National Flower Show in April, 1913, will be made up at this meeting. Anyone wishing to offer a special premium for carnations will kindly advise the undersigned. The following specials have already been pledged:

By Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, Ill. Gold medal, value $25.00 for 12 largest carnation blooms.

By S. M. Merwarth & Bro., Easton, Pa. $50.00 in three prizes for 100 blooms of carnation Comfort.

By Thos. W. Lawson, Boston, Mass. Silver cup, value $50.00. Class not yet named.

By Hitchings & Co., New York, N. Y. The Hitchings cup, value $30.00. Sweepstakes in Section A.

A. F. J. BAUR, Secretary.

FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB OF RHODE ISLAND.

The regular meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island was held at their headquarters in Providence, July 15th, with a small attendance.

The annual outing of the club, which was to have been held next month at the Rhode Island State College, has been called off. This decision was reached at the meeting after hearing the sentiment of many of the members and a general discussion of the trip. Last year the club went to Kingston and the trip was a profitable one. This year some of those who went there last year did not care to go again.

Last winter, Robert Johnston, H. J. Wheeler and Eugene McCarron were chosen a committee to plan the outing and it was with the object of having an instructive and pleasure trip combined that they decided on the Kingston College. S. A. G.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

At the annual meeting of the New Orleans (La.) Horticultural Society on July 11, H. Doescher was elected president; Max Schernuck, vice-president; C. A. Panter, re-elected secretary; and John Ebling, re-elected treasurer. The society voted to have its annual holiday in Grand Isle.

Angelo J. Rossi, president of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, H. Plath and D. MacRorie have been appointed by the Pacific Coast Society as a delegation to the S. A. F. Convention in Chicago to present a cordial invitation for the 1915 sessions of that body to be held in San Francisco.

The monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held at Glen Cove, N. Y., on July 10th, with a good attendance. Vice-President Barton occupied the chair. A question was raised as to moving the society's headquarters from Glen Cove to Mineola and considerable discussion followed, many of the older members being in favor of the move. It was decided to lay the matter over for further consideration. It being sweet pea night there was a very fine display. H. Boettcher was awarded first for 25 sprays, pink, white and any other color. Thanks of society was awarded to G. Barton for collection of sweet peas and honorable mention to J. Marmoli for lettuce. A letter was read from J. G. McNicol accepting an invitation to act as judge at the fall exhibition. Mrs. H. L. Pratt offered a silver cup for table decoration. It was decided to hold the Dahlia Show on Oct. 9th. Prizes are offered at the next meeting for asters, muskmelon and sweet corn.

JAMES MacDONALD, Cor. Sec.

A BERKSHIRE GREENHOUSE.

The reproduction shown gives a fair idea of what can be done with a small house, not only as to utility, but as an ornament to the place.

To begin with the gardener's cottage is good architecture, and while only the side and rear are shown, the window-box and small decoration underneath are all in harmony and keeping with the surroundings.

The greenhouse is about 14 feet wide by 42 feet long with a small pit at the side. This pit being an after consideration, was home-made. However, the utility is there and the pit being hidden from the main driveway, does not detract from the general appearance. The greenhouse is an iron frame, curved glass eave affair, and has two benches. Entrance to it is made from the superintendent's office, and it is heated by the same boiler which heats the cottage; economy is thus maintained and labor saved. The radiation in both house and pit is liberal and the piping so valved that almost any conditions may be met. The results obtained from this small beginning have been wonderful, indeed, and well worth any gardener's ambition to try for.

There are many private gardeners on small places who want glass, something to work with, a place where he can show results. Perhaps he has just taken a position on a comparatively new place, and naturally he wants to show what he can do. In the great majority of places he has not even a hot-bed sash to begin with. His employer expects certain things and in fact many times demands results that are impossible to obtain with the facilities at hand. As a rule, he will get some frames in shape to grow a little stuff and often it is surprising what good results he will show with his meagre beginning. In many cases it is just this small start that ultimately ends in building a good-sized practical range. Many begin in that small way and work up to something large and good.

A gardener, when approaching his employer relative to building, must bear in mind this fact, that the greenhouse should be in keeping with the rest of the buildings. For instance, if the out-buildings are good—and they generally are—the greenhouse should be good, and harmonizing with the general surroundings. If he will stop to think that a small house of wood construction costs almost as much to build, and just as much to glaze, heat and bench, as an iron-frame type of house, he will bear this in mind when taking up the matter of building with his employer.

The gardener knows what he wants to grow, how he would like the house benched, heated, etc., but often gives too little consideration to the general appearance and layout with a view to future additions, improvements, etc., with the result that after the job is up, the effect is not perfectly satisfactory.

The King Construction Company through whose courtesy we produce this cut, state that they have built many small houses adjoining the gardener's cottage and the results have been most satisfactory. In numerous cases more glass was added without disturbing the heating arrangement of the first house or detracting from the general appearance, but, as a matter of fact, making the whole affair more pleasing.

THE RENAMING EVIL.

Editor HORTICULTURE:

Dear Sir:—Your editorial remarks in the issue of July 13th, apropos to the fling of certain horticulturally authoritative critics beyond the "big pond" hurled at us for our proneness to rename plants are timely and to the point.

While I regret extremely that our coat-tails are not entirely without cobwebs in this direction to give justifiable cause for criticism from the quarters alluded to, I have no hesitation to say that the greatest culprits in this line are in the quarters from which these flings come.

This particular phase of horticultural interest has jolted my sense of propriety many years back; so much so that I was emboldened to draw up a paper on the subject to be forwarded to the Royal Horticultural Society of England, asking their co-operation in checkmating such inimical practices that must necessarily end in inextricable confusion and a corresponding degrading effect on the science of horticulture. The paper thus drawn up by me was adopted by the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, as representing their concrete sentiment on this subject. The secretary was instructed to forward the same to the Royal Horticultural Society of England, which I understood he did, but no word was heard one way or another from the other side then or since on this subject as far as I know.

In this connection, I may be permitted to recall the wholesale practice of renaming by our British critics of the famous Fisher and other carnations, which had become also famous in British and European climes. The more famous a newcomer takes itself to those climes, the surer the rechristening process went on. Ethel Crocker was renamed Royalty; Enchantress, Red Fascinator; Victory, St. Louis, and many other such instances could be named. (See Gardeners' Chronicle, November 3, 1906, page 314.) It ought to afford small consolation to us to know that others are as black or blacker than ourselves in the practices that tend to belittle the nobility of horticulture. Let us with noble purpose and unfaltering effort eliminate from horticulture's banner all that tends to dim its lustre and thus, in our respective sphere, show as clean heels to our brother horticulturists abroad as did our manly athletes in theirs. KENNETH FINLAYSON.

ATTENDANCE AT ASBURY PARK SHOW.

Editor HORTICULTURE.

Dear Sir:—Since George C. Watson, in his article on the Asbury Park Show published last issue, says he was present "only for a fleeting moment," I must question his ability to criticize fairly the business management of the show.

As a matter of fact the business end was in charge of the city's regular publicity department, with all of the facilities and experience of one of the best promotion plants at its command. This same department is obligated for the prize money. No effort was left undone to promote the success of the attraction, the first one of its kind ever held in Asbury Park. The only available structure for the show was one which had been closed to the public for five years. Its location is not of the best. But under the circumstances the attendance was very flattering, and much greater than it would have been except for the unusual promotion work done by the city. People visit Asbury Park for its board walks and bathing beaches. They follow beaten paths. Good attractions within one block of the promenade are often financial failures because the public cannot be attracted across Ocean avenue. And at this time of the year the premanent inhabitants are too busy to attend any event. But despite all this the Asbury Park show as a beginning was a great success.

H. E. DENEGAR, Director.

NEWS NOTES.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Logan Nurseries, York road and Loudon street, have been sold and the property will be used for building operations.

Williamston, Mich.—Land has been purchased here by Claud Going, of Shepardsville, Mich., on which he expects to erect a commercial greenhouse.

Obituary.

Carl Michler.

Carl Michler, florist, of Lexington, Ky., died recently, aged 69 years. He was born in Germany. His sons will continue the business as they have done since his long illness. His wife, a daughter and four sons survive him.

Magdalena R. Saling.

On July 11, Magdalena R. Saling, wife of William Saling, rose grower, 75 Harrison street, Rahway, N. J., died at her home after a long illness. She was over 70 years of age. Besides her husband she leaves a daughter, one son and one brother.

William McIntosh.

William McIntosh, florist, 6 Percy street, Charleston, S. C., was buried on July 9. He was a native of Scotland and 79 years of age. He retired from active business some years ago and his sons assumed charge. He is survived by two sons and two daughters.

Thomas White.

Thomas White, for many years superintendent of Riverside cemetery, died at his home in Fairhaven, Mass., after a long illness. He was a native of England and came to this country while young. He was a member of the New Bedford Horticultural Society and contributed articles to several of the horticultural magazines including HORTICULTURE. He was also a member of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club.

Oscar Kramer.

Oscar Kramer, lately foreman for Westcott's Laurel Hill Nurseries, died suddenly on the 22nd inst. The local prints had sensational stories about his having committed suicide on account of ill health. Mr. Westcott says he knew nothing of any despondency on the part of his employee, who had but recently came to him and well recommended. He had been previously with the Dingee, Conard Co., and various other well-known concerns.

August Dresel.

August Dresel, senior partner in the Crown Point Floral Co., Crown Point, Ind., died on July 17, aged 74 years. Mr. Dresel was born in Germany in 1838 and came to this country, locating in Chicago in 1865, where he conducted greenhouses for over thirty years. In 1901 he gave up these houses and located in Crown Point, doing a wholesale growing business.

The florist's work was always dear to him, and when paralysis overtook him five weeks ago and he was brought to a Chicago hospital for treatment, he begged to go back and sit in a wheel chair in his loved greenhouses. After his return he lived but one week. He is survived by a wife and five children.

Adolph Le Moutt.

Lonely because his wife to whom he had been married forty years, died two months ago, Adolph Le Moutt, florist, 202 Bowery, New York, committed suicide on July 22, at his home 240 Echo place, Bronx. He was 65 years of age and had been a florist on the Bowery 35 years.

Adolph Le Moutt came to New York from Germany in the early 60's. He was shrewd, full of initiative and his sentimental side whereby he was able to fascinate the flower buyer, for occasions either sad or gay, was well-developed. All through the height of his career he kept New York florally on the jump, and many quaint and interesting anecdotes are told of his quick-witted and resourceful character. He first sold flowers on the street corners and then opened a shop in the Bowery where he has continued ever since. His son will continue the business.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

Arthur Niessen is on a brief vacation down East—which means Nova Scotia and other cool and interesting places—perhaps.

W. J. Baker is not going to Chicago. Neither would he let anyone else go. The railroads are robbers and should not be encouraged.

George D. Clark of Dreer's has returned from a sojourn of two months in Europe filled with vim and information and says that he "had a splendid time."

E. H. Flood goes to New York on Tuesday to a meeting of the glass men. J. Burton says he's got enough now for two years and don't care if they put glass up to $10.00 a box.

D. T. Connor has sold another boiler. One a day is his usual record. (So he says.) A greenhouse, 18 x 50 feet, goes with this one. The victim today is Edward Le Boutillier, Paoli, Pa.

Who suppressed the news that W. Atlee Burpee got in trouble for auto speeding in Boston and missed his train? "Let us have everything done open and above board," as Ed. Lonsdale used to say.

The steamship "Adelbert," due to arrive this week, is bringing many novelties to M. Rice & Co. for the S. A. F. Convention at Chicago, where they will be shown exclusively by that enterprising firm for the first time.

Mr. W. Helper has been added to the ever increasing force of M. Rice & Co., and will shortly make a tour of the country calling on the florists' trade, who we are sure will accord him a generous welcome as he will come primed up with good things and useful suggestions.

We met our friend, M. Fuld, of the H. F. Michell Co. near the Parker House in Boston on Thursday. He was full of enthusiasm—and wished to know if we had noticed how Michell had laid all over them at the Sweet Pea Show. We will have to look this up. More important than a ball game. From Boston he goes West on his career of conquest.

When you meet our Dr. Lane next ask him about his speech at the Farquhar banquet on the wisdom of Epicurus and the lectures in the groves of Thessaly in ancient Greece—and their application to the high brows of modern Boston. The doctor knows how to strike the high key. Galen, Esculapius and Epicurus are not more familiar to him than modern Horticulture and its prophets. Wasn't he raised in Nahant alongside the only Tom Roland?

Visitors: Mrs. Wolf, Savannah, Ga.; H. L. Holmes, Harrisburg, Pa.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

Otto Bauer is spending the weekend with his wife and family at Atlantic City.

The Florists' Exchange has removed from its old quarters at 1214 H street, N. W., to 1213 Eye street, N. W.

A. F. Faulkner, known throughout the country as a correspondent for the florists' papers and as a carnation grower, has given up the latter work to again tackle the newspaper game. For the past few years Mr. Faulkner has been with Alexander B. Garden of Anacostia.

Will Fisher, with the Washington Florists' Company, has gone to Atlantic City where he will spend the month of August. Miss Elinor Carpenter, of the same firm, leaves the first of the month for Wildwood, N. J., and shortly afterward J. Harper Hetherington goes to Atlantic City.

Fred Kramer, while trying to train a snake, an eight-foot python, for the snake exhibition to be given by the Florists' Club of Washington at the annual outing, narrowly escaped what might have been a serious accident. Everything was going on all right until a barking pup tried to get in the center of Ed. Schmid's bird store where the practicing was taking place, and snapped at the big snake. The reptile whizzed straight out for the pup but his aim was spoilt by Mr. Kramer who grabbed him by the neck. Fred did not hold the snake's head far enough away from his own body with the result that when they pried the snake's jaws apart one of its teeth remained in the fleshy part of the florist's leg. Nothing daunted, Mr. Kramer says the real exhibition will take place per schedule.

PROVIDENCE NOTES.

James Hockey of Pawtucket is on the sick list.

T. O'Connor and family are at Narragansett Pier for the summer.

H. Howard Pepper of this city is spending the summer at Buttonwoods.

N. D. Pierce, agent of the Norwood Floral Company, who has been confined to his bed, is able to be out again, although he is far from being a well man.

The Smith Floral Company, 408 North Broadway, East Providence, has accepted plans for a new house, 35 x 100, which will be added to their range within a short time. The contract has been let to Lord & Burnham Co.

McNair has a novel window display at the corner store which has attracted considerable attention the past week. The setting shows a picturesque scene of evergreens surrounding a pond in which a number of ducklings are swimming about and roaming through the spruce and evergreen shrubs.

Asters made their first appearance in the local market last week, a few of the growers just starting to harvest this crop of blooms. As may be expected the quality is poor, but they are bringing $2.00 per 100, which is considered a good figure. There are a few roses in the market. S. A. G.

Boddington's "Quality" Christmas- Flowering Sweet Peas

We are Super-Headquarters

All true stocks of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas will be scarce this season. Some varieties are a total failure owing to the exceptional season in California this Spring. Our advice to intending planters is to order at once. Mr. Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., the great winter sweet pea specialist sows our seed almost exclusively.

Our stocks of Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas have stood the test for years, and we can refer you to the largest growers of this increasingly popular flower, as to the trueness and quality of our seed, earliness of blooming period and strength and habit of plants.

The following varieties are the "best by test" and include Zvolanek's and our own introductions, grown for seed from selected stocks by the leading California grower and specialist in Sweet Peas.

Our output last year was nearly 3000 lbs. Few kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and trueness to type.

On the varieties preceded by a * we can make immediate delivery.

DINNER TO J. K. M. L. FARQUHAR.

On Thursday evening, July 18th, at Young's Hotel, Boston, there occurred one of the most interesting and enjoyable occasions possible—a fraternal “welcome home” to J. K. M. L. Farquhar by a few of his horticultural friends. This laudable event had been planned to take place at the time of Mr. Farquhar's return from the Royal International Exhibition where he had served as a member of the jury, but it was postponed on account of the illness and death of Mr. Pettigrew, one of Mr. Farquhar's warmest friends.

The repast was one worthy of the occasion and the after-dinner speeches were eloquent and sincere, voicing the esteem in which the guest of the evening is held in the hearts of his associates at home and far away. The table was beautifully adorned by Ed. MacMulkin with Lady Gay roses and sweet peas presented by Thomas Roland and William Sim, respectively. The basket of roses which formed the central feature was one of the most artistic triumphs in floral arrangement ever seen here.

Wm. J. Stewart officiated as toastmaster and every one of the gentlemen present, except a few who had to catch trains before their turn came around, responded to the toastmaster's invitation with words befitting the occasion.

The first one called upon was the guest of honor, Mr. Farquhar. His response was characteristically happy and appreciative. A silent toast to the memory of J. A. Pettigrew and W. R. Smith was then drunk standing. Then came Robert Craig, silver-tongued as ever as he voiced his tribute to Boston and its horticultural fraternity. Col. W. W. Castle eloquently expressed his recognition of the advanced position American horticulture is achieving through the genius and industry of such men as John Farquhar.

W. A. Manda, introduced as a man “who does things,” received a rousing reception and declared that Mr. Farquhar is the type of horticulturist we need in America to help raise the standard to its proper place. M. A. Patten gave some interesting reminiscences of the visit to England and was followed by E. H. Wilson, who told of the respect and honor he entertained towards the guest of the evening, with whom he had enjoyed a long and loving acquaintance. Winfried Roelker made a most charming speech filled with affectionate sentiment. F. R. Pierson, who was the next to be called upon, spoke reminiscently of the hearty good fellowship he had shared with Mr. Farquhar in their association in the planning of the National Flower Show of 1911 and was both eloquent and witty.

Then came George C. Watson, who was given a dual introduction, Robert Craig supplementing the toastmaster with some descriptive remarks on the characteristic traits of that gentleman. Mr. Watson said he was proud to be one of those to be present to add his loving tribute on so appropriate an occasion. Jackson Dawson added sincerest words of praise and referred particularly to the new Chinese plants discovered by Wilson, in the introduction of which to America Mr. Farquhar had been a conspicuous factor. H. Wilson followed in further approving comment on this subject and gave some very interesting facts in connection therewith.

Secretary Rich spoke for the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in cordial recognition of the great men who have through the medium of this organization done so much to make American horticultural history. Dr. Peter Lane made a telling speech embellished with anecdotes and then came Chas. Sander, whose speech was one of the gems of the evening in its ingenuousness and sincerity. H. E. Bates was the next to add his contribution to the general congratulation and following him was P. Welch, impressive and witty as always. Mr. Welch spoke of Mr. Farquhar as an industrious and persistent worker, an international factor of today in the world's horticultural progress.

“A king in his calling, a man among men,” was the burden of some original verses recited by F. H. Sargent. Thos. J. Grey expressed his long-time friendship in humorous vein, and next came a clever talk, merry and contagious, by W. P. Edgar. E. Allan Peirce and Edward MacMulkin followed with words of appreciative congratulation. Duncan Finlayson's vigorous and outspoken sentiments of high esteem, drew forth a great outburst of applause. M. H. Norton referred to the prominent part taken by Mr. Farquhar in the Boston exhibitions for many years and his unselfish attitude in all horticultural work. Then as a fitting climax to the eloquence of the evening came Robert Cameron's loving tribute to his friend and co-worker. It was a stirring valedictory. A graceful closing response from Mr. Farquhar followed and it was just midnight when the inevitable “Auld Lang Syne” marked the end of an evening of rare pleasure.

Cordial letters were received from a number of gentlemen who were unable to be present, among these being C. H. Totty, C. W. Hoitt, C. H. Breck, John Westcott, and others equally well-known.

A PROPOSED MEMORIAL TO W. R. SMITH.

Editor HORTICULTURE:

I noticed in last week's issue of one of the trade papers a suggestion from Harry Papworth of New Orleans, that it would be a fitting tribute to the late Wm. R. Smith to have a suitable monument erected to his memory at Washington, and I want to say I believe the Society of American Florists and kindred organizations and individuals could do no greater honor to themselves than by honoring Wm. R. Smith with a suitable lasting memorial to be erected at the national capital, where he spent more than sixty years of his life at the head of the United States Botanic Gardens. A more liberal, broader, or more self-sacrificing horticulturist never lived than that truly grand old man.

The thought occurs to me at this time, that for many years previous to Mr. Smith's death, it was his ambition and desire to live long enough to see a permanent home established in the national capital for the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists. He also desired very much that a horticultural library should be established in this home on which florists from all over the United States and Canada could draw for information, bulletins, etc. I really cannot think of anything that would do the Society and the trade in general more good than a fitting home at the national capital that could be a memorial to the “Father” of our charter. Personally, I am willing to give time and money toward this worthy cause. I hope this matter will be taken up at the forthcoming convention in Chicago that we might hear different views expressed on this subject.

Crop Report from Holland.

Crop report of Holland seeds, from Sluis & Groot, states the following conditions:

Cauliflower: Prospects in general very good.

Cabbage, Red Cabbage, Savoy, Brussels Sprouts and Borecole: Small acreage planted in consequence of the drought. Plantations severely damaged by frost; a very small crop expected.

Turnips and Swedes: A large area was sown, but nearly all was destroyed and these items are almost a perfect failure.

Kohlrabi: A small acreage planted and severely damaged by frost; a very small crop expected.

Mangels, Sugar-beets and Beets: Acreage very small; in general we expect a small crop, especially of the turnip-rooted beets.

Radish and Winter-Radish: Some varieties are expected to run short. Present stand generally very good.

Onion: Small area planted. Prospects satisfactory up to now.

Garlic Bulbs: Promise a moderate crop.

Celery: Very small plantation, mid-dling stand.

Parsley: Almost perfectly lost. Prospects very poor.

Chervil: About 9-10 of the area sown was lost.

Spinach: A large acreage was sown originally, but much had to be plowed up. Present stand in consequence of frequent rains very luxuriant, so that a middling crop may be expected.

Cucumber: Area planted satisfactory. The conditions were not very favorable these last two months. A report as to product cannot yet be given.

Peas: Some varieties were sown on a large scale. Others, however, especially the later varieties, hardly satisfactory. Prospects in general promising at present.

Beans dwarf, and running: The growth was retarded by rains and cold weather and it will all depend on further conditions whether we shall have a satisfactory crop.

Broad Beans: Usual acreage planted. Stand satisfactory up to now.

Parsnip: Small area planted. Prospects pretty good.

Scorzonera. In case the weather does not improve, the produce will be very small.

Cornsalad. As regards Dutch large-seeded prospects are satisfactory; the weaker varieties were almost entirely lost.

Flower seeds: Early conditions very favorable. Further development and product depends on the weather from this date to harvest. That the early flowering varieties as forget-me-nots, etc., which are ripening during a wet spell, do not promise a good crop. As to biennials, same were under the same drawbacks as the biennial vegetables so that only a small area was left.

The Burnham Bill.

Editor HORTICULTURE:

Dear Sir:—I note in your issue of July 20th on page 85 that you state that the Senate Committee on Agriculture made a favorable report on Senator Burnham's Bill authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to create a Horticultural Commission with power to enforce quarantine regulations against plant diseases and insect pests. I think you are misinformed on this, because on the 17th inst. Senator Chamberlain of Oregon did report an amended bill as a substitute for Senator Burnham's Bill in the Senate, and asked for immediate consideration under the unanimous consent rule. Opposition, however, appeared for two reasons: first, a lack of desire to spend time on the measure; and second, because of the severe penalties imposed by the bill. Whereupon, Senator Chamberlain asked to have the bill referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry for the purpose of making amendments to comply with the ideas of the Senators.

The above bill is entirely similar to House Bill 24,119, except that the appropriation is made immediately available and the enforcement of the Act, except in certain particulars, is postponed to October 1st, 1912. The House Bill has not been acted upon, but on July 18th the House Committee on Rules offered a resolution, amended by Mr. Mann to include H. R. 24,119, giving right of way over all other bills on the calendar except appropriation, tariff bills, and conference reports, which resolution was adopted.

Yours truly,

CURTIS NYE SMITH.

F. R. Cooper, of F. Cooper, Ltd., Wellington, New Zealand, visited Boston this week. Mr. Cooper talks interestingly of sweet pea culture in that far-away country. He says that they plant in fall (which is April with them), and transplant in September, making trenches three feet deep with a foot of animal manure in the bottom. The plants grow ten feet high and produce flowers from 2¼ to 2½-inch spread and with stems 22 to 24 inches in length. The choicer varieties are shaded from the sun when in bloom.

Must not be compared with the flimsy Trimardeau

It is much larger and of good substance; the immense flowers, of 3½ to 4 inches, are of perfect form, and every tint and shade is produced in striking combinations and endless variations of beautiful colors and markings. The Stock Plants are most critically selected. It is rich with shades of brown, bronze, red, mahogany, and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures. To prove quality to myself I have been making tests of various sow-

England. Am pleased to be able to say, "Your Giant Exhibition Strain of Pansy is by far the best." They are simply magnificent in color and size and have a good long stem. They are far ahead of any other. Thinking this might interest you, I am penning these lines.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON The most noticeable feature of the market now is the shortening up of the rose supply. This is due to regular causes in part and also partially to the really cold nights we have been getting of late. American Beauty roses are of fair quality, but all the others run very low grade. Carnations are about at an end. Asters are coming in more freely and will no doubt drop down in price before long. Lily of the valley is selling poorly and considerable of it has been going to loss. Gladioli are very little in evidence in this vicinity, but they are good as far as they go. Seaside demand is not brisk as yet.

BUFFALO Trade was a little on the upward course for a few days, and a very satisfactory week ending was had. The heavy surplus has gradually moved away, and new life exists. Roses and carnations are shortened somewhat in supply, though they are not scarce, but much more satisfactory prices were obtained at the end of the week. Gladioli, home grown, are at hand, and asters are slowly coming. Lilies continue good. Recent rains have helped the aster situation and some good stock is expected soon.

CHICAGO Though far from active, Chicago market is not unusually depressed and florists are enjoying very fair mid-summer business. Prices will average low in comparison with last year but wholesalers say, the volume of business will cause a total to at least amount to as much as then, for stock has been more plentiful. Asters are getting to be more of a factor each week, the blooms being large for early varieties and colors good. Gladioli make good running mates for asters just now and if only high-class stock were grown, this regal flower would be even more popular. Mrs. Frances King is beginning to come in now, and with America and Augusta these three, red, pink and white, leave no chance with buyers for small off-color varieties. This will be the last week for peonies with most dealers and the season closes with a record for low prices and successful cold storage. There is the usual variety of summer flowers to select from besides roses, lilies, American Beauties, sweet peas, lily of the valley, etc., and plenty of first-class green.

CINCINNATI The redeeming feature of last week's market was the way stock in general cleaned up. There was not much to be had and very little really choice blooms among what was sold but nevertheless the fact that there was a practical clean-up was gratifying. The opening days of this week were very fair and showed that unless there is an extraordinary good demand, all the stock will hardly be taken up. Gladioli are coming in very much stronger. Asters, too, seemed to take a sudden spurt for large shipments of early white and pink arrived. Roses are on the increase in supply. The young cuts in most all varieties are beginning to come in, in addition to the regular summer roses. American Beauties sell nicely but there is a scarcity of long stock of quality. The cut of shorter sizes seems just adequate. Lilies are only fair sellers. The supply of decorative greens is sufficient for all requests.

DETROIT With business at a practical standstill supply of flowers fully adequate, no matter how little, and quality very poor with few exceptions, price quotations are rather problematical. A much longed for relief from the heavy strain of idleness came towards the end of the week when the funeral of a local merchant prince made heavy demands on most all of us.

All stocks have been coming in much lighter this week, and as a consequence the hustle to get the goods has given one the impression that trade in the flower market is looking up. As a matter of fact trade is much about the same as last week i. e. generally dull. White flowers for which there is always a certain demand, have been short. Asters and gladioli have been the principal items on offer in quantity, and the quality has been good. Roses are very much off color, with practically none to be had. Lilies have gone up with a jump, easily realizing 6 to 8c.—somewhat of a difference from last week's dumping process.

Trade fair but

PHILADELPHIA not much if any above the average for previous seasons. Some good judges claim not nearly as good as this time last year. The latter part of the week was cool and that helped considerably. Asters and gladioli are the dominant features of the market. Asters, in spots are plentiful and in other places scarce. They have sold out clean, being as a rule preferred to carnations. But the big day of the aster, is yet to come. Wait until we get the mid-season and later varieties—big, refined, classy fellows with long stems—then you will see some asters. The early gladioli are coming in now in good shape and they are a vast improvement on the Southern. Much better varieties—clean, clear colors, and perfect as to condition. They meet with a ready market and the only surplus we have heard of was some lots that came in Saturday and missed the market. American Beauty roses are not plentiful. Demand fair. Locals nearly over—the best stock now arriving being Eastern grown. Maryland is the best pink rose. There are also good Killarneys, especially in the new double white and double pink strains. Mrs. Taft also holds out pretty good, and proves a fine warm weather rose. Carnations scarce and not extra as to quality. Other stocks normal and without special feature worthy of note.

Funeral work during the past week or two has been quite heavy but aside from this there has been little else doing. The stock that is coming into the local market is not of the best and moves poorly and without price. There is enough Al stock coming in to meet all demands. During the past ten days rain fell in large quantities and considerable outdoor stock was beaten down and washed out. Some slight damage was done to a number of the houses.

ST. LOUIS

The market was in an excellent condition all during the last week. There is an abundance of stock of all kinds coming in and prices are low on gladioli. America, May, Augusta and Mrs. King are the best sellers. Asters are becoming more plentiful each day and a good consignment of carnations come in daily—roses are poor owing to the extreme hot weather and come in wide open unless cut very tight. A great many odds and ends of outdoor stock is now coming in for which there is very little demand.

NEW YORK NOTES.

E. G. Hill of Indiana arrived home from Europe on Friday last on the Mauretania.

A. T. Boddington is having a real busy time with Christmas sweet peas and hardy perennials. Mr. Hunt says it is more like a spring rush.

Hession is busy with planting preparations at Flatbush. He reckons putting in close to 80,000 carnations and is using two houses for chrysanthemums.

The attraction in Peter Henderson's window this week has been a pretty display of water lilies in variety. Three tanks are used, running water coming from a miniature water-wheel, the whole being neatly set off with ferns, palms and caladiums in pots.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

President Pegler has appointed J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Jackson Dawson and Wm. J. Stewart a committee of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston to draw up resolutions on the death of J. A. Pettigrew, who was an ex-president of the club.

J. D. Connors, Jr., of Wabash, has been elected president of the Northern Indiana Florists Association; Harry White of North Manchester, vice-president, and J. W. Wagoner of Columbia City, secretary-treasurer. Thirty-three members were present at the annual banquet.

Little Ads Bring Big Returns

Little ads. in our Classified Columns bring big returns to both advertiser and purchaser.

Anything that can be sold to florists, gardeners, park and cemetery superintendents, etc., can be sold through this medium in this department, and at very small cost.

Don't fail to read them each issue, for you will find one or more that will prove profitable to you.

They Cost Only One Cent a Word Undisplayed

CINCINNATI NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hardesty are visiting Detroit, Niagara and Fort Erie.

The J. M. McCullough Sons Co. have been receiving large shipments of gladioli and these have been moving nicely.

Wm. Gardner was down from New Castle over Sunday. He reports that nearly all the planting has been finished at P. J. Olinger's plant, of which he is manager there.

According to promises there should be a large delegation from this city for Chicago for the convention. C. E. Critchell, A. C. Heckman Jr., and E. G. Gillett are arranging for train accommodations. All interested should write either of them.

Visitors: Frank Farney, of M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia; and Joseph Malek, Jeffersonville, Ind.

Bring Back the Birds

While you are working out your ideal in the garden, why not provide a home for the birds that help to make life in the country really worth while? A rustic house placed in a tree or on a pole will make an excellent home for the birds and add to the attractiveness of the surroundings. We have them in all sizes and shapes to suit any style of architecture.

Guaranteed under the Insecticide Act, 1910. Serial No. 321

Save your plants and trees. Here is an insecticide that will positively destroy all insects—Mealy Bug, Brown and White Scale, Thrip, Red Spider, Black and Green Fly, Mites, Ants, etc. without injury to plants and without odor. Used according to directions our standard Insecticide will prevent ravages on your crops by insects.

Non-poisonous and harmless to user and plant. Leading Seedsmen and Florists have used it with wonderful results.

Destroys Lice in Poultry Houses, Fleas on Dogs and all Domestic Pests. Excellent as a wash for dogs and other animals. Relieves mange.

Effective where others fail.

Directions on every package

The Recognized Standard Insecticide.
Not a cure-all, but a specific remedy for all sap sucking insects infesting plant life, such as green, black, white fly, red spider, thrips, mealy bug, brown and white scale.

Universally endorsed by commercial growers and professional gardeners of reputation, as the insecticide that does excel all.

$2.50 per Gallon. $1.00 per Quart.

FUNGINE

"Actions Speak Louder than Words." So we are willing to let the merit of this comparatively new fungicide speak for itself. We claim it has no equal for mildew, rust and wilt attacking flower, fruit or vegetable plants. A trial will convince you.

$2.00 per Gallon. 75c. per Quart.
Aphine and Fungine are spraying materials, readily soluble in water, used at various strengths, according to directions on each can. They are equally effective in the greenhouse and in the garden.

GERANIUMS

At about this time of the year there are quite a few not only of small growers, but large growers of Geraniums of a marketable size, that are hunting around and planting out for stock such plants as their customers would not buy. Is there any reason, then, why we so often hear the complaint that a certain variety does not grow and bloom as good as it did some years ago? There couldn't be anything more natural through such a sure method of degenerating conditions.

With us it is different. We are constantly selecting our stock, with men trained to discover any signs of variation, with instructions to discard every stock plant with habit which does not measure up to the highest standard of its variety, and to mature those that show an improvement in any way. In this way we have gradually improved our stock until now it represents the highest possible type of perfection.

Our Catalogue and Price List is yours for the asking. We are booking orders for next fall and winter shipment.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Aspidistras

Now is a good time to increase stock of this most useful decorative plant. Where you have a number of large plants you can divide them into pieces large enough to fill a four-inch pot. Do not break them up too small as it takes a much longer time for them to grow into saleable plants. Be sure that they are sufficiently drained to let the water pass off freely and use a good compost, say to three parts of fibrous loam use one of well decayed manure, and press the soil firmly about the roots. Place them on a bench where they can have plenty of shade until they start to make new roots, when they should be given more light. It is necessary to be careful about the water at the start; they should be kept moist, but not in a saturated condition. Keep them growing right along through the winter, giving them a temperature of from 60 to 65 degrees at night.

Calanthes

These orchids are now in the season of active growth and will be making lots of roots. This will call for the administering of nourishment. There is nothing better than liquid made from cow manure, given quite weak at first and then a little stronger. These applications made twice a week will be found very beneficial and can be kept up until the flowers commence to expand when they should cease. Calanthes should have a more heavily shaded house than where cattleyas are grown, as the foliage should always have a deep green color if they are expected to do well. During hot and bright days they will do better if they are given a spraying overhead morning and afternoon, but when the weather is dull omit all spraying. Close up the house early enough to retain a good amount of solar heat to create a superabundance of atmospheric moisture, which is to their liking. When the nights get cool and the temperature falls below 62 degrees in the house, it is always a good plan to run a little heat in the pipes sufficient to keep the house at from 60 to 65 degrees at night. Where Calanthes show a number of roots running over the surface of the pans, they can have a mulch of very old cow manure spread on.

Compost for Bulbs

All kinds of bulbs will be arriving from now on. Many growers think any old soil will do for bulbs, but this is all nonsense as they like a good soil as well as any other plants. Get a good lot of fibrous loam together, and mix at the rate of three loads of loam to one of well decayed manure. Turn over three or four times in order that the manure may be evenly incorporated through the soil. Where the soil is heavy a little sand can be added to render it sufficiently porous to allow the free passage of air and water.

Planting Sweet Peas for Winter

Where you want an early indoor crop you should sow now. These will grow into fine strong vines by December which should begin to flower around the holidays. If you have a house where you can give them a solid bed, by all means give them this place, as they always give better results when so grown but where you have not solid beds do not hesitate to plant them on raised benches as they can be flowered very successfully in eight or ten inches of soil. See that the soil is liberally enriched with good manure, cow manure preferred. Two parts of fibrous loam to one part of cow manure with a good sprinkling of bone meal will be about right for a compost. The rows should run lengthwise of the house and can be anywhere from three to four feet apart. When sowing the seed do not sow too thick. They always do better when they stand from 3 to 4 inches apart in the rows. It is a good plan when you are sowing in the benches to sow a couple of hundred 3-inch pots with about three seeds to a pot. These will fill in any blanks that may occur in the rows. When they come up string as soon as possible so as to give them support. Give plenty of ventilation and syringe on all bright days.

Lilies for Easter

Every grower should make it a point to get in a batch of the early arrivals of the Bermuda lilies as soon as possible, so that he will be cutting from December until the middle of January. Just as soon as they are received they should be potted up into 5 or 6-inch pots. In order to prevent stagnant water remaining at the roots always give proper drainage of crocks in every pot. When placing the bulbs have them just so the tips show above the surface of the soil. Give these lilies as cool a place as you may have. There is nothing better than a coldframe that can be protected with sashes during a continued spell of rainy weather. Here they can be covered first with a layer of sand and then 4 or 5 inches of soil which will lessen the labor of watering as well as keeping that uniform amount of moisture which is so conducive to root formation.

Care of Newly-Housed Carnations

Now is the time when every grower should exercise good care with his plants. Give them a spraying at least three times a day until new root formation has advanced them far enough so you can say they are re-established in their new quarters. Do not wait until the benches become dust dry before giving them water at the roots, and on the other hand do not keep on watering until they become saturated, as either course is harmful. When the plants have become established give them plenty of fresh air both day and night to harden up their growth.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Care of Gardenias; Cattleya gigas; Geranium Cuttings; Daisies for Winter; Ferns for Making Up Dishes; Roman Hyacinths.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

George H. Penson

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Penson. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Planning a Range of Fruit Houses

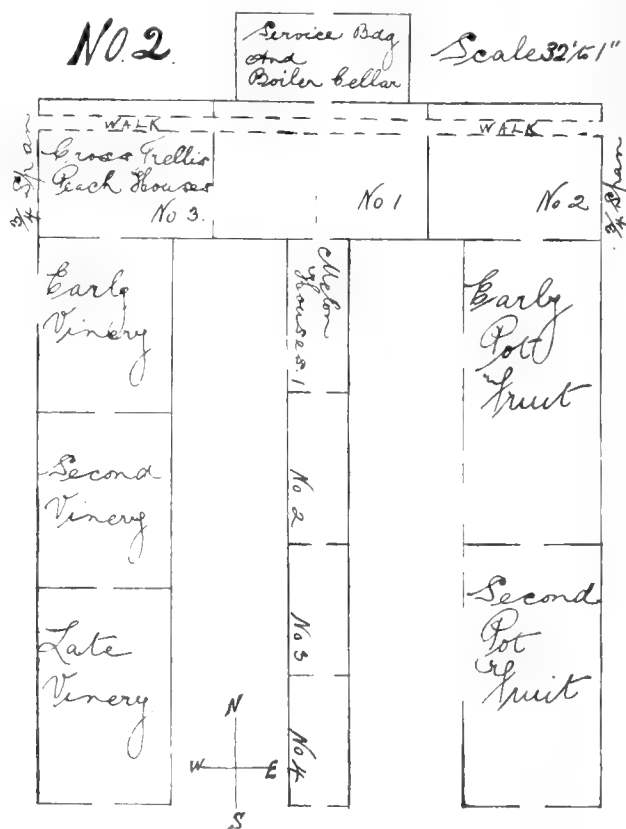

We are in receipt of communication from W. M. P., Lexington, Ky., respecting the building of a range of fruit houses which are to include 100 feet run each, for grapes, peaches, pot trees and melons. Herewith we make two suggestions of such a lay out with rough sketches. No. 1 shows the peach houses located on the south side, even-span houses with a center walk having walk reduces the trellis space to $5\frac{1}{2}$ feet on the side and allows very little head room on the side near the glass. After reaching the center of the tree the head room is more than double. This makes a poorly shaped tree anyhow. The extra width (over 25 feet or more) will be appreciated as the tree develops.

If the three outer houses are to be the same width use No. 2 sketch, placing the peach house on the north side, and make them $\frac{3}{4}$ span, placing the walk as figured, near the north and use one tree only on the front trees on each side. This, it will be noticed, is a 30-foot wide house, while the vineries and pot tree houses are 25. To use a center walk in a peach house of less width than 30 feet, means cramping the tree very much. One-half of the tree—that next to the glass—has not sufficient room to develop, making it necessary to continually cut back the wood which in turn only makes strong wood of little fruiting value. Allowing 3 feet for a center trellis. The $\frac{3}{4}$ span formation will allow of the north side to be trellised and trees can be successfully grown on these. This arrangement of houses will be found very handy to work as each section has outside doors to allow easy access for filling in soil, etc. In each layout the melon houses are near the boilers. No. 1 makes the most compact set and could be very attractively built. Another feature is that a complete circuit of the houses can be made without going outside or passing over the same ground a second time.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

More on Painting

Early fall is the best time to do all painting. After a hot summer the wood is more apt to be dry than in the spring after the winter's snows and rains. Paint applied to wood that is not perfectly dry will surely crack, blister or peel, and we all know what that means.

In applying paint use plenty of "elbow grease" and rub the paint into the wood as much as possible to fill all the pores and grain. This will go a good way toward making the paint stick. Sandpaper, scrape or otherwise remove as much of the old loose paint as possible and then apply a thin coat of paint. Never use thick paint—by thin paint we do not mean paint that will run all over the glass; but do not have it almost as thick as putty.

Putty

Speaking of putty—be sure to remove all loose, old putty from the sash bars before attempting to fill crevices around the glass. Never apply putty to new wood unless it has had a coat of paint. If no paint has been applied to the wood, it will draw the oil out of the putty leaving it almost dry and it will all crack and fall out within two years.

Weeds

I think florists and growers of all kinds of flowers, nurserymen, farmers and in fact anyone interested in horticulture and gardening should adopt a rule similar to the "swat the fly" now creating widespread interest. Our idea of this rule would be "never pass a weed without destroying it" and the same with insects. If the weeds are kept down for three or four years and not allowed to go to seed they will decrease so that it will be an easy matter to keep a place practically free from them.

I like Mr. Penson's note on our great friend, Mr. Toad. Do not do anything that would harm these friends in any way. They are just as great a help in a rose house as they would be outside. No doubt as Mr. Penson says the "fair sex" may have some objections to have Mr. Toad hop out unannounced into the walk from his cool shady retreat; and yet I am positive that if the importance of Mr. Toad's presence was carefully explained his unannounced venture into the walk would be welcomed and he would be loved instead of being scorned. And now to rose growing once more.

Steam in July?

This may seem like one of the millions of foolish questions and yet last week we had several real cool nights that would bring the houses down to 54. No harm, some may say, and yet with the day's heat the houses should never be allowed to run so cool as that at night. It would not be wise to shut down the ventilators and thus keep the house warmer. The only thing to do is to give a little heat if possible. Here is where steam will come in handy. Hot water will be slow in circulating where steam, when properly installed, will circulate with one pound pressure and even less. It will take a little coal, but it pays in the long run especially where Beauties are grown.

The cool wave should also have given the growers a good chance to rid their plants of all pests, if any have been around. We find it best not to allow a greenfly to appear, and when you once get rid of them all it is not so very difficult to keep them out.

Sod for Next Season

Summer is the time to determine where to get sod for the coming season. It is hard to tell the condition of the soil in the winter or early spring, but in the summer you can easily tell by the amount of grass on it. Growers with a little ground should try to secure several acres somewhere near the houses if possible and grow their own sod. In selecting a piece of ground to be seeded to grass for sod, select ground that grows good corn. These may seem a crude way to say that such ground contains the elements essential to growing roses, but nevertheless it is true, as can be easily determined by trial. The mixture of grass to use in seeding down ground for sod must be determined by the climate, soil and other surroundings. I think growers should experiment on the effect of crops grown on the soil previous to sodding and after a few years of careful investigation, just what is best can be more easily determined.

The Abyssinian Primrose

Primula verticillata, the Abyssinian Primrose, is a plant whose beauty demands that it should be grown far more in gardens than it is at present. It forms a splendid subject for greenhouse decoration, and its clear yellow flowers produced in whorls, the farina-covered foliage and, above all, its delicate fragrance never fails to charm.

The seeds should be sown now, in pans of light soil and kept shaded from bright sunshine. When the seedlings are large enough to handle they should be transplanted to flats or pans, placing them 1½ inches apart. On attaining sufficient size they should be potted into 3-inch pots, still keeping them in a fairly light compost. When the pots become full of roots the plants may be transferred to 5-inch pots, in which they will flower, using a somewhat heavier compost, to which has been added some well-decayed manure. As the plants become pot-bound, feeding may be resorted to, using any approved complete fertilizer. It is necessary at this stage to be careful not to splash water on to the foliage as this washes off the farina and tends to spoil their appearance. Although the Abyssinian Primrose will stand a fairly low temperature it is not advisable to grow it in a house where the night temperature falls below 45 degrees—cold draughts also must be avoided.

By following the directions given above it will be possible to have plants in flower towards the end of April when their attractive appearance and long period of blooming will not fail to compensate for the really small amount of trouble involved in growing them.

Signs of animation

It is stated that the Massachusetts Fruit Show which is to be held Nov. 7 to 10 this year has settled upon an entirely new policy as regards the prizes and their award and in other matters of vital importance. If the show is to exert any educational influence on the public, which is one of its avowed aims, it can hardly go too far in the way of new departure from the methods prevailing hitherto in fruit exhibitions in New England which, probably all right and progressive a generation or two ago are antiquated and decidedly out of touch with the necessities of today. It is good to see that the Massachusetts Fruit Growers' Association realizes this fact and proposes to wake up the slumberers.

One kind of renaming

Touching upon the several recent notes in these columns and in certain foreign periodicals concerning the mischievous practice of renaming plants we should like to just allude to the fact that sometimes in the case of varieties of florists' flowers the nurseryman who catalogues and sells a variety under a name different from that given to it by its introducer is not wholly blamable. We recall an instance—when the introducer of the pink sport of Ivory chrysanthemum named it Miss Agnes Louise Dalskov. But the trade and the public adopted the flower under the name of Pink Ivory and so it stands today except in the lists of very scrupulous dealers who give the original harsh and inelegant name in brackets after the popular name. How can anyone ever expect popularity, in English-speaking countries at least, for roses under such names as Comte Fred. de Thun-Hohenstein, Lena Schmidt-Michel, Zepherin Drouhin or Jonkeer J. L. Mock? It is a good wager that Frau Karl Druschki and other jaw-breaking names as applied to some of the most beautiful roses have cost the introducers and dealers a large sum and while deprecating the giving of the name Mrs. Taft to a rose already introduced under the title of Antoine Revoire it might as well be accepted that, regardless of whatever the nurserymen may do, the name of Taft will stick to that rose as long as it exists. The lesson from all this is that simple, euphonious names should always be selected if the introducer wants to see his subject gain popularity and permanency. A popular name will not make a good rose out of a poor one but it will go far towards making a good one popular and will be the best provision against any temptation to rename it.

"Get together"

A member of the Photographers' Association at the convention of that body in Philadelphia last week gave his fellow photographers some pertinent talk. We clip from the Philadelphia North American for the benefit of our readers, the following, from a synopsis of the speech referred to.

"Get together; boost, advertise." That was the slogan of a breezy, pithy address recently at the afternoon session of the Photographers' Association of America, in convention in Horticultural Hall, by G. W. Harris, of Washington, D. C.

"Photographers," said Mr. Harris, "are not competitors of each other. Their competitors are the jeweler, the butcher, the clothier. I believe that, instead of trying to get ahead of each other, all the photographers in every community should work together. They should adopt a good system of advertising which will bring business to all the studios.

"Photographers do not exploit their wares enough and, in consequence, the average person is photographed only once every ten years. If a campaign of advertising and boosting were carried on, I believe that every one would be photographed every two or three years, or even oftener."

Anyone familiar with the conditions as they exist today in the flower business will quickly recognize where the above quoted remarks fit this industry also. In their zeal to secure, each for himself, as large a share of the trade as possible, the element of individual rivalry among the florists has practically extinguished all concern for the aggrandizement of their products in the public esteem, as compared with other competing lines, such as jewelry, confectionery and others. It is encouraging to note, however, evidences of an awakening, which seems to augur well for the future. Indeed, the situation which is impending in the flower industry in all parts of the country will sooner or later compel the utilization of intelligent cooperative trade publicity methods in order to create a market for the enormously increasing production.

A New Hardy Moccasin Flower

(Cypripedium Franchetii)

On my last expedition (1910) for the Arnold Arboretum, I was fortunate enough to succeed in introducing from the Thibetan borderland living plants of three new and beautiful hardy cypripediums. Two of these flowered in the spring of last year and were illustrated in these columns, July 8, 1911. The third species flowered early in June, 1912, in the Arnold Arboretum. As will be seen from the accompanying photographic illustration, this new species, named in honor of the distinguished French botanist, the late Monsieur A. Franchet, in a general way resembles the Siberian C. macranthum, differing chiefly in its more hairy foliage and certain technical details. Like its allies, C. luteum and C. tibeticum, this newcomer promises to succeed under cultivation and should prove a welcome addition to gardens. All three are natives of upland regions and require a moist, shady situation and a compost rich in decaying leaves.

F. H. Wilson

IN BAR HARBOR.

A quartette of Boston horticulturists visited Bar Harbor, Me., on a "week-end trip" last week and experienced in full measure the invigorating air of Mt. Desert and the sumptuous hospitality of Messrs. George B. Dorr, Edward Kirk, A. E. Thatcher, W. T. Burton, F. H. Moses and others—a combination that it would be hard to beat.

There are no autos on Mt. Desert Island. The buckboard, with a span of speedy trotters, is the prevailing style of sight-seeing, and it is as enjoyable as it is unique. Nothing can be imagined more inspiring than the famous "22-mile drive" with its grand ocean views, sea-battered crags, evergreen-clad mountain heights, pine forests and palatial summer homes, surrounded by grounds in which nature and art have worked hand in hand to develop a veritable paradise.

Continual improvement is going on, not only in a private but a public way. Through the enterprise and philanthropic interest of George B. Dorr, a public reservation of 18,000 acres has been set apart, including a large part of the mountain peaks which characterize the island. Roads are being constructed and fire protection attended to throughout this vast public domain. Flowers are more vividly colored in the moist, cool atmosphere of Mt. Desert than those we are accustomed to see. Roses, sweet peas, hollyhocks, etc., are of dazzling brilliancy, and the lawns rival those of Ireland in their rich verdancy. In the laying out of the estates great care and skill has been exercised in harmonizing and linking together the wild scenery and the formality of the villa garden surroundings. Bar Harbor is one grand object lesson in this art for the gardener in search of suggestive examples.

Perhaps the finest example of fine gardening is seen in the estate of Mrs. J. S. Kennedy, where W. G. Burton has had charge during the past 14 years. It covers 25 acres. The Italian garden is the best of its type on the Island, there is a splendid garden of sweet peas and, as in all the estates here, a vegetable and fruit garden of highest merit. Rhododendrons do well here as their broad, rich, green foliage attests. In the greenhouses the greatest attraction is perhaps the graperies and melon houses. Such Muscats and Hamburgs as are now ripening have rarely been seen either in this country or abroad.

Point de Arcadie, George W. Vanderbilt's estate, is in the care of Edward Kirk, whose fame as a melon grower under glass is country wide. This is the place to see Royal Jubilee and Emerald Gem at their best. This is conducted for the time being as a sale place, and the vegetable garden is one of its chief assets. Tomatoes, under glass, are also an important item. Mr. Kirk does not regard favorably the tomato Lister's Prolific, which was recently awarded a silver medal at Boston. It is simply a question of productiveness, and this variety, he says, is too long-jointed. Sutton's Winter Beauty will give three times the quantity of fruit. Hubert's Marvel is also much prized. Holmes' Supreme promises well.

The D. C. Blair place, high up on the hill, is conspicuous for its splendid conifers, sloping lawns, Italian garden and hedges, all so well placed as to harmonize well with the wild surroundings. The chief charm of the place is, however, its magnificent setting of picturesque mountain scenery and sublime vistas of deep valleys and wild gorges. Eugene Mitchell has been in charge since the estate was laid out 12 years ago.

As our readers generally know, A. E. Thatcher went from Boston the past spring to take charge of the Mt. Desert Nurseries. These nurseries, owned by George B. Dorr, are quite extensive, embracing some 150 acres in a state of high cultivation. A branch is maintained at Northeast Harbor, in charge of Richard Rothe, an expert in hardy perennials, who is a frequent contributor to these columns. Evidences of able management are seen in all departments of the nursery, and Mr. Thatcher has already demonstrated that he is the right man in the right place. The variety of material carried is very large and many things are doing finely which are not considered reliable even down in New Jersey. Overhead sprinkling systems have been quite generally adopted for Japanese irises, vegetable gardens and other departments where abundant water is essential. A novel adaption of Actinidia arguta has been made in its use as a hedge plant. They are grown on wires stretched six feet high and clipped in the same manner as privet.

We were pleased to see the veteran Bar Harbor florist Fred H. Moses still at his post. He has a spacious, handsomely equipped store and is prosperous and happy, with the right hand of fellowship finely developed.

A CORRECTION.

Kenneth Finlayson calls our attention to an error in his communication on "The Renaming Evil," as printed on page 116c in last week's issue. "Enchantress, Red Fascinator" should read: "Enchantress renamed Fascinator." In his copy Mr. Finlayson had used an abbreviation for "renamed," which was misunderstood.

Open Classes—Gladiolus Blooms.

W. Atlee Burpee Co. prize, $10.00. Best collection, 10 varieties, 6 spikes each.
M. Crawford prize, $5.00. Best 12 spikes, any white variety.
E. H. Cushman prize, $5.00. Best 25 spikes of any named white variety.
Wilbur A. Christy prize, $10.00. Best vase of Mapleshade, not less than 10 spikes.
Wilbur A. Christy prize, $5.00. Best vase of Rose Queen, not less than 10 spikes.
Vaughan's Seed Store prize, Silver cup. Best 25 spikes Kunderli Glory.
Vaughan's Seed Store prize, Silver medal. Best display of Kunderli Glory, Chas Hutchinson and Princes.
T. A. Havemeyer prizes, $5.00 each. Best 6 spikes, white variety; best 6 spikes, bluish or pink; best 6 spikes, yellow; best 6 spikes, crimson or red; best 6 spikes, blue.
F. Henderson & Co. prize, $10.00. Best varieties not now on the market, 3 spikes each.
W. E. Kirchoff & Co. prize, Gold medal. Best 25 spikes Princepine.
H. H. Groff prize, $10.00. Best display in white and light shades, dark shades, blue shades, yellow shades, not less than 6 varieties in each color section, not less than 3 spikes each variety.
Frank Banning prizes, $5.00 each. Best vase of America; best vase of Niagara; best vase of Panama; and $10.00 for best display of America, Niagara and Panama.
C. Betscher prize, $10.00. Best collection of Primulinus and hybrids of Primulinus type.
N. L. Crawford prize, $5.00. Best red seedling to be distinct and valuable.
Mrs. Francis King prize, $10.00. The most harmonious and beautiful color arrangement of cut Gladioli. Number of colors and quality to count. Not less than 50 spikes.
Mrs. Burke Roche prize, $50.00. Best new yellow Gladiolus, in color similar to the Marechal Neil rose.
A. H. Austin prize, $5.00. Best collection of 10 new varieties never before exhibited, 3 spikes each.
Jacob Thoman & Sons prize, $10.00. Best 25 spikes of any white variety.
E. E. Stewart prizes, $5.00 each. Best Gladiolus, President Taft, 25 spikes; best Golden Queen, 25 spikes; best Michigan, 12 spikes; best Purity, 12 spikes.
A. Henderson & Co. prize, $7.50. Best collection white varieties named, 3 spikes each.
A. E. Kunderl prizes, $5.00, best collection of ruffled Primulinus hybrids, $10.00, best collection of new ruffled Gladiolus, 1 to 3 spikes each.

H. W. Koerner prize, $10.00. Best exhibit, 25 spikes Early Bird.

Amateur Class.

A. T. Boddington prize, $10.00. Best collection, 6 varieties, 6 spikes each.
L. Merton Gage prize, $5.00. Best collection, 5 varieties, blue shades, 1 spike each.
Montague Chamberlain prize, $10.00. Best collection, 5 varieties yellow shades, 6 spikes each.
Vaughan's Seed Store, prize, Cut glass dish, value $10.00. Best 25 spikes Chicago White.
S. E. Spencer prize, Cup, value $5.00. Best vase of 25 spikes, mixed varieties.
A. Cowee prize, $25.00. Best vase, 50 spikes of Peace.
W. E. Kirchoff & Co. prize, silver medal. Best 12 spikes Princepine.
Dr. C. Hoeg prize, $5.00. Best 3 seedlings raised by an amateur.
B. Hammond Tracy prize, Silver and glass vase and plateau. Best table decoration, table laid for six covers.
John Lewis Childs prize, $10.00. Best display of 15 varieties, 3 spikes each.
Mr. Albert Lahodney prize, $5.00. Best exhibit of Europa, not less than 10 spikes.
H. W. Koerner prize, $5.00. Best exhibit, 12 spikes Early Bird.
Stumpff & Walter Co. prize, $10.00. Best display of 10 named varieties, 3 spikes each.

Special Class.

Michell Seed House prize, Silver medal. Best white Gladiolus shown at the exhibit and to be awarded as an additional prize if the same variety has received a regular award. No entry will be necessary for this award.

prize and the variety to receive this award must contain merit.

Michell Bronze medal. To be awarded for the best pink Gladiolus and the condition described for the awarding of the silver medal will hold good for the bronze medal.

Special—Open to Amateurs Only.

American Gladiolus Society prizes. Exhibit of at least 15 varieties correctly labeled, 3 spikes each. First prize, silver medal; second, bronze medal.

Preliminary Schedule for National Flower Show, New York, April, 1913.

Gladiolus Forced Blooms—Open to All.

1. Collection of large flowering varieties, to occupy 40 sq. ft.—$10.00 1st, $5.00 2d.
2. Collection of named varieties (not of the Colvillei or Nanus types), to occupy 20 sq. ft.—$10.00 1st, $5.00 2d.
3. Collection of Colvillei and Nanus types, to occupy 20 sq. ft.—$10.00 1st, $5.00 2d.
4. Collection 24 spikes, not less than four large flowering varieties $10.00 1st, $5.00 2d.
5. Vase, not less than 12 spikes, one variety, large flowering—$10.00 1st, $5.00 2d.
6. Single spike, any variety—$3.00 1st, $2.00 2d.
7. Artistically arranged basket of blooms—$5.00 1st, $3.00 2d.
8. Dinner table, set for four, decorated with Gladiolus blooms $10.00 1st, $5.00 2d.

Special Prizes.

John Lewis Childs, prize $10.00—Best display Gladiolus Blanche.

E. E. Stewart, prize $5.00—Best vase of 12 spikes Gladiolus Golden Queen.

A. E. Kunderl, prize $5.00 and 100 bulbs of Chicago White—Best 25 or more spikes of Chicago White (forced).

B. H. Tracy, prize $5.00—Best vase, not less than 10 spikes of forced Gladiolus, Mrs. James H. Lancashire.

Mrs. A. H. Austin, prize $5.00—Best 6 spikes of any new yellow variety, never before exhibited.

Arthur Cowee, prize $5.00—Best vase of blue varieties, not less than four varieties nor less than three spikes of each variety.

Frank Banning, prizes $10.00 each, for best vase America, Niagara, and Panama.

Rowehl & Granz, prizes $10.00 1st, $5.00 2d; $2.50 3d—Exhibit of Gladiolus Augusta.

Chamberlain & Gage, prize $10.00—Best vase 25 spikes Gladiolus Blushing Bride.

Henry F. Michell Co., prize silver medal—Best white Gladiolus shown at the exhibit and to be awarded as an additional prize if the same variety has received a regular award. No entry will be necessary for this prize and the variety to receive this award must contain merit.

Henry F. Michell Co., prize bronze medal—Best pink Gladiolus, and the conditions described for the awarding of the silver medal will hold good for the bronze medal.

Chamberlain & Gage, prize $10.00—Best vase 25 spikes Gladiolus Blushing Bride.

L. MERTON GAGE, Cor. Sec.

Public notice is hereby given that the following named varieties of gladioli have been registered by the Nomenclature Committee of the American Gladiolus Society:

By D. C. Koeg, Decorah, Iowa.
Decoration: orange pink, throat somewhat lighter, suffused with pale yellow. Flowers large, four and one-half inches across; well placed; of good form and substance. Plant strong and healthy with dark green foliage and straight stem. Height 3½ to 4 feet. A good multiplier. Blossomed first in 1908. Originator's description.

Hiawatha (No. 10): light salmon pink with yellow blotches in the throat. Medium sized flowers, four inches across. Medium strong grower with healthy dark green foliage and straight stem. Height probably three feet. A medium multiplier. Blossomed first in 1908. Originator's description.

TWO IMPORTANT NEW COMMERCIAL FERNS

Cyrtomium Rochfordianum

THE CRESTED HOLLY FERN

The Most Valuable Decorative Fern of Recent Introduction

A most important addition to our list of Ferns. Its foliage is of a rich, deep, glossy green color, the pinnae or leaflets besides being wavy or undulated are also deeply cut or toothed, giving the plant a graceful light appearance, which make it valuable not only as a dish Fern but decorative work and for apartment use.

2½ inch pots, 75 cts. per dozen; $5.00 per 100; $10.00 per 1000. Also a limited lot of flats of about 200 plants each, at $3.00 per flat.

Adiantum Farleyense Gloriosa

THE GLORY FERN or RUHM VON MORDRECHT

The Fern Which Will Revolutionize the Cut Frond Business.

For the grower of Ferns for cutting this new Malden Hair will undoubtedly prove a most important addition; it closely resembles Adiantum Farleyense and will make a splendid substitute for that fancy variety and it can be produced at much less cost, as it will thrive under conditions in which Adiantum Farleyense could not exist.

At our Riverview Nursery we have given it a very fair trial for this purpose during the past winter. A block of these plants were planted on a bench in a house devoted to the ordinary Boston Fern and received the ordinary treatment and temperature given to the Nephrolepis, and under this treatment they developed not only fronds of great beauty on longer, stiffer stems than Farleyense produces, but also many more fronds than would be developed by that variety in the same length of time under the most favorable condition.

For the grower of Ferns for cutting this new Malden Hair will undoubtedly prove a most important addition; it closely resembles Adiantum Farleyense and will make a splendid substitute for that fancy variety and it can be produced at much less cost, as it will thrive under conditions in which Adiantum Farleyense could not exist.

Anyone who successfully grows the ordinary varieties of Adiantum grow it under precisely the same conditions given to these sorts.

We have a fine block of about 30,000 young plants coming on which will be ready to send out in September from 2½-inch pots, and for which we are now booking orders at $2.00 per doz.; $15.00 per 100; $140.00 per 1000.

FERNS IN FLATS

These flats contain about two hundred plants each, only one variety in a flat, and we cannot supply less than a full flat of any one of the following varieties:

ASPIDIUM TSUSSIMENSE
CYRTOMIUM FALCATUM
CYRTOMIUM FORTUNEI
POLYSTICHUM SETOSUM
PTERIS ADIANTOIDES

PTERIS ALBA LINEATA
PTERIS MAGNIFICA
PTERIS MAJUS OR OUVRARDI
PTERIS WIMSETTI MULTICEPS
PTERIS WILSONI

Samples of the above, as well as a complete line of other Dreer Specials, will be shown at the Chicago Convention and our staff of Salesmen will be present to give full information regarding same.

LENOX HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

This society held its first Sweet Pea Show on July 23d and by all appearances of the crowds it was very much appreciated. The arrangements were well carried out and the show was a great success. We hope that next year all the fine gardens in Lenox will be represented and thus make the Sweet Pea Show an annual event. The displays for effect were judged by Mr. G. Turnure, Mr. W. B. O. Field and Miss Charlotte Barnes, and the remaining exhibits by Messrs. Wingate, Page and Smith. The list of awards is as follows:

24 vases distinct, 1st S. P. Shotter, 2d Giraud Foster, 3d Mrs. Field; 18 vases, Giraud Foster, Mrs. Griswold, Mrs. Field; 12 vases, S. P. Shotter, Giraud Foster, Mrs. G. Turnure; 6 vases, Giraud Foster, Miss Furniss, Mrs. Jesup. In the classes for one vase of specified color S. P. Shotter took six firsts and two seconds, Miss Furniss two seconds and one third, Mrs. N. Morris one third, Mrs. Griswold one second, W. M. Salisbury one third, Mrs. Field one second and three thirds, Giraud Foster two firsts, two seconds and one third. In the classes for three vases, distinct varieties, one color, S. P. Shotter won three firsts, seven seconds and one third, G. Foster eight firsts and three seconds, Mrs. Field one second and four thirds. Display to occupy 16 sq. ft., G. Foster, S. P. Shotter. Single vase arranged for effect, Mrs. W. D. Sloane, G. Foster, S. P. Shotter. Basket, W. M. Salisbury, Mrs. W. D. Sloane, G. Foster. A first-class certificate was awarded to Giraud Foster for a display of 98 distinct varieties and an award of merit was given to some very fine melons and peaches shown by Mrs. M. K. Jesup and Mrs. W. E. S. Griswold.

A WATERSIDE GROUP.

Our cover illustration this week shows one use of water in formal gardening. The accompanying picture shows just the opposite—a bit of natural water gardening. Nobody can help admiring the pontederias, sagittarias, sedges and willows which, growing on the water edge, make up this pretty summer scene with its suggestion of inviting coolness and fragrance.

tees have provided some good things for those who attend.

The Canadian Horticultural Association will hold its annual convention in Montreal, P. Q., on August 6, 7, 8 and 9. George A. Robinson, Outremont, Que., is superintendent of the trade exhibition and Julius Luck, 1018 Queen Mary Road, Montreal, is secretary.

THE ASBURY PARK ATTENDANCE.

My compliments to Mr. Denegar and beg to assure him that with the rest of the horticultural world—I fully appreciate his heroic work in giving a flower show at Asbury Park in mid-summer and commend their publicity department in the highest degree. We hope they will repeat the operation next year, and, with added experience, get the crowd. That exhibit of Duke's alone—if adequately exploited—was enough to pack the house. But the publicity department apparently did not have the little bird near them to tell them just what to do. You see, Mr. Editor, my "ability to criticize" is quite unimpaired.

GEORGE C. WATSON.

PERSONAL.

William F. and Adolphus Gude of Washington, D. C., spent the week at Old Point Comfort.

W. W. Chenoweth, of Columbia, Mo., secretary of the Missouri State Board of Horticulture, has resigned his position to take a place as instructor in the Massachusetts State Agricultural College.

Thomas Pegler has resigned his position in the Boston Flower Market and will return to his former avocation of grower which he believes will benefit his health. Mr. Pegler is the popular president of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston and a host of friends will wish him success in whatever he undertakes.

During Recess.

Florists' Club of Washington.

It takes more than the heaviest kind of a rain storm to keep the florists and their friends away from the annual outings and even though the rain fell in torrents there was a very large crowd at Chesapeake Beach on this occasion. Many entertainment and athletic features had been planned by the Kallipolis Grotto, whose outing was held jointly with the florists, but the rain prevented many of these. Fancy dances were presented by a number of juvenile entertainers who also rendered a number of popular songs. Along the board walk paraded the "suffragettes" of the Grotto, headed by the latter's special band. Fred Kramer, as the policeman, kept order among an unusually quiet crowd and dressed in the uniform of a "cop" he was successful in hiding his identity for a long time.

An effort was made to run off some of the athletic events on the veranda of the Casino where the members of the club and the Grotto sought refuge from the storm, but nothing much was accomplished in the way of producing record-breaking results.

At a meeting of the members of the joint committee of the club and the Grotto it was decided to hold another outing in the near future and it is probable that Great Falls, Va., will be selected as the place. Here will be pulled off the postponed athletics, including the ball game between the Grotto and the Club.

New Orleans Horticultural Society.

This Society made a record in the way of an outing, the affair lasting three days and consisting of a boat ride to Grand Isle, two nights and a day's outing on the island and a return trip on the power-boat Hazel, which had been chartered by the Society for the occasion.

There was one continuous round of genuine pleasure, including boating, surf bathing, dancing, research in the primitive woods of the small island, and the novel feature of attending the wedding of two of the most prominent people on the island. During the outing sumptuous meals of marine food, fruits, vegetables and everything that would tempt epicurians, was served aboard the boat.

On the return trip the last meal was in banquet form, during which many toasts were responded to in a most befitting manner by the guests and members of the Society. Secretary Charles R. Panter made the principal address.

New Bedford (Mass.) Horticultural Society.

This society held its first picnic on July 25, with a clambake at Padanaram. Over 100 members and friends participated.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Baltimore held their annual outing on July 18th, at Chesapeake Beach, a noted shore resort. The weather was very rainy but mirth and joy were unconfined and as there was a good turnout of members with their families, it was a case of never mind the weather, everybody out for a good time.

Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston.

ST. LOUIS NOTES.

Arthur Kring, of Berning's, and Frank Windler, of Smith's, are off on their vacations.

The whole force, from the bosses down, of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. took an outing on Saturday afternoon crawfishing on C. E. De Wever's grounds at Olivette.

Nicholas Hock has a new position as gardener for R. S. Brookings, president of Washington University. This is one of the best private places in the city.

J. H. TROY, New Rochelle, N. Y.

Mr. Hock was assistant to Wm. Bouche, landscape gardener.

Miss Ella Nehring and Miss Tittle Winter, for many years with the Riessen Floral Co., have resigned their positions, as both will be married this month. Both were excellent workers and will be greatly missed.

Visitors—L. R. Condon, seedsman, of Rockford, Ill.; Miss R. Zender, daughter of Adam Zender, Chicago.

TWO EXQUISITE NEW LILIES.

Lilium sutchuenense is a dainty little orange-yellow lily. It was awarded honorable mention by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society at the Sweet Pea Show in Boston, July 13, 1912.

The other picture shows Lilium

Lilium Duchartrei.

Duchartrei, another pretty little gem, white dotted with violet and very unique. It was honored with a first-class certificate at the same time and place. Both of these lilies are Wilson introductions, perfectly hardy, and were exhibited by R. & J. Farquhar & Co.

CHICAGO NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Oechslin are enjoying a motor trip in Michigan.

E. B. Washburn, son of Chas. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, is convalescing.

C. M. Dickinson, manager of E. H. Hunt, is again in Michigan camping on the lake shore.

Paul M. Bryant is now numbered with the office force of the Foley Manufacturing Co., where he will take charge of the work on the new catalogue.

Everything is moving smoothly conventionward and the Chicago florists will prove themselves more proficient in making and carrying out plans than in talking. All the various committees are quietly at work and as the time draws near details are rapidly nearing completion.

Vacationists—A. Lange, week-end trips; John Kruchten and family at Hackley, Wis.; Allie Zech and wife, lake trip; R. Northam and family at Montague, Mich.; John Michelsen, weekly trips to country; A. C. Kohlbrandt, Torts City Mich.; P. L. McKee and family at Culver, Ind.; F. E. Winterson Jr., in Indianapolis and other Indiana points; W. Bufo in Michigan; Geo. Goble at Eagle Lake, Wis.

NEW YORK NOTES.

H. A. Scollery, Chatham, N. J., just returned from a trip to England.

Harry Goldberg of A. T. Boddington's has just returned from two weeks in the Catskills looking as brown as the proverbial berry.

A horse attached to a delivery wagon of the Kervan Co. on W. 28th street took fright and ran away last Tuesday morning. There was big excitement for a brief time but no damage resulted.

The recent heavy rains have greatly improved vegetation in this vicinity. Carnations in the field while having had a good start this season, had begun to feel the want of natural moisture and it is quite a relief to see the improvement apparent all around.

Moore, Hentz & Nash, who have acquired the Bedford Flower Co., Bedford Hills, will be cutting for market in a couple of weeks. A large amount of money has been spent on the venture, about the success of which there cannot be much doubt with Mr. Hentz as visiting manager and Mr. Pritchard (late of Budlong's) as resident foreman.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON The noticeable features of this market at present are the rapidly increasing asters and gladioli, the insignificant place held by the carnation in the general output and the low quality of most of the roses coming in. Beauties run fairly good and there is no scarcity. Of the other roses little can be said for there is a big lot of rubbish from young stock coming in daily. Carnot is, however, grand and Taft is not far behind. Chrysanthemum Golden Glow is already in evidence and our versatile friend, Bob McGorum, is the guilty party. The price $1.50 per doz. is far too low for such fine goods.

A decided change came BUFFALO in the tone of the market the past week and for the betterment of the trade in general. Carnations which a week previous were overplentiful and lacking in demand were on the short supply side as were also roses. Asters have not come on heavy and there practically was not much stock in the market other than a few gladioli and lilies. Trade has improved somewhat. The outlook for the early crop of asters is not promising though recent rains have helped the late crops the first picking of which are expected about Aug. 15. There are plenty of greens to be had.

A feature of the market CHICAGO now is the presence of new American Beauties, with stems about two feet long but the rapid growth they are making will soon increase the length. There are also a few old Beauties left, the stems of which are much longer but the flowers not so good as on the young stock. In miscellaneous roses, the demand is largely for the new varieties, and among them Sunburst seems to be very popular and its appearance now indicates that it is proving a very successful summer rose. Maryland, if cut tight, is also showing up well now, and Rhea Reid and the ever faithful Kaiserin have places on many counters piling up the dollars during the hot weather. The two Killarneys and Richmond are in seclusion somewhere with carnations waiting for cooler days to come. Cold storage lilies are in good demand but prices are low even for summer. Large quantities of asters are coming in, the better grades selling most rapidly. Lily of the valley is rather slow in moving now. The usual out-door flowers are in and of good quality. Plenty of green adds its share to the market. Water lilies are centers of attraction in the florists' windows, their rich coloring and graceful form making them ideal summer flowers and their lasting qualities are good. Sales also are satisfactory and several shipments per week have been received by some of the retailers regularly to supply their trade in these "Egyptian" lilies.

Demand is fairly active, but not active enough to maintain stiff prices in any line. All choice stock moves quickly while the shorter sells languidly. A brief resumé of this month shows that at all times there was easily a sufficiency of stock.

Only once was the market tight and that lasted scarcely a week. During the early days the large cuts of carnations kept down average prices and hardly before they ceased to be an important factor asters and gladioli were arriving. The corresponding month last year was vastly different; the supply was short, demand very good and usually high prices ruled. There was hardly a dull day during the entire month. Right now all seasonable flowers can be had in quantity. Practically all the gladioli offerings are those of the large choice varieties.

The market has never in the past seen such an assortment of good stock as this year. It can hardly be said, however, that it realizes the prices it should bring when quality is considered. The long choice asters find a good sale while the short ones move slowly. American Beauties sell well and are proving good property.

Marketable flowers are very scarce, sweet peas and carnations are about gone, and the only good roses coming in are Fred Breitmeyer's short and medium Beauties and long La Detroit. Gladioli are very poor at present, so the longiflorum and lancifolium lilies represent the only good flowers in quantity. Asters are commencing to come in but they are very small yet.

With the city pretty well empty of society there has been a great falling off in store trade, and business has been and of course will be for some time very slack; there is a great drop in carnations both in quality and price. Asters are good with more than enough to go around; gladioli in plenty. Beauties very scarce, but we have had a few fairly good Tafts, Brides and 'Maids. Maidenhair which has been very poor of late is getting longer and firmer in stem. Other stocks are not worth mentioning.

Stocks shortened up all along the line last week with the exception of asters and gladioli. The latter were more plentiful but not enough to hurt. In consequence the marketmen wear a more cheerful smile and say that it was a pretty good week for mid-summer. Everything cleaned up nicely and while no fancy prices were obtained the general average realized was very satisfactory, and better than was expected at this date. American Beauty roses are scarce and not very good. It will be a month yet before the new crop commences. Mrs. Taft is very good at present. But when all is said and done Maryland is the summer rose, in pink, although there are some pretty good pink Killarney. White roses are scarce. In fact white flowers of all kinds are rather on the scarce side. Yes—even lily of the valley! But the latter is due to carelessness on the part of the growers in not paying closer attention to their market; and not from causes beyond their control. The gladioli offerings continue fine as to quality and asters are steadily improving. The old carnation crop is about wound up. Very good gardenias are available at reasonable prices and these are very welcome now in the present dearth of good white flowers. Greens of all kinds are plentiful with prices in favor of the buyers. There is a good demand for surplus stocks of field-grown carnation plants. The quality of these this year is above the average—the late welcome rains having come just in the nick of time.

The market here had a good week, some days quite busy, but the bulk of the stock sold is in light colors, as the work is mostly for funerals. The stock that is coming in is suprisingly good as the weather has been very hot of late. There are some very good roses, especially Killarneys, both pink and white. Asters are beginning to come in more freely, but not many of the fancy varieties from local growers. Gladioli spikes have been a glut all week. Lily of the valley is selling well. Sweet peas have been too many for the demand, and sell low.

The amount of business done and the class of stock that is coming into the local market is about the same as is usual at this period of each year. But little in either direction can be expected. Funeral work has been quite plentiful for several weeks but there is little doing along the other lines, although George Cooke had a very nice order in the way of decorations for the Garlington wedding. The numerous rainy days have caused a marked decrease in street business and has had a tendency to keep people away from the markets and the stores.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

Rudbeckia Golden Glow, achillea and gaillardia add a little touch of variety to a bald and uninteresting market.

We do not know what has agitated the tinfoil market. Maybe Wilson. Maybe the Bull Moose. Anyhow, she's stiffened up. Fine work somewhere.

The young lady whose picture appears on page 116 of last week's issue is Janet, daughter of Robert Craig, Jr. A lovely picture. Hey for ane an' twenty, Janet.

A. B. Cartledge was in Philadelphia on the 29th ulto brown and salt seasoned from a three weeks' yacht cruise up and down the Atlantic Seaboard. He goes off again Saturday for another two weeks.

Robert Schoch has returned from a two weeks' marine vacation at Harvey Cedars. He thinks he will have no trouble in winning the next fat-man trophy if they ever let a bean pole enter the lists again.

Charles Sim writes from Glasgow, under date of July 15th, announcing "all well and a good voyage"; and with his own felicitations, sends the kind regards of his fellow voyagers Hugh Dickson, Alexander B. Scott and Geo. Fowler.

B. Eschner has been busy the past few days in arranging for the exhibit at Chicago of florists' supplies and ribbons from the House of Rice. He promises some startling novelties in both specialties, and that the exhibit will surpass any that M. Rice & Co. have ever shown.

The Rice Co. have at last got their bridges between their old and new buildings completed. A great deal of trouble was experienced and much time consumed in red tape with fire and building permits with the city officials; but all is now O. K. and the old storage and manufacturing facilities are doubled.

The next meeting of the Florists' Club will be notable as arrangements will then be completed for the trip to Chicago. The various committees—transportation, hotels, sports, etc.—will report, and the discussions thereon will be lively. Aug. 6th is the date. Be on hand, and help set things going the way you want them.

John Jensen: "You don't dare promise anything to a customer just now, seeing that the growers have stopped growing Kaiserin."

Simple Sydney: "What's the matter with the growers, John, that they have stopped growing Kaiserin?"

John (with intense disgust): "Ach-h! They want to make a million, all in a minute—and they fall all over themselves."

Bring Back the Birds

While you are working out your ideal in the garden, why not provide a home for the birds that help to make life in the country really worth while? A rustic house placed in a tree or on a pole will make an excellent home for the birds and add to the attractiveness of the surroundings. We have them in all sizes and shapes to suit any style of architecture.

Obituary.

Julius M. Lown.

Julius M. Lown, violet grower, East Market street, Rhinebeck, N. Y., died recently. He was a pioneer in violet growing in this section but retired about a year ago.

Mrs. Barbara Rieman.

Mrs. Barbara Rieman, widow of Charles Rieman and step-mother of John Rieman, florist, 203 Massachusetts avenue, Indianapolis, Ind., died on July 18 after a short illness.

John W. Richmond.

John William Richmond, florist and gardener, died at his home, Bath avenue and Bay Thirty-fourth street, Bath Beach, N. Y., on July 22, aged 54 years. He came to this country from England twenty years ago. His wife survives him.

Adelard Provencher.

Adelard Provencher, employed by Ernest Saunders, florist of Lewiston, Me., committed suicide at the Daggett farm in Greene, on July 24. Despondency over the loss of his wife is thought to have been the cause. He was about 35 years of age and leaves a daughter, and three sons.

Caspar Abrams.

On July 24, Caspar Abrams, florist, Hoyt and Fulton streets, Brooklyn, N. Y., died at his home, aged 80 years. He was a native of Germany and came to this country in 1862, locating in Brooklyn. He retired in 1900 and turned the business over to his two sons who with three daughters survive him.

Francis A. Baller.

On July 10, Francis A. Baller, nurseryman and florist, Franklin avenue and Beecher street, Bloomington, Ill., died suddenly at his home, aged 77 years. He was born in Somerset, England, and came to America before the civil war. In 1871 he established a wholesale florist business in Bloomington.

W. J. Hudson.

W. J. Hudson, manager of the Alpha Nursery & Floral Co., Yellow Pine, Ala., died on July 19. He was formerly with the Southern Nursery Co. and took charge of the Alpha Nursery upon its establishment about two years ago. He was a Virginian by birth and had conducted a nursery in that state before going to Alabama. His wife and a family of children survive him.

NEWS NOTES.

Palmyra, N. J.—F. R. Matsinger has sold his greenhouses.

Hingham, Mass.—Herbert A. Vining will conduct the florist business of his late brother.

Waterloo, Wis.—A large nursery storage house will be erected here by the McKay Bros. Nursery Co.

Dansville, N. Y.—Denton, Williams & Denton is the name of a new nursery company recently organized here.

Hamilton, N. Y.—The Hamilton greenhouses have been leased by Clayton E. Risley, with privilege of purchase.

Fremont, Neb.—Over 400 lights of glass in the greenhouses of Andreason Bros., Boulevard and I streets, were broken by hail recently.

Putnam, Conn.—The greenhouse on Providence street, formerly owned by Alex Main, is being moved to Dr. Shepard's place in Woodstock.

Quincy, Mich.—The Park Greenhouses, property of Philip Thomas, have been sold to William Reno, of Macon, Ga. Mr. Thomas retires on account of ill health.

Peoria, Ill.—The greenhouses and business of Louis Miller & Sons, Lake avenue and Railroad, have been purchased by the Jacobs & Hicken Floral Co., a newly organized firm.

Beverly Farms, Mass.—Israel Barnes, who has been conducting the nursery business established by the late Jess Pierce, is to move the business to Manchester, where he has purchased property on Pleasant street.

Montreal, Canada.—The property of A. C. Wilshire at Outremont has been sold and a new location further out has been secured. T. Gorman's property, also in Outremont has passed into the hands of real estate dealers.

Bloomsburg, Pa.—The headquarters of J. L. Dillon will hereafter be on East Fifth street as the property where the Normal Hill houses stand has been sold. The removal of the greenhouses will be done by degrees.

West Manchester, Mass.—Mrs. R. C. Winthrop has very generously offered the use of the field on her estate for the use of the North Shore Horticultural Society for their flower show on Wednesday and Thursday, August 21 and 22. The exhibition ought to be a big success and North Shore people will, doubtless, take hold of it with much interest, inasmuch as the society will give the entire receipts of the show to the Beverly Hospital.

GREENHOUSES BUILDING OR CONTEMPLATED.

Highland Park Houses---Rochester, N. Y.

THEY are called the Lamberton Memorial houses, having been given to the city by Mrs. Mary Starbuck as an appreciation of her brother, Alexander B. Lamberton, who is President of the Board of Park Commissioners. In the vestibule gable there is a beautiful bronze medallion of Mr. Lamberton with a suitable description.

The group of three houses in front are used entirely for show houses and are always open to the public both day and night. Even as Rochester has gained its merited name as The Flower City, equally has it won recognition for the unusual beauty and completeness of its greenhouse displays.

Great credit is due to the Superintendent of Parks, Mr. C. C. Laney, and his most able assistant, Mr. John Dunbar.

Will gladly send you other views and a complete description of the houses—all of which are Iron Frame.

SEEING how attractive and practical this arrangement is, do you wonder why THE LUTTON PATENT CURVED EAVE method has changed Greenhouse Construction during the past few years? The result has been the most successful house that can be produced; the other concerns who had been producing the same antiquated buildings for years had to simply destroy their patterns as well as their catalogues and start anew. Just ask some of our imitators to show you some of their curved eave houses built before THE LUTTON PATENT was granted; you will then be convinced that you had better consult with me.

TWO IMPORTANT NEW COMMERCIAL FERNS

Cyrtomium Rochfordianum THE CRESTED HOLLY FERN

The Most Valuable Decorative Fern of Recent Introduction

A most important addition to our list of Ferns. Its foliage is of a rich, deep, glossy green color, the pinnae or leaflets besides being wavy or undulated are also deeply cut or toothed, giving the plant a graceful light appearance, which make it valuable not only as a dish Fern but decorative work and for apartment use.

2½ inch pots, 75 cts. per dozen; $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000. Also a limited lot of flats of about 200 plants each, at $3.00 per flat.

Adiantum Farleyense Gloriosa

THE GLORY FERN or RUHM VON MORDRECHT

The Fern Which Will Revolutionize the Cut Frond Business.

For the grower of Ferns for cutting this new Maiden Hair will undoubtedly prove a most important addition; it closely resembles Adiantum Farleyense and will make a splendid substitute for that fancy variety and it can be produced at much less cost, as it will thrive under conditions in which Adiantum Farleyense could not exist.

At our Riverview Nursery we have given it a very fair trial for this purpose during the past winter. A block of these plants were planted on a bench in a house devoted to the ordinary Boston Fern and received the ordinary treatment and temperature given to the Nephrolepis, and under this treatment they developed not only fronds of great beauty on longer, stiffer stems than Farleyense produces, but also many more fronds than would be developed by that variety in the same length of time under the most favorable condition.

Anyone who successfully grows the ordinary varieties of Adiantum such as Cuneatum, Croweanum and Hybridum, can grow it under precisely the same conditions given to these sorts.

We have a fine block of about 30,000 young plants coming on which will be ready to send out in September from 2½-inch pots, and for which we are now booking orders at $2.00 per doz.; $15.00 per 100; $140.00 per 1000.

FERNS IN FLATS

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Care of Gardenias

Gardenias should have every possible care and attention from this out. It will not be very long now until we have some cool nights which will make the temperature fall too low for these plants. After August 20 it will be expedient to have a little heat running through the pipes so as to keep a night temperature of about 65 degrees. Attend well to ventilating so as not to cause an unequal temperature through the house. Start in the morning and keep on increasing the ventilation until about 80 degrees is reached with solar heat, and reduce the air in the afternoon the same way until the minimum of 68 or 70 degrees is reached. It will be necessary to thoroughly damp down the house two or three times a day, thus creating a nice moist atmosphere, which always encourages the right growing condition for the gardenia. Keep your beds moist, looking them over every day and watering where necessary. Give a good syringing on all bright days as it greatly helps to keep down red spider and mealy bug.

Cattleya gigas

Now that this grand cattleya is through flowering any repotting should be done. They do well in a mixture of soft fibrous peat and sphagnum moss intermixed. I have seen some growers use nothing but moderately coarse osmunda fiber to grow them in and they were fine. Give the pans or baskets half their depth of clean crocks with a layer of charcoal on top. See that you get the compost firmly all around and between the roots. Should any portion of the plant be unsteady tie it to a neat stick which will help them to stand firm until the new roots get a grip of the compost. Be very careful about the watering for four or five weeks, but when they once become re-established in the new compost they will require an unstinted amount of water at the roots. This orchid requires a little more warmth than most of the other species so always keep it at the warmer end of your cattleya house. When they take hold of the compost do not keep them too densely shaded as they like a rather strong light to grow in. Give ventilation as all cattleyas delight when there is a liberal supply of pure air but without cold draughts.

Cuttings of Geraniums

By taking cuttings now you will give your plants time to make up another good batch in September. It will be an advantage to let the cuttings lie under a bench for three or four hours before putting them in sand as it helps to take the sappiness out of them. Always trim the cuttings up well and cut below a leaf joint and you will have very little trouble in rooting them. After they are placed in sand give them a good soaking of water and break only the direct rays of the sun off them. They are better when kept slightly on the dry side until they begin to root and there is less likelihood of their damping off. In about a month they should be well rooted when they can be potted up firmly into 2½-inch pots, using any good loam. Give a thorough watering and then wait until they are dry before giving any more. Grow on in light airy house and by the middle of October you will be able to take a cutting from every one.

Daisies for Winter Flowering

Where you are growing marguerites for winter flowering now is the time to give them their last potting. Give them either an 8 or 9-inch pot, well drained. Marguerites are very strong feeders so give them a generous compost, adding at least one-third of cow manure to your soil. To keep them bushy and shapely pinch several times up to about October. They can be kept outdoors until about the middle of September when they should be given a cool and airy house to grow in. Now is the time to put in a good batch of cuttings which can be grown into 6 or 7-inch pots for Easter trade.

Ferns for Making up Dishes

Do not neglect to pot up a good lot of these small ferns for table decoration. Young plants that have attained a good size in flats can be potted into 2-inch pots and will make fine material to use by growing them on. They like a compost of loam, leaf mold and old cow manure in equal parts with enough of sand to keep it porous. Place them well up to the glass and on some ashes or sand which will keep them from continually drying out. Give just enough shade to exclude the strong rays of the sun. Keep the air heavily charged with moisture by syringing and damping down three or four times a day. Go over these young ferns three times a day and water where necessary, so they will not suffer from being dry at the roots. See that they have a nice circulation of fresh air by proper ventilation and spread them out from time to time so they will not crowd one another.

Roman Hyacinths

Have all flats in good order for these bulbs which are due to arrive any time this month. Give them a soil that has been unsparingly enriched with very old manure. When planting leave the top of the bulb just even with the top of the soil and be sure that the soil is made good and firm around each. Give the flats a thorough watering and place outside. It is important with Roman hyacinths that they make good root development before the tops begin to show, so place them where they can have a good cool place. Cover them up with from four to five inches of soil and examine them often in order to keep up the necessary amount of moisture at the roots.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Care of Palm; Chrysanthemums; Crocus; Preparing Compost for Winter; Primulas; Paper White Narciss.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

George H. Penson

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Penson. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Remove Shade From Early Vinery

Rains and the weather generally will have considerably diminished the amount of shade originally applied to the early vinery. If the shade has worn down to less than half of the original this will be sufficient for a time; if not it should be reduced by rubbing it off. From now on the idea must be to ripen the wood thoroughly, but precaution must be taken not to remove too much of the shading at one time and subject the foliage to the full extent of the sun's powers or a quantity of it will burn. Healthy foliage will still play its part for some time to come in aiding to develop the bud and cannot be replaced if once ruined.

Strawberries

Strawberries that were potted up two weeks ago will now be rooting through and should be "spaced." Arrange them in blocks so that it is easy to get in between them to water and syringe. At the same time remove any runners, useless foliage and weeds. Should the surface be hard and smooth now is the time to prick it up, using a pointed stick to do so. The whole business can be got through at the same time. The need of periodically repeating this will be plain to all. Do not commence feeding until the pots are well filled with roots. Should a little fly come around in spite of the syringing, a spray with some approved insecticide will soon rid the plants of them.

Prepare for Mushrooms

As soon as the temperature recedes far enough to allow of curing stable manure, make a start at preparing for the first mushroom bed. Location will determine the date, cooler states having an advantage over the warmer ones. The one thing necessary for this preparatory work is a cool, dry and airy shed. Let me say at the outset that the preparing of the manure for growing mushrooms is the key to success. Much has been written on this subject and yet there still remains much to be known. The uncertainty is as great as ever, but start right and be thorough in all details—turning, mixing and ramming, and spawn at the right temperature. Get the sufficient quantity of manure required to make up your bed in the shortest possible time, which will make the bed even. By this I mean, being of one age the bed will be constituted of ingredients which, if divided, would all furnish about the same amount of heat. This makes things uniform, right from the start. Collect manure from stables having horses in good health; chemicals given to sick horses have been known to kill the mycelium of mushrooms. From the beginning the heap of manure must be turned twice daily, taking out any long straw or corn cobs. The object in this repeated turning is to keep the manure from overheating or burning and yet retain sufficient ammonia to cause it to heat gradually when the bed is made up. This will also help to dry the manure out, which is a point often lost sight of. Have it in a "happy medium" condition at the time of making up. The thickness of the heaps as they are spread out on the drying shed floor will affect the manure materially. Experience is the only teacher in this line and never forget the old proverb, "If at first you don't succeed, try again." Making the beds and spawning will be dealt with later.

Winter Vegetables

Covering such a wide territory as HORTICULTURE and its readers do, it is no easy matter to approximate the dates for handling vegetables in spring and fall. We hope any extremists will make due allowance for all this. From now on the vegetable houses and frames will be filling up. Probably one of the first subjects to come under the hammer is lettuce. The first good frost renders this excellent salad useless. As a first defense make a planting in some cold frames which can easily be closed at night on the approach of frost. This will augment the supply from the vegetable house considerably as these latter can be brought along as a second batch to those in the frames. Periodical sowings can be made from now on. Have the main crop of good size before the cold, short days come as they will move along very slowly then.

Tomatoes

Tomatoes are relished at all times and with facilities for their production at hand they can be had all the year round. To grow tomatoes to their best advantage and profit to the grower they should be given a house to themselves. Whether large or small it will pay, sooner than mixing them up with all sorts of vegetation. They can be successfully grown in pots or boxes when only a few are required, but when giving up a house to them use benches. If the house is large enough plant them in the benches, two feet apart in the rows and eighteen inches between the rows, the wider distance being from east to west to allow the sun free access to the plants on the back of the bench. Using this method the plants can be staked like roses. If a small lean-to house is used the plants can be trained to wires near the glass as a vine is done. Winter tomatoes will be found a profitable crop. Where a succession of fruit is required a first batch can be sown now and grown on in pots outside, until inclement weather forces them under glass protection. Ten-inch pots are most suitable for the final pots. Eights will produce four good trusses. Leave sufficient room for top dressings when potting up and make moderately firm in the finals up to which time a light hand can be used. Tomatoes require a "step lively" gait right from the seed pan for once starved out the chances of success are considerably diminished.

Dwarf Beans

Late sowings of these made in the garden can be protected from early frosts by means of sash being put over them. A two weeks' longer season is thus ensured from outside sources. Figure on this and get the supply from outside as late as possible. It's a long time until spring again.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Tying and Staking Tea Roses

In houses planted in May and June, teas, if not already staked will call for stakes and tying now. We find it pays better to stake teas than to grow them on wires. We have no use for stakes for Beauties, which we find do much better with wires.

In tying tea roses do not pass a string around the whole plant with the stake in the center; that is no way to do, even though it is the custom on a good many places. Tie each strong shoot separately and low down so that the part left after the flower is cut will remain tied.

Do not bunch the wood together too much or a large amount of foliage will be lost, thus weakening the plants. Spider is also bound to get in and is very hard to dislodge from among the closely tied plants.

If your teas are on wires be careful to tie so as to be able to reach in very easily when cutting. A great many flowers are ruined by being bruised or torn on thorns while cutting. Roses mutilated thus can never be expected to bring the top notch price, which is not so very high at that.

Manure

Have you a good supply of manure on hand for this fall? If not now is the time to see to it for all growers should realize the importance of having the manure at the proper time. Fresh cow manure is not the best for roses and anyone using it should be sure he knows just what he is about. Well-decayed manure is much better all the way around and I cannot see why any grower should neglect getting in a supply at the proper time. Manure that is in heaps now should be turned over as often as necessary. This must be determined by surroundings as manure decays faster in some places than in others.

Soot

In making out and ordering your list of supplies for the coming season, be sure to include a few bags of good soot. Rather expensive, you will say, but after you have once used it on Beauties and a few of the other roses you will never be without it. Soot can be used on almost anything grown in the greenhouses and many outdoor flowers and vegetables like it equally well. A very good way to apply soot is to mix it into the liquid manure. Little of it will be wasted in this way, and it will be distributed much more evenly than if applied directly to the bench.

Outside Roses

With the cool, dewy nights some mildew is likely to appear. This used to be a dreaded disease on outdoor roses, but we have found a very simple remedy which is very effective—simply spraying with Fungine, advertised in columns of HORTICULTURE. We do not wait for the plants to get mildew but spray them every now and then, using a weak solution as a preventive. Keep on feeding and watering the plants as they may require and with little care they ought to produce flowers of fair quality right up to frost time.

Heating Time Soon Here

Have you looked over your boilers? If not it is high time that you do so and make every little repair that may be necessary. Do not put this off any longer as the time will soon be here when heat will be required, and remember that the houses must not be run "any old way" as they may have been last spring. Fall is a part of the growing season when the least neglect will show, and many houses can be easily ruined. Do not attempt to rest the plants any during the fall but keep them steadily growing if at all possible.

Lime

From now on use lime regularly after each watering or syringing, blowing it underneath the plants just before quitting time, as it is not very pleasant to work in the houses after you have been through them with the lime bellows. Always have a supply of dry air-slaked lime on hand. If ever you are caught in a shower and by not lowering the ventilators soon enough your plants get wet, blow a little lime around as soon as they dry off enough to avoid the lime sticking to the foliage. Should the lime be applied while the plants are wet the lime dust will settle upon the leaves, thus giving them a none too nice color which will stick too, and it will take a number of syringings to remove it.

is done in a big way. But all this will not make it big in wisdom and useful achievement. If results commensurate with the opportunity are to be had the members must consider thoughtfully beforehand the all-important questions that await settlement there and allow no allurements of sight-seeing or other diversions to interfere with their attendance at the business sessions. The National Society has never had a better opportunity to demonstrate in a far-reaching and effective manner its magnificent possibilities than that afforded by this great gathering of the leaders in American horticultural industry.

Supply and demand

Our Detroit correspondent, Mr. Danzer, contributes an interesting little discourse in his flower market report on another page of this issue with which our readers will, no doubt, acquiesce. The S. A. F. and other like organizations can find plenty of useful work in the promotion of a greater public interest in the products of the florist and in the adaptation of these products to the varied affairs of civilized life and can well afford to "stand pat" on their by-laws for the present. Mr. Danzer's plea for more flowers in midsummer, however, will hardly touch a responsive chord in certain other markets, the reports from which are quite at variance with the tale of scarcity in Detroit. St. Louis, for instance, where we are told "there is plenty of stock but few buyers," will probably say, "Lucky Detroit!"; and as a general thing we think the situation in the City of the Straits will be regarded as quite unique. We hope it will continue indefinitely in the same gratifying way. Anyhow, many more flowers should be used everywhere than is yet the case. Our growers can produce them, too, if only the encouragement be forthcoming. So, get busy, S. A. F., A. C. S., C. S. A., and a score of other beneficent institutions. You have helped teach us the art of production: now let us have some light on the science of marketing.

About the opening session

We are sorry that the Executive Board did not see fit to continue the plan adopted in recent years of calling the opening session in the afternoon of the first day. Probably there was some good and sufficient reason for returning to the old discarded custom of opening the Convention with a morning session, but it bears hard on the convenience and comfort of members from a distance, arriving by forenoon trains, of whom there are always a good many. The New England delegation, for instance, it appears will be compelled, in consequence, to start from home on Sunday in order to be on time, and those members from that section who cannot do this will have to forego the pleasure of listening to the speeches of welcome, president's address and other interesting proceedings scheduled for Tuesday forenoon. We have no doubt that visitors from many other localities will have a like experience. In this connection we would urge upon all who expect to go to the Convention to comply with Secretary Young's request and send their dues and get their badges in advance and thus escape the discomfort and confusion attendant upon the struggle to do this after arrival at the Convention hall.

In less than two weeks the big S. A. F. Convention of 1912 will have passed into history and the story of its doings will have been indelibly written into the annals of American horticulture. A big convention it will be, undoubtedly, in many respects—a big crowd, a big exhibition, big hospitality in a big city where everything

BRASSO-CATTLEYA MOSSIAE DIGBYANA, WESTONBIRT VARIETY.

Exhibited in Sir George Holford's group at the International Exhibition; H. G. Alexander, Gardener. This is the finest colored variety of B.-C. Mossiae Digbyana ever seen. The plant carried seven spikes and fourteen flowers.

TOMATO LISTER'S PROLIFIC.

Editor HORTICULTURE:

In notes from Bar Harbor in your last issue Mr. Edward Kirk is quoted in criticism of Lister's Prolific tomato. As the exhibitor of this variety which was awarded a first class certificate (not a silver medal as given in your notes) I would like to state that I have grown about every forcing tomato introduced for a good many years and Lister's Prolific stands at the head of the procession, not excepting Comet, which is its closest rival. When I read that it is simply a question of productiveness "that certain other varieties will give three times the quantity of fruit" and that it is "too long jointed," I am driven to the conclusion that what Mr. Kirk has been growing is not Lister's Prolific at all. Unless he had seed in the introducer's packets he would not have a true strain at all.

I have grown Sutton's Winter Beauty and Hubert's Marvel in years gone by but they are not in productiveness, smoothness of fruit, or what is of greatest importance of all, quality, in the same class as Lister's Prolific, and I can name a dozen private estates which can give like testimony. Commercial growers who want the best, market sort procurable are buying this variety heavily at present; one specialist will grow nothing else the coming season.

Not only is this tomato good under glass but as an early outdoor sort it is first in the field. We picked well ripened fruit here July 12, some ten days ahead of Chalk's Early Jewel, and ripe tomatoes at $3 to $5 per bushel surely pay better than midseason ones at 50c.

I will be glad to send some genuine Lister's Prolific seed to my friend, Mr. Kirk, to sow next season. I know he can grow melons which have both size and quality, and I feel sure that a year hence he will agree with me that the tomato in question—which by the way is of Scotch origin, having been raised by Alexander Lister & Sons, of Rothesay, the well-known rose and pansy specialists—is the best of its kind in commerce.

PRIMULA PULVERULENTA MRS. R. V. BERKELEY.

The new primrose which is the subject of our cover illustration this week was exhibited in good form and in quantity in the display of new Chinese plants at the International Horticultural Exhibition in London by James Veitch & Sons. This plant, which is a white sport from the original type collected by E. H. Wilson in China, was perhaps the finest new hardy herbaceous plant in the whole exhibition. The flowers as shown in the illustration, are borne in a succession of whorls, color white with a yellow throat and a reddish tinge on the exterior of the corolla tube.

Providence, R. I.—Alexander H. Johnson, City Forester, and a member of the firm of George Johnson & Son (Elmwood Greenhouses), has been at Fort Greble the past week with the First District Rhode Island National Guard of which he is Lieutenant Colonel. During his absence the duties of City Forester were performed by James Thornton, assistant in that department.

Obituary.

William Spangler.

William Spangler, nurseryman and florist, of Dover, N. J., died on July 9, aged 55 years. Two sons survive him.

George Wilmore.

George Wilmore, father of W. W. Wilmore, the dahlia specialist, Denver, Colo., died suddenly on July 20, aged 84 years.

William Bester.

William Bester, florist, 205 South Potomac street, Hagerstown, Md., died on July 28, aged 68 years. He had been in the florist business in Hagerstown for many years and had established a very successful business. Heart disease is given as the cause of death. A widow and four children survive him.

Charles Knopf.

On July 25, Charles Knopf, well-known carnation grower, of Richmond, Ind., died after a short illness, aged 36 years. He had been engaged in the greenhouse business for twenty years and had disseminated a number of carnations. Admiration was his last introduction, coming out in 1909.

Albert Bommersbach.

Albert Bommersbach, son of Nicholas Bommersbach, nurseryman, 702 Spring avenue, Decatur, Ill., and manager of the business, died on July 28, aged 33 years. He learned his trade with his father and when the store on North Water street was opened he took over the management of the greenhouses and the Grandview nursery business.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS AND ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS

Twenty-Eighth Annual Convention at the Coliseum, Wabash Avenue and Fifteenth St., Chicago, Ill., August 20, 21, 22, 23, 1912

Even at this date all arrangements are about completed for the entertainment of the visitors to this convention. Every detail for their comfort and enjoyment has been taken care of by some committee. Every one connected with the business in any way is anxious to do something and has done something to help make this the banner convention in the history of the society.

Those that have not been fortunate enough to hear Mr. L. W. C. Tuthill talk on advertising have a pleasant surprise awaiting them on Wednesday morning, when he entertains us with his paper "Advertising; Some Wrongs to Make Right." It has been the privilege of the writer to hear part of the lecture that will be given by Fred C. W. Brown and see many of the subjects he will present with his illustrated lecture on "Floral Designing;" this will be the attractive and interesting feature of Wednesday evening's session.

Bensinger's Bowling Alleys, 29 West Randolph street, where the annual bowling tournament takes place Thursday, are new alleys and arrangements have been made for the comfortable seating of the spectators and "rooters."

Ravinia Park, the most noted and exclusive resort near Chicago, where the day's entertainment will take place on Friday, is a beautiful place, and at no previous convention has there been such favorable grounds and lawns to carry out the program of outdoor sports and the baseball game. The band concert and grand opera is of the highest quality and the conductor has an international reputation. Luncheon will be served upon the arrival of the party at the park, and dinner in the evening.

Visitors to the convention should not let anything prevent their being present on this trip, when such elaborate preparations have been made for their pleasure. All of the business sessions of the society will be taken up with important business matters and discussions. Taken all together, it is going to be a busy convention.

Nothing has been left undone for the entertainment of the ladies. Automobile rides, entertainment at the exclusive South Shore Country Club and many other attractive and interesting trips have been provided for, and the ladies of Chicago are holding frequent meetings to provide even additional entertainment. Many a male visitor will envy the ladies at this convention.

At this date many reservations have been made at the different hotels, showing the great interest that is being taken by the florists and representatives of the allied trades in all parts of the country. The list of exhibitors, published herewith, speaks for itself. To avoid confusion and save time at the convention, dues may be sent to the secretary, now at the Auditorium Hotel, Chicago, and receipt and 1912 button will be returned immediately. This button has already been sent to those who have paid dues for 1912. Applications for membership may also be sent to the same address and the 1912 button will be returned.

Any inquiry regarding hotel accommodations will be turned over to the local hotel committee for a prompt reply. This will be an opportunity to see one of the greatest and most hospitable cities in the world, and if you do not take advantage of it at this time, you will regret not doing so until the end of your days. And if the kind treatment and many courtesies that have been showered upon your secretary since he has been here are a sample of what they intend doing for every visitor, I can only say—Come!

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

TRADE EXHIBITION.

Every foot of available space will be sold before the opening of the Convention, and those desiring to exhibit must make immediate application or it will be too late. It must be remembered that the exhibitor rents the space only, and should make arrangements as far ahead as possible for the erection of tables, hiring of desks, securing signs, or whatever is required for his exhibit. The Superintendent of the Trade Exhibition will assist as far as his time will allow.

By a recommendation of the Advisory Board, that part of rule 3 which reads "Exhibition space shall be limited to six feet six inches above the floor" is changed to read "shall be limited to ten feet above the floor."

Following is a complete list of exhibitors to August 3rd, 1912:

JOHN YOUNG,

Supt. Trade Exhibition.

Address: Auditorium Hotel, Chicago.

NEW YORK CITY AND VICINITY TO CHICAGO.

As the time is fast approaching and we are thinking of vacations please stop thinking and write to F. H. Traendly for accommodations on the convention special which will leave Grand Central station, 42nd street, Monday, Aug. 19th, 10 A. M. en route to Chicago. It is most important for every live florist to attend this meeting. Those who are members of the S. A. F. and O. H. know the advantage they derive by being members and florists that are not members should not miss this opportunity and become a member at once. Come as our guest and let us demonstrate to you. You will surely be well repaid for the trip and in the meeting of brother florists from all parts of the United States and Canada and the great trade exhibition that will eclipse any heretofore held. This is an opportunity that a florist should not let go by. It is as important as any part of our business to keep up with the times.

Any further information and membership blanks will be gladly furnished. We want a good sized party on Aug. 19th when our New York florists' Club special leaves the depot. Mr. Traendly, who is a past master, and his committee of arrangements have left nothing undone to make this the most pleasant trip leaving for a convention from New York City.

A. L. MILLER,
State Vice-President, New York East.

Special train will leave Grand Central station, New York City, Monday, Aug. 19, at 10 A. M. This is under the auspices of the New York Florists' Club and the usual refreshments and other entertainment will be provided. If you would like to join this party write at once to Frank H. Traendly, 131 W. 28th St., New York and state whether you wish berth reservation. The following named parties have signified their intention of going:

Mr. and Mrs. Traendly, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Sheridan, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Weathered, Arthur Buckholz, P. O'Mara and sister, A. L. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Manda, Chas. Weber and wife, Robert M. Schultz, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Bunyard, Robert Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson, Robert Koehne, Bert Chadwick, Louis Schumtz, Jr., A. DeMeusy, W. R. Cobb, Henry Hornecker, W. C. Badgley, W. R. Pierson, F. W. Armitage, Leonard Barron, R. E. Berry, Peter Beuerlein, Geo. Blake, Oscar Boehler, John Donaldson, V. S. Dorval, Wm. Eccles, Phil Einsmann, J. G. Esler, and daughter, J. D. Fiesser, A. Hanig, W. F. Kasting, Wm. H. Kuebler and one, Emil Leuly, Frank Manker, S. Masur, W. J. Brown, W. E. Maynard, John Meisem, Mr. Niquet, Mr. Othile, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pepper, John Reimels, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Roehrs, Jr., Chas. Schenck, Wm. Sefton, W. H. Siebrecht, C. H. Totty, C. C. Trepel, J. Weir, J. R. Lewis, C. W. Scott, A. Kakuda, W. J. Stewart, M. C. Ebel and Mr. McArthur.

BOSTON TO CHICAGO.

A party is being formed for the trip to the S. A. F. Convention at Chicago, August 20th to 24th. It was hoped that we should be able to meet the party which leaves New York Monday forenoon, at Albany but find that it is impossible and if our party leaves Boston at 10.00 A. M. Monday, we do not arrive in Chicago until 11.50 the next day. Under these circumstances it is proposed to leave Boston on the 2.00 P. M. train Sunday, which arrives in Chicago Monday at 2.00 P. M. We hope to have a sufficient number to fill a special car and I should like to hear at once from those who would like to join this party and wish to have a berth reserved. It is important that I should have this information at once.

E. ALLAN PEIRCE.
Waltham, Mass.

RHODE ISLAND TO CHICAGO.

The State Vice-President is endeavoring to make arrangements with the Boston party in regards to the trip to the S. A. F. Convention in Chicago, August 20th to 24th. After going over the matter carefully it has been thought best to leave Boston on the 2.00 P. M. train Sunday, August 18th, which arrives in Chicago Monday P. M. A special car will be provided if enough signify intentions of going and we hope that all that can go will notify us at the earliest possible moment. This matter may be taken up direct with E. Allan Peirce of Waltham, Mass., or you may write to the undersigned, who will do all possible to assist you in the arrangements and make reservations for you on the special car.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

TO THE FLORISTS OF NEW YORK STATE.

A general invitation is hereby extended to every florist to attend the second annual meeting of the New York State Federation of Florists' Clubs, to be held at the New York State Fair at Syracuse, Thursday, September 12. Great preparations are being made to welcome the florists and it will be the main feature of the day. There will be addresses by Dean Liberty Hyde Bailey and other prominent horticulturists. The officers of the Federation are anxious that the florists make a special effort to be present, as matters of great interest and importance to every live florist and grower will be discussed.

Respectfully yours for success, "The New York State Federation of Florists' Clubs."

Wm. F. Kasting, Buffalo, president; Dr. Erl A. Bates, Syracuse, first vice-president; Chas. B. Weathered, New York City, second vice-president; E. R. Fry, Rochester, third vice-president; John Young, New York City, secretary; W. A. Adams, Buffalo, treasurer.

State Fair Committee: George E. Thorpe, Syracuse; W. R. Smith, Syracuse; Arthur Cowee, Berlin; Frank H. Traendly, New York City; F. A. Danker, Albany.

In addition to the meeting the Fair Commissioners are planning to make one of the largest displays of plants and flowers ever seen at a State Fair. A new and novel feature will be the municipal or city exhibits. The cities of New York, Buffalo, Rochester and Albany will each send from one to two carloads of plants. Many of the large growers, not only in this state but in other states, will exhibit. The florists and growers will take advantage of the opportunity to attend the meeting and to visit the fair.

The committee in charge of arrangements are planning to change from the old stereotyped State Fair flower exhibit to a modern flower show. Double the space has been allotted for this purpose, and the main hall is to be arranged in conservatory effect, with the city and other exhibits at the sides and ends. A band stand is planned for the center of the hall where, each afternoon, a band of thirty pieces will give a concert.

The committee in charge is composed of Charles H. Vick, superintendent; W. E. Day, Day Floral Company, Syracuse, Assistant Superintendent and Dr. Erl A. Bates, also of Syracuse.

The committee want as many florists and growers as possible to exhibit, to help make the florists' day a success in display of plants and flowers as well as in attendance.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS AND ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS.

Department of Plant Registration.

As no objections have been filed public notice is hereby given that the registration of the new geranium "Helen Michell" by Henry F. Michell Co., 518 Market St., Philadelphia, Pa., becomes complete.

JOHN YOUNG, Secretary.

AMERICAN NURSERYMEN'S ASSOCIATION.

Officers and committees for 1912-1913 are as follows:

President—Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.

Vice-President—J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.

Secretary—John Hall, 204 Granite Bldg., Rochester, N. Y.

Treasurer—C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y.
Executive Committee—Henry B. Chase, Huntsville, Ala.; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.; P. A. Dix, Salt Lake City, Utah; Thomas B. Meehan (ex-officio), Dresher, Pa.; John Hall (ex-officio), secretary, Rochester, N. Y.

Committees—Transportation, Chas. M. Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo.; tariff, Irving Rouse, Rochester, N. Y.; legislation east of Mississippi river, Wm. Pitkin, Rochester, N. Y.; legislation west of Mississippi river, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.; co-operation with entomologists, L. A. Berckmans, Augusta, Ga.; publicity and trade opportunities, W. P. Stark, chairman, Louisiana, Mo.; James M. Irvine, St. Joseph, Mo.; Jefferson Thomas, Harrisburg, Pa.; Orlando Harrison, Berlin, Md.; C. M. Griffing, Jacksonville, Fla.; Geo. C. Roeding, Fresno, Cal.; H. D. Simpson, Vincennes, Ind.; program, Samuel Miller, Milton, Ore.; exhibits, (appointments to be made later); arrangements, J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.; John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; editing report, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; membership, James McHutchison, New York City, N. Y.

The annual report will be issued about Aug. 18.

DETROIT FLORIST CLUB.

There was a very large attendance at the last club meeting. It was the desire of the members to elect Mr. J. F. Sullivan to fill the office of president but that gentleman could not be induced, feeling that he would be unable to give the time and thought which a proper filling of the position would demand.

They were fortunately able to fall back on very good presidential timber in the person of Mr. Jerry K. Stock, one of the younger set whose selection is a guarantee of splendid good work during the coming year. The remainder of the official family is equally strong and well tried and consists of M. Bloy, vice-president; H. Schroeter, official scribe; Robt. M. Rahaley, watchman of the strong-box. An invitation of the New York club to join in its publicity campaign was received with enthusiasm and Messrs. Bloy, Scribner and Sullivan will look after this highly important matter.

At least 25 local florists will attend the Chicago convention, some of whom plan to go there in their autos.

FRANK DANZER.

FLORISTS' HAIL ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA.

The report of the officials of the Florists' Hail Association, for the year ending August 1st, 1912, will show that the sum of $44,155.30 has been paid for glass broken by hail.

The year just ended has been one of the most disastrous in the history of the Hail Association, and the efficiency of that organization has again been shown by the prompt settlement of claims, although it has been necessary to use reserve fund securities as collateral to accomplish that purpose. The Directors have ordered the 24th Assessment to be levied Sept. 15, 1912, in order to secure funds to pay the moneys so borrowed.

JOHN G. ESLER, Sec'y.

FLORISTS' CLUB OF PHILADELPHIA.

There was a moderate attendance at the regular monthly club meeting on the 6th inst. Reports were made by the transportation, hotel, and sports committees. It was decided in the matter of transportation to go with the Baltimore and Washington contingents. If the Pennsylvania Railroad is decided on, then it will be the 8.40 train Monday morning, and join the Southerners at Harrisburg. If the Baltimore & Ohio, then the 10.17 train, picking up the others at Baltimore and Washington. The fares, Pennsylvania Railroad, one way, $18.25; party ticket (10 or more), $16.35. Baltimore & Ohio, $17.00; party ticket, $15.40. All members will be duly notified by postal. No decision was made on hotels, but a full and detailed report was given by the committee. The Grand Pacific and the Sherman seemed to be the prime favorites—and as Ed. Winterson said about the Sherman—were “our best bets.” The sports committee reported that they had been unable to get a bowling team for the convention in the usual way; and it was decided that the matter be left to John Dodds to pick a team from those who attend at Chicago. If John Dodds does not go, then the duty to devolve on John Westcott. The following publicity committee to co-operate with the New York Club at Chicago was appointed: Joseph Heacock, E. J. Fancourt, Albert M. Herr. The essay committee are arranging to have a review of the convention for the September meeting.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

A regular meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society will be held on next Monday evening at the Flower Market.

The Florists' Club of Washington at its meeting on August 6 pledged the sum of $200 towards the proposed Smith Memorial. The following members were appointed on a committee to consider the matter: William F. Gude, D. G. Grilbortzer, E. C. Mayberry, O. A. Oehmler, and George Field.

The flower and vegetable exhibition of the Lenox Horticultural Society will be held at Town Hall, Lenox, Mass., Thursday, August 22nd. The fall exhibition will be held at Town Hall, Thursday and Friday, October 24th and 25th. Schedules can be had by applying to G. H. Instone, Secretary.

The Southampton (N. Y.) Horticultural Society held its annual exhibition at the Art Museum grounds on Wednesday and Thursday last. The 135 classes were filled to overflowing and a brilliant and most interesting display was the result. A full list of the awards appears in the Southampton Press.

The August exhibition of flowers, fruits, and vegetables by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will be held at Horticultural Hall, Boston, on Saturday and Sunday, August 10 and 11. Gladioli, phloxes, China asters, and seasonable annuals will be the chief features of the floral display. Apples, pears, peaches, and plums will be shown for the first time this season, while exhibits of vegetables will be of no less interest. In addition to the prizes offered by the Society the American Gladiolus Society offers a silver and a bronze medal for the best exhibit of gladioli, to be competed for

A NEW ROSE.

Edward Kress of Baltimore, has produced the handsome new rose herewith illustrated, by crossing Gruss an Tepitz and Etoile de France. This was five years ago, and Mr. Kress declares he now has “the best dark red ever-blooming rose for garden culture that has been produced in the last fifty years.” On several occasions during the past two years he has exhibited at the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Baltimore magnificent blooms and last year a committee of ten appointed from the Club, visited Mr. Kress and inspected in the early spring over 200 plants he had in a cold greenhouse, which at the time were in full bloom, some of the open blooms measuring six inches in diameter, and exquisitely fragrant. The Club awarded Mr. Kress a certificate of merit. This rose is perfectly hardy and has stood this past winter 16 below zero.

The photograph is from plants growing in two-and-a-half, and four-inch pots.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

J. Hooper Hetherington will spend his vacation at Atlantic City, N. J.

The Senate on Wednesday last agreed to the conference report on the Agricultural Appropriation Bill carrying $17,000,000 for the fiscal year's work.

Mrs. Theodore Diedrich, accompanied by her son, Henry, has left her home in Congress Heights, D. C., for Europe. They will spend the balance of the summer in Germany.

At a joint meeting of the outing committee of the Florists' Club of Washington and Kallipolis Grotto, it was decided to hold another outing at Chesapeake Beach on Friday, August 23rd. Practically the same program that was planned for July 24th will be carried out.

As a result of a decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission free delivery of freight from the Penn., B. & O., and the Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington stations will be allowed the merchants along Fourteenth street between Florida avenue and Park road, N. W. The merchants claimed they were being discriminated against as the Georgetown district, further distant, enjoyed the free delivery of freight and the Interstate Commerce Commission upheld their contention.

ST. LOUIS NOTES.

The American Apple Growers will hold their annual meeting at the Planters Hotel, Thursday, Aug. 22. T. C. Wilson is secretary.

The Bentzen Base Ball Club played the Sanders team Sunday and were beaten by a score of 7 to 6. Mullanphy and Grimm & Gorly also have base ball teams.

W. W. Chenoweth, secretary of the State Board of Horticulture, has resigned to accept a position as instructor in Horticulture at Massachusetts Agricultural College at Amherst, Mass.

We are going to have a large delegation from here to the S. A. F. convention next week according to F. H. Weber, State V. P. The delegation will be the largest that has yet attended a convention from here.

Ulrich Burkhardt, an old employee, is now in charge of the gate at the main entrance of Shaw's Garden, taking the place of Mrs. Asberghous who has held the position the past 22 years. Friends are now at work getting indorsement for her reinstatement. Things have changed greatly at the garden since Dr. Wm. Trelease and Prof. Irish departed.

New York visitors: Arnold Ringier, representing W. W. Barnard, Chicago; Arthur Newell and A. Barbe, Kansas City, Mo.; C. H. Plumb and son, Detroit, Mich.; W. R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; John A. Evans, Richmond, Ind., returning from England; J. H. Sprague, Barnegat, N. J.

R. M. Ward arrived in New York on August 2, home from his second trip around the world. Judging from his increased avoirdupois it must have agreed with him. The bulb outlook in Japan is a favorite theme with Mr. Ward at all times and his views now supported by actual critical observation are interesting and instructive.

CHICAGO NOTES.

New Society.

August 5th at the Sherman House, Chicago, a new fraternal society was organized called the Associated Florists' Salesmen's Society. Fred Longren was elected chairman and T. Waters, vice-chairman. The society will be broad in its scope and its objects will be more fully defined after the next meeting, August 19th.

Pleasant Meeting of Ladies.

Chicago members of the Ladies' Society of American Florists and a few others connected with the trade were entertained by Mrs. J. C. Vaughan last Thursday and business pertaining to the convention briefly discussed. Afterwards refreshments were served and the hostess then took the guests to the Jackson Park lagoon where a pleasant hour was spent in a launch. It was altogether an afternoon of delight and afforded a good opportunity to further acquaintance among those in the trade.

An invitation was extended by Mrs. Chas. L. Washburn to spend August 6th at her home in Hinsdale, Ill.

The ladies are showing considerable interest in the bowling and the following are practicing for the convention: Mrs. C. W. McKellar, Mrs. Geo. Asmus, Mrs. Guy French, Mrs. Aug. Poehlmann, Mrs. Adolph Poehlmann, Mrs. A. L. Vaughan, Mrs. Frank Ayers, Mrs. Jas. G. Hancock.

Personal.

C. E. Gullett of Decatur, Ill., is also a delegate to the Bull Moose convention.

G. L. Grant of Soquel, Cal., is at the Auditorium Hotel, an early arrival for the S. A. F. convention.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Heintz and Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Heintz and daughter from Terre Haute, Ind., motored to Chicago and spent several days calling on friends.

Other visitors are Mrs. Ennis of the Wisconsin Floral Co., Milwaukee, Wis.; Sam Seligman of Wertheimer's, New York; Wm. Jaap of Lester Park Greenhouses, Duluth, Minn.

J. F. Ammann of Edwardsville, Ill., is here as delegate to the Bull Moose convention. He also is making arrangements for the booth of the Illinois State Florists' Association at the convention.

The store force at Zech & Mann's this week is light, but the business was rushing as in mid-winter early in the week. Allie Zech and wife returned from a lake trip to northern points and Miss Wolff left at once for Leesburg, Ind., and Fred Ottenbacher for a vacation.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Mabel Carré Field to Robert Baird Gaul, on Wednesday, July 31. Mr. Gaul is one of the good boys in the Pennock-Meehan army.

Commodore Westcott is wrestling valiantly with the railroad for a party rate to Chicago. No progress. The railroads seem to feel they have us in a cavity and have no inducements to offer any move. "Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad." The railroad kings have completely lost perspective and are galloping to destruction.

John F. Sibson for the past 22 years gardener on the McKean estate, Germantown, Philadelphia, has bought 15 acres of land, the old Rasmussen place, at Lansdale, Montgomery Co., Penna., and will erect a commercial establishment. Both Mr. and Mrs. Thos. McKean being deceased, the Germantown place is sold and being cut up into building lots.

Visitors: Mr. Gudekunst, Fairfields, W. Va.; W. E. McKissick, Washington, D. C.; Granville, Ernest, and W. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; Robt. Pyle, West Grove, Pa.; also James B. Kidd of the New York City customs service, on a vacation, and visiting relatives and friends. Mr. Kidd is an old-time seedsman, and still has many friends in that line—who welcome him affectionately for "Auld Lang Syne."

Words of welcome are in order for four of our returned world wanderers: Alexander B. Scott, Howard M. Earl, Charles Sim and George Fowler. All well and a splendid voyage. We detected none of the cockney accent in Howard (over the 'phone) but he sent the Philadelphia office of HORTICULTURE a London cap to replace the "MacTavish" which has been our trade-mark so long—so there must be some Piccadilly influence! Else he'd have bought it near the Broomilaw.

Mr. Bowers, the able advertising manager for M. Rice & Co., says that their new catalogue which will soon be out, will be his first baby, and while, like all fond papas, he modestly looks at you with the glistening eye, and that expression of eager expectancy which says: "Isn't he a peach," yet does not say anything—it would seem to be up to all of us to respond by at least a word of praise for the baby—if we cannot send a little order. But an order is the highest encomium—so send that along with your bouquet, and thus doubly please papa Bowers—and grandpapa Eschner.

In our New York notes of last week a slight inaccuracy occurred. Moore, Hentz & Nash have not "acquired" but are managers and selling agents for the Bedford Flower Co., Bedford Hills, N. Y.

The Bourne Bill.

They say now that this dastardly measure to help the express companies and increase postage, has been tacked on to the P. O. appropriation bill and is in great danger of being passed under financial pressure and without consideration of its demerits. Telegraph your congressman at once. E. C. Dungan, manager for William Henry Maule, has been doing energetic work on the postal committee which is strenuously opposing this iniquitous bill. W. Atlee Burpee is the able chairman of the committee, and no one knows better than he how to get good work out of his coadjutors.

The following correspondence over the signature of W. Atlee Burpee is self explanatory:

Honorable Wm. E. Cox, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:—Your courteous favor of July 26th has only reached me today, owing to absence from town on Saturday. I have read with much pleasure your statement: "I am in favor of a parcels post, and while I doubt very much we can get a perfect bill through this session of Congress, still we can establish the principle of a parcels post, and later on Congress can make the bill as near perfect as possible."

Permit me to suggest that this "Principle of a Parcels Post" may be established now upon an easy, simple and workable plan with profit to the Post Office Department and real benefit to all the people,—as per Hon. Mr. Sulzer's Bill H. R. 9844.

In reading over my telegram of July 25, 1912, to Hon. John A. Moon, Chairman Committee Post Office and Post Roads, copy of which was mailed to you, I find that the adjective "iniquitous" was used twice in designating the Bourne Bill! But, really, this Bourne Bill even as amended (by the omission of third-class matter) is still doubly iniquitous.

In the first place, it advances by 50 per cent. (12 cents per pound instead of 2 ounces for 1 cent, the rate on all seeds, bulbs, plants, and scions that are mailed over 1800 miles. It advances by 400 per cent. the postage on five or six ounces of seed.

This "joker," which will put a needless burden upon farmers, gardeners, seedsmen and plantsmen, lies in the fact that while the Senate Committee have been persuaded by the protests of publishers and catalog men (including our committee) to let third-class matter remain as at present, two ounces for 1 cent, yet if you will refer to the paragraph on page 221 P. L. & R. immediately following Section 482 you will see that seeds, plants, bulbs, and scions, while having been mailed at third-class rates ever since 1888, are designated fourth-class matter, and, consequently, unless their classification should be specially changed to third-class, must pay this 50 per cent. (or more) advance. A package of seeds weighing five ounces would cost 12 cents, while first-class matter, such as letters, would cost but 10 cents! And yet this is unanimously recommended by the Senate Committee.

Secondly, it would seem that Senator Bourne hardly plays fair in the closing paragraph of a typewritten statement from him that arrived in the same mail as your letter on Saturday. After telling of the elimination of the idea of the proposed consolidation of third and fourth-class matter and giving the rates of the new Eight Zone Schedule, he says: "You will observe our highest rate is equal to the International Parcels Post rate." What justification has Senator Bourne for the term "The International Parcels Post rate?"

If you will kindly refer to the rates charged by Great Britain and Germany on foreign Parcels Post, you will find that an eleven-pound package coming through the International Parcels Post from Great Britain costs about 79 cents (3s 3d) and from Germany 86 cents (3 m. 50 pf.), whereas under the Bourne Bill the same weight package at distances of over 1800 miles would cost $1.32 if originating in America.

What possible objection could there be to making a uniform flat rate of 2 ounces for 1 cent or 8 cents per pound (as now applies to third-class matter and to seeds, bulbs, and plants), and at the same time increase the limit of weight from four pounds to eleven pounds? This would be profitable to The Post Office Department and exactly the same as the present prepaid rate charged by express companies for transportation across the continent,—from the Atlantic Coast to California.

Should a Zone System still be considered desirable by you and your colleagues, why not apply it experimentally only to a radius of 50 to 100 miles from starting point? The complicated and unintelligible Zone System of the Bourne Bill would not be feasible in that it would entail so much additional and unnecessary labor upon both the post office and the people,—figuring the varying charges for postage. Should a complete Zone System ever be adopted, it seems to me that it would be necessary to have greatly increased facilities, as so ably explained in the Honorable Mr. Lewis' report on the Postal Express.

To do my part toward preventing the possibility of the passage of such legislation as the Bourne Amendment, which would charge American citizens $1.32 for less service than given to foreigners for 79 to 86 cents, I shall mail copy of this letter to each of your fellow members of the House. Although it has been impossible since the introduction on May 16th of the Bourne Bill to get a hearing before the Senate Committee, I feel quite sure, as do my colleagues, that the American people can count upon receiving just treatment from their direct Representatives in Congress.

With assurance of high esteem,

(Signed) W. ATLEE BURPEE, Chairman Committee on Postal Laws of the American Seed Trade Association

July 31, 1912.

Today I have read with pleasure H. R. 26006, introduced July 27, 1912, by the Honorable William Sulzer, Chairman Committee on Foreign Affairs. Permit me to urge that a better bill could hardly be conceived.

A general Parcels Post for Fourth-Class matter at 10 cents per pound for the first pound and 5 cents per pound for each additional pound should entail no loss to the Post Office Department and would be a great boon to all the people.

The only improvement that occurs to me now would be to make the flat rate 1 cent for each two ounces up to two pounds, then each additional pound or fraction of a pound 5 cents per pound. This makes the 11 pound package cost only 1 cent more but gives an advantage to the people on small packages without any possible danger of loss to the Post Office Department.

The Bourne Bill Condemned.

At a special meeting of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia held on the 7th inst., the following resolutions were passed and a copy of same ordered to be forwarded to the Senate and House Committees in Washington:

Resolved, That the increased rates on plants, scions, seeds and similar products of the farmer and florist proposed in the Bourne Bill is a direct blow at the progress of our florist industry and the civilization of the country; and further

Resolved, That we demand that our members of Congress forget their interests in the express companies once and for all and kill this iniquitous Bourne Bill.

Resolved, Also that we want the real thing in Parcels Post and not a make-believe. A real Parcels Post and nothing else. We are forty years behind the rest of the world. Let no stone be left unturned to bring our nation to the front.

Signed: Edwin J. Fancourt, George C. Watson, H. Donaldson, Committee
Attest: J. Otto Thilow, President.
David Rust, Secretary

Lily Bulbs.

We learn from reliable sources that the output of Formosa lily bulbs will fall far short of the demand this year and only those dealers who ordered in excess of their actual requirements will be able to fill orders complete. Giganteums will be in fairly good supply but of varying quality. Multiflorums away below standard and unsatisfactory as a rule.

Notes.

Portland, Ore.—R. L. Scott has resigned his position with the Portland Seed Co.

Portland, Ore.—The Portland Seed Co., 180-186 Front street, will build a five-story warehouse on East Alder street.

"THE KENILWORTH STRAIN" of GIANT PANSY SEED

Must not be compared with the flimsy Trimardeau

It is much larger and of good substance; the immense flowers, of 3½ to 4 inches, are of perfect form, and every tint and shade is produced in striking combinations and endless variations of beautiful colors and markings. The Stock Plants are most critically selected. It is rich with shades of brown, bronze, red, mahogany, and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures. Read what Growers say about my strains of Pansy Seed in HORTICULTURE of July 20.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON The most noticeable feature in the market this week is the heavy influx of asters, many of which are of superior quality, but on account of their abundance do not realize the price they are entitled to. There are lots of the inferior type, too, but these are almost unsalable. In roses, the Beauty holds its own as to quality, supply and demand, all of which are normal and fairly well balanced. Of the other roses Taft is the popular leader, its fine keeping and shipping qualities making friends for it every day. Carnations are at the lowest ebb and the few remnants of the old crop that are coming in are not wanted. Sweet peas abound and are moved with difficulty, the quality averaging below the standard for this date. Lilies are not plentiful, but there are enough. Lily of the valley is very good and moving rather slowly. Gladioli are not abundant as yet. Shakespeare and Lafayette have the preference and bring excellent prices.

BUFFALO Mid-summer conditions exist. The growers are busy replanting carnations and what few are left in the houses are gradually becoming the size of the outdoor pinks, white and pink Enchantress holding out the best for the late season. A few Killarney and Richmond roses off the new plants are gradually coming on, though mildew holds a grip. More summer roses could have been used the past week, though Japan lilies, asters, peas and other stock helped out considerably. Beauties are very small, and some are seen the size of Bonsilene. Asters have improved considerably, though choice stock is not yet too plentiful. There is the regular ordinary yellow-centered short stem stuff which always accumulates and is waiting for the cemetery florist to take them away at his price. The demand has been growing on white roses and hardly enough could be had at times. It seems as if the wedding bells are ringing somewhat early as lily of the valley also was in demand. Gladioli from eastern points in varieties of America, May, Augusta and Brenchleyensis are good, though of short stems. The home-grown are not yet to be seen in quantity.

The supply of stock is decidedly shortening up.

CHICAGO Cool weather has continued and some days would be considered as decidedly cold, having a tendency to hold back the flowers. The scarcity is felt most in roses and good blooms are quickly disposed of, the later calls being hard to provide for. Short roses are more easily obtained but are sold out clean each day. Some field carnations are coming in and some excellent light pink ones were seen at Peter Reinberg's. Asters are more abundant than anything else, as is usually the case in August, and prices range according to size, poor ones bringing but poor returns for growing and marketing, but in general asters are very fair in quality this season. New Beauties are daily lengthening in stem and soon will compare well with the old ones in that respect. Lilies are shortening in supply and prices advanced materially the past week. Very fair summer sweet peas are to be had, stems being short, however. At Hoerber Bros. were seen some of the finest gladioli in the market. They were Mrs. Francis King and America and it is a mystery how such grand specimens can be grown at a profit when sold for the low price they bring this summer.

The sales are good CINCINNATI in number and the average return fair. Since August 1st the call for stock has had a steadiness and consistency that looks good. The large supply keeps down the prices. All the choice stock, however, is taken up in most lines; it is only the poorer quality that keeps the market crowded. The later asters are beginning to arrive and soon the early ones will be of yesterday. While they are here, however, they show a tendency to accumulate, necessitating their selling in lots or at low prices, if at all. This statement applies only to the ordinary. The good stock sells well. For several days past gladioli have been cleaning up fairly well at a fair price. Roses of all kinds are selling first rate. The market for giganteum lilies has picked up somewhat. Auratums are in good supply, but slow sales.

Of course we all acknowledge that this is the season of the year when making money is almost a dream with the retailer. Still when we see in the wholesale house ten men lined up to grab every decent salable flower arriving there and many a customer turned away because there is nothing to be had, things look rather peculiar. I do not think this picture is very much overdrawn and I firmly believe that a better supply of cut blooms during July and August would have a great deal to do with turning these two months from the losing side to one of at least a small gain. Your paper very aptly criticises the continued tinkering with the constitution at the S. A. F. meetings. I would like to suggest that good topics for the convention would be the discussion of "How to interest the public in our work" and "How to produce a good variety of good flowers during July and August."

F. DANZER.

A big butterfly fluttered down West 28th street and alighted on a tiny button-hole sprig of forget-me-not worn by the writer as he sauntered from one flower mart to another in search of market news. Whether this episode boded good luck or bad we shall not attempt to discuss but on just such little happenings must the denizens of the big flower center depend for sensations in these listless mid-summer days. After the few handfuls of roses, etc., and buckets of gladioli and a bushel or two of asters have been unloaded there remains little to do but lounge around and wait for something to happen or discuss the probabilities of a good-sized crowd for the convention special train. Ten days ago there was quite a little activity in trade which seemed to augur well for an active summer season, but it didn't live long. Roses are all diminutive little things at present and there is an unprecedented proportion of yellow varieties among them. Evidently the growers have been investing liberally in the novelties and it will be interesting to watch the effect on the flower market next winter. Lily of the valley is excellent and there are plenty of lilies. Asters are inferior generally as are also gladioli. The stores take practically nothing on chance and buy only to fill orders when such chance to come in.

Good flowers of all kinds are hard to get. The first early asters are about done and the mid-season only just commencing. As the aster is the big feature at this juncture, we are in a transition period where even the standby is "off," for a week. We shall no doubt have a different tale to tell next week. The other great summer standby—the gladiolus—good demand for long-stemmed, superior stock; but nothing doing in the short, northern grown, poor spikes—with which the market is flooded from the bulb-growing fields outside of the regular sources of supply. The men who grow primarily for the bulb income cannot cut the whole plant without ruining the bulb, and their "butt-in" on the market at nothing a thousand merely demoralizes the market, and we believe does no good to their business in the long run. Dreer realized this years ago. They quit cutting from their twenty acres of peony blooms because they realized that all they got hardly paid for the labor of cutting, packing and shipping, and that the slump in value of the flowers in public estimation had a boomerang effect when the roots were offered for sale. That thought was true and applied not only to the retail but to the wholesale trade. So they quit it, and we think it is about time for the gladiolus men, who think they are so wise, to take notice. It sounds good to say we can get revenue from the flowers and the bulbs too, but it can't be done. You either ruin your flower or ruin your bulb. You cannot have both up to tip-top standard. Orchids are not plentiful and seem rather high-priced. There are some good white spray sorts, like Phalaenopsis amabilis to be had. The market has been fairly good all along the line for the season; but not quite so brisk as the week previous.

ST. LOUIS Looking over the flower markets the last week we find plenty of stock but few buyers. The retail trade put in a dull week so of course the wholesalers had to suffer for the want of demand. It surely was dull. The market has anything the trade wants in asters, gladioli, roses, peas and a lot of outdoor truck. Prices remain stationary in small lots but in large lots of a thousand or over prices cannot be quoted.

Washington, D. C.—Business conditions are about the same as they have been during the past few weeks. Some mid-summer social affairs are calling for decorations, but these are not very elaborate. The condition of stock and prices are just as previously reported.

New York, N. Y.—Wm. P. Ford, wholesale florist, has offered his store at 45 W. 28th street for rent and will move shortly to one of the new stores in the block west of Sixth avenue.

LEMON OIL CO'S STANDARD INSECTICIDE

Guaranteed under the Insecticide Act, 1910. Serial No. 321

Save your plants and trees. Here is an insecticide that will positively destroy all insects—Mealy Bug, Brown and White Scale, Thrip, Red Spider, Black and Green Fly, Mites, Ants, etc. without injury to plants and without odor. Used according to directions our standard insecticide will prevent ravages on your crops by insects.

Non-poisonous and harmless to user and plant. Leading Seedsmen and Florists have used it with wonderful results.

Destroys Lice in Poultry Houses, Fleas on Dogs and all Domestic Pests. Excellent as a wash for dogs and other animals. Relieves mange.

Effective where others fail.

Aphine

*The Insecticide that kills plant Lice
of every species*

The Recognized Standard Insecticide.

Not a cure-all, but a specific remedy for all sap sucking insects infesting plant life, such as green, black, white fly, red spider, thrips, mealy bug, brown and white scale.

Universally endorsed by commercial growers and professional gardeners of reputation, as the insecticide that does excel all.

$2.50 per Gallon. $1.00 per Quart.

FUNGINE

"Actions Speak Louder than Words."

So we are willing to let the merit of this comparatively new fungicide speak for itself. We claim it has no equal for mildew, rust and wilt attacking flower, fruit or vegetable plants. A trial will convince you.

$2.00 per Gallon. 75c. per Quart.

Aphine and Fungine are spraying materials, readily soluble in water, used at various strengths, according to directions on each can. They are equally effective in the greenhouse and in the garden.

60 Years of Experience Goes Into Our Houses

You know experience is a sure teacher also sometimes rather expensive.

Inasmuch as we have so many years' experience in the greenhouse business and have such a reputation for fine, well built, enduring houses, then what's the use of experimenting with concerns and constructions that have limited experience and must of necessity be experimenting on you?

Do you want to be experimented on?

Of course you don't!

Send for our catalog and let's get down to business.

ERECTED AT RUMSON, N. J.

SEEING how attractive and practical this arrangement is, do you wonder why THE LUTTON PATENT CURVED EAVE method has changed Greenhouse Construction during the past few years? The result has been the most successful house that can be produced; the other concerns who had been producing the same antiquated buildings for years had to simply destroy their patterns as well as their catalogues and start anew. Just ask some of our imitators to show you some of their curved eave houses built before THE LUTTON PATENT was granted; you will then be convinced that you had better consult with me.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Care of Palms

Palms of an advanced age and size that are excessively root-bound should now have a repotting. The weather being warm you can overhaul and repot them outside at your pleasure. While palms do well in almost any soil, they always do better when given a rather stiff yellow loam as the basis of their compost. When repotting large palms make your compost rich, say to three of chopped sod use one of well decayed manure and about a five-inch pot of bone meal to every barrow load of soil. Give this compost a thorough turning over so it will be well mixed. Keep your palms clean by examining them every ten days and when needed giving a thorough cleaning to prevent insects from gaining a foothold. To keep palms from becoming too soft and flabby give abundance of ventilation on all possible occasions. As the sun begins to lose power don't keep your glass too densely shaded, as this always gives an overplus of stagnant humidity.

Chrysanthemums

It has been proven by experience that buds taken about or after August 20th will always produce a satisfactory flower. Every good grower should use a notebook when handling any new varieties, in which he can make a record of details that will be of value for another season. For the best exhibition varieties and a great many of the best commercial kinds the taking of the bud should not be earlier than the above date. Keep your plants in proper shape by judicious tying as they may need it. It is very important now to keep your plants clean and free from the aphids. There is nothing better than a weekly spraying of "Aphine." Used according to directions it will keep your stock entirely free of these insects. Give plenty of ventilation both day and night so that your atmosphere will not become too close or humid. Where you want short-jointed and sturdy growth give abundant ventilation. Keep the beds clean by frequent stirrings of the surface and extra attention to watering.

Crotons

Where you have a nice batch of these highly ornamental subjects be very careful about ventilation from this out. It is always better to reduce the air gradually in the afternoon and shut the house up early enough to bottle up a good amount of solar heat. This will also help atmospheric conditions by giving that degree of humidity to the atmosphere which is essential to this class of plants in order to induce a strong quick growth. To grow crotons at their best they should never be allowed to go below 70 degrees at night as they are very tropical in their ways. They should always be given the fullest light, only enough shade being allowed so that the foliage will not become scorched, as there is nothing that will so bring out the rich markings of the leaves as plenty of light. Keep them well syringed twice a day so that thrips and red spider will not do irreparable damage. Where crotons are filling their pots well with roots they will enjoy weak doses of liquid manure once a week.

Preparing Compost for Winter

The growing of cut flowers and plants under glass for the market is one of the most difficult of all horticultural operations. All good growers will tell you that more failures can be ascribed to the using of an uncongenial soil than to any other single cause. So it behooves every grower to prepare a good amount of compost for winter use. Sod that was dug during the late fall of last year will make excellent soil to use as a foundation. Make your compost rich in available plant food by at least one-third of well-rotted manure which has not been allowed to leach. This can be built up in a square pile three or four feet high, after it has been thoroughly mixed by shoveling the mixture four or five times over. This will put it in a good mechanical condition so that all the mineral elements will be evenly mixed. Before the heavy rains come in the fall it can be put under cover for readiness.

Primulas

Give all your plants good care from this out. Watering and syringing should be carefully attended to every day so that they will not receive any severe check from either too much water or the want of it. These plants like a daily syringing overhead and always keep the material on which the pots stand in a moist state, as a cool bottom is a prime requisite with primulas. Any time within the next two weeks those that are intended for early winter blooming should have their last potting. Use a moderately firm sod that is fairly well decayed, three parts, well-rotted cow manure two parts, leaf mold one part, and enough of clean sand to keep the whole porous. Use five and six-inch pots according to the vigor of the plants. Let your primulas remain outside in a frame until away into October, as the conditions will suit them here better than in a house earlier. Keep them spaced often so a better circulation of air will reach them.

Paper White Narcissi

Get a batch of these narcissi in as early as you can so they will have plenty of time to form good roots before they are wanted for forcing. When they are boxed give them a cool bottom in some cold frame, and they can be shaded until top growth begins to show, when they should be exposed to sun and light. It usually takes from 6 to 7 weeks to make sufficient roots to stand any kind of forcing. Maintain a cool, moist state at the roots by giving them water whenever needed, as this is a very essential point in their culture.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Cyclamen for Next Year; Begonia Lorraine; Lilium candidum; Orchids: Propagation; Potting Evergreens

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

George H. Penson

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Penson. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Fruit Rooms

The advantages of having a proper room in which to store fruit for winter use are legion. This is not only applicable to greenhouse-grown fruit, but all fruit grown for keeping purposes. Earlier in the season the necessity of such a place will have presented itself when there has been a crop in and a few would have been very acceptable for next week. True, there is the ice box, but our experience has taught us that a thing can be kept on the ice long enough to lose all its flavor. A second detriment to the ice box for extended keeping is that after removing the fruit and the sweat has passed away, it is more easily bruised than at any other time. This sweating does nothing any good and is the direct reverse condition to what we seek when keeping fruit, yet all fruit will sweat after removing it from an ice box to a warmer room. An ideal fruit room will be easily kept at an even (cool) temperature, the air will be buoyant and fresh, regulated by ventilators placed in the proper place, and also be dry at the same time. This dryness is sometimes carried to excess and causes the fruit to shrivel. To define the exact conditions one might be excused for using the negative term of "not damp." The conditions inside the room are the things to be considered. Of the outside appearance and construction I will say nothing further than that the walls should be thick enough or contain a chamber to insulate against any quick changes in the outside temperature. The roof should be made of the coolest material. Water towers in some instances have been built over them. In Scotland a "thac o' bonny heather" is used. Whatever the building may be, if it is not frost proof a small heating pipe should pass around the base. Hot water is better than steam as it is cooler and more even. The interior offers a great variety of ways for equipment from glazed-brick walls, enameled fittings and glass shelves, down to the crudest of shelving, etc. Let it be what it will, keep the essential points in mind. A good lay-out of such a room would be to erect shelves not more than 3 ft. 6 in. wide around the sides having a 2 ft. 6 in. elevation. This will offer good facilities for looking over the fruits and detecting any going wrong. Such shelves would store apples and pears well. Through the center could be erected a stand for holding bottles into which at a later date grapes will be placed (of this more in due season). If grapes are not a prospective tenant shelves can be erected in the center as on the sides. If space permits a double width can be installed, operating half from each walk. Do not cut the walk down to a minimum or trays and baskets will always be in the way, getting upset, etc. Careful handling of all fruit is the key to good keeping. A bruise soon shows itself and the punctured flesh becomes useless and is a menace to good fruits near it. Before building have the subsoil drained, also have a drain from the interior.

Peas for Christmas

By making a sowing now, culinary peas will be in for Christmas. Well-drained solid benches will be found more advantageous than raised ones. Peas require a good depth of soil and consideration must also be given to the amount of head-room required. The dwarfing growing varieties will generally be found the most useful. Peas require the very richest soil in which to grow to perfection during the winter season. If the bench is deep enough place a layer of half-decayed manure over the drainage instead of the non-feeding materials often used for keeping the soil in its place. Let the rows run from north to south on the bench to give all an equal amount of sun. The distance apart must be governed by the height of the variety grown. Throughout the growing period it must be borne in mind that a pea likes a good supply of water and requires to be kept free from all insect pests. Later on when nearing maturity liquid feed can be given to them.

A Review

Now that we are in the midst of the "quiet season" in this department there will be time enough to look around, look ahead and look back. The first implies the present, the second our future and the "has been" we may be able to gain valuable assistance from. This time of the year is the "betwixt and between" time of our two seasons—the growing and the winter season. Therefore there is no time like the present to weigh things up. The question of pots is one which stands out prominently. There is nothing so annoying as to find that you are a few short to finish a job. With handling trees in pots we use sizes which are seldom bought and used by the thousand; this makes it all the more important that we should "do it now." Look over what is on hand, ascertain how many are cracked, discard these latter as useless for growing fruit trees in. Have all sound ones washed up and stored handy for using. Then there are the trees as they are growing now; a percentage of these will be disabled and by looking them over you can form an idea of how many are good and how many of each size will be needed to give the trees the necessary shift. This done now will help you out when the leaves are falling and potting, root-pruning and no end of preparatory work is on hand heralding winter. Enough soil should be laid by to use on the pot fruit trees. At the time of potting this should be in a semi-decomposed condition. This not only helps it to work good, but the roots will find ready nourishment as soon as they commence activities. After the severe handling some of them are subjected to this will be relished.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Mulching

Houses that have been planted earlier in the season will now be ready to receive their first mulch or "top dressing." With the early mulch we would not recommend any bone or tankage, using only some well-decayed cow manure. This should be used rather sparingly, just enough to slightly cover the surface of the benches. In mulching early the main object is to afford protection to the young, tender roots that push out into the soil and get scorched if the sun is allowed to bear its hot rays on the benches. Mulching earlier also saves a lot of watering, which usually takes up much valuable time. To do this the soil must be in a perfect condition and should never remain soggy after watering. Soil properly compounded will remain wet, at the same time not soggy, for the surplus water will quickly drain through.

Charcoal and Leaf Mold

Where no other soil can be had and the grower has to use soil that is not open enough to insure good drainage, a small amount of charcoal may be added to the soil. This will help keep it nice and sweet and afford better drainage. Leaf mold is also of a great help in such cases. We have used as much as $\frac{3}{4}$ of an inch of leaf mold over four inches of soil, mixing all of it in the bench. This, of course, would be out of question on more than one place. We did it only to make sure that we were getting exactly the same amount of leaf mold and fertilizer into all the benches. Where this cannot be done all that is to be put into the soil should be mixed in when the soil is being cut down and chopped prior to refilling the houses. I think growers should heap some leaves somewhere so as to have a little leaf mold handy when they have occasion to use it. It can be used very nicely when potting young plants during the propagating season.

Those Dark Corners

No doubt there are many of these, especially on some of the older places. Roses want just as much light as they can get. Therefore do not plant roses in these dark corners, but plant asparagus or some such suitable green which will do exceedingly well compared to what the roses would do. The above may also be applied to some houses which are shaded far too much to grow roses successfully. Plant houses like these in greens. So far as we know the market has always been good if you have green of any quantity at all, and there is no excuse whatever for having poor stuff, especially if you have facilities for applying liquid manure.

Soil for Next Season's Young Stock

As in any other business, you must always be looking and working ahead, if you expect anything like results. Turn over that heap of soil you are going to use to pot cuttings in next spring. A little tankage or bone may be added to this, which will work into the soil gradually, and by the time the plants get to it, will be easily available and there will be no danger whatever of damaging the young plants.

Ventilation

Do not make it a practice to reduce the air on the house unless it is necessary. On many places not large enough to employ a night man, the growers will take off considerable air so as to be safe in case of a thunderstorm. With us we would much rather see a house get wet than see it suffer because of lack of air. Give the plants all the air they can safely have. Keep them used to it, and then they will not be getting a dose of mildew every time a little draught goes through the house.

The Side Ventilators

Unless you are sure that you can handle side air we would advise keeping all side ventilators closed from now on, especially at night when the air is cool and damp. See that all shading which may have been applied to glass when the houses were being filled is removed now, for all roses need as much light as they can possibly get, as we have stated time and time again.

An Inquiry

In reply to letter from Mr. B. G. I can only say that even with a powerful microscope we failed to discover any insects in his soil. The soil itself seems to be of good quality and closely resembles our own. From all appearances it contains a sufficient quantity of lime and should grow good roses. We have never had any experience with insects eating the rose plants off at the roots, and we think the insects mentioned are not altogether responsible for the plants' dying off. If such insects are present in large numbers, no doubt their gnawing at the roots of plants would start fungous diseases of the roots, killing these, and of course no plant can live without roots. If Mr. G. will try to catch some of said insects and mail same to us in a small glass tube or something similar, we shall try to tell him more about them. He says Scalecide has been used successfully other years. We would suggest that he try it again, as it contains fungicide, which would check fungus should the plants be affected with such. We have never used Scalecide inside under glass, using mostly nicotine preparations. One year we lost a good many plants by fungus destroying the roots, but since we use plenty of copper sulphate and Fungine on the benches before planting we have but little trouble. Readers will remember when we called attention to this important fact, and advised growers to clean their benches thoroughly with fungicide and destroy all insects with a heavy dose of hydrocyanic acid gas before replanting.

Our benches sometimes contain all kinds of insects and bugs, the chief ones being thrips, sow bugs and centipedes, but as long as they stay on the bench and do not bother the plants we seldom try to destroy them all. You could never rid your benches of all insects by applying one dose of insecticide. Spray regularly every two days until nearly all insects are destroyed and then regularly every week to keep them out. Do not make the spray so strong as to destroy any of the bottom foliage on the plants.

Friends of the people

The park superintendents are in Boston this week. They come from across the continent and from all parts of this country and Canada—from places in the remote regions which we hardly realized had reached that composure which would favor serious consideration of such a subject as public park reservations. Evolution works rapidly in these hustling days and the pioneer in primitive civilization is close pressed by the pioneer in refinement and art. None are doing a more beneficent work than the park people and none have a more elevating influence upon the people who are most in need of just such education. They are the beacon lights of horticulture.

Production and distribution

A contemporary tells of an ambulance load of fine asters being donated by the Boston Flower Exchange to the hospitals last week—not entirely from benevolent motives, but because of insufficient outlet through business channels. While this is a most commendable action from one standpoint yet the situation can hardly be regarded with extreme pleasure by those who must earn their living by the growing and sale of these flowers. It would seem that the science of distribution is still almost a closed book so far as the flower grower is concerned. As we have said repeatedly, this is a subject that the grower must finally take up seriously. We are glad to learn that it will be given a hearing at Chicago.

A transformation

Our cover illustration this week is designed to portray the marvellous progress of western civilization within the bounds of a human lifetime—as exemplified in the history of our Convention City of 1912. From the lone garrison and the wild Indian's tomahawk to the majestic buildings that line the thoroughfares and the surging multitudes that throng the streets of this great hive of industry—all in the space of 75 years—is an almost inconceivable transformation. When the S. A. F. visitors enter the gates of the great city, they will find the right hand of fellowship extended by the representatives of a fraternity of florists whose growth and progress has been, in its way, almost as marvellous as the evolution of their city. No Indian will be there to dispute their coming although, perhaps, there may still be a few tomahawks secreted in convenient corners. HORTICULTURE extends congratulations to Chicago and her guests and would express the hope that the convention of 1912 may be the biggest and best on record.

Brighten the streets

Visitors from abroad frequently comment on the bare and uninviting aspect of our American city streets due to the general absence of living green. As a rule our busy thoroughfares are utterly destitute of trees, grass or plants of any sort either in the street or on the buildings. This is not as it should be and any disposition, public or private, to remedy it, should be enthusiastically encouraged by everyone engaged in any horticultural pursuit. There are signs of improvement here and there and in no circumstances is the influence of a good example more potent, for to see is to be convinced. Boston's newest hotel, the Copley-Plaza, has fitted all the windows of the first story with especially designed plant boxes, of concrete, filled with buxus and vines and we hope to see many imitators. Minneapolis, we understand has been successfully experimenting with flower boxes or "hanging gardens" on ornamental posts at street intersections and even Berkeley, California, which has a garden climate all the year round, proposes to install "aerial gardens" on the trolley poles at a height of twelve to fifteen feet above the ground. We noticed a similar attempt on Market street, Philadelphia, this summer, the plant receptacles being about half-way up on the iron posts supporting electric wires but these were plainly suffering from insufficient watering and some automatic device for supplying water would seem to be an essential to full success in such plantings.

BOSTON TO CHICAGO.

It is proposed to leave Boston on the 2.00 P. M. train Sunday, which arrives in Chicago Monday at 2.00 P. M. We hope to have a sufficient number to fill a special car and I should like to hear at once from those who would like to join this party and wish to have a berth reserved. It is important that I should have this information at once.

E. ALLAN PIERCE.

Waltham, Mass.

PHILADELPHIA TO CHICAGO.

The convention party will leave on the 10.17 train, Baltimore & Ohio, 24th and Chestnut street, Monday morning, August 19, picking up the Baltimore and Washington contingents on the way; $15.40 one way. Those going should arrange with John Westcott, chairman of transportation committee, at once, otherwise they will have to pay the straight fare; $17.00. Address: John Westcott, Ridge and Lehigh avenues. All are welcome whether members of the club or not. "The more the merrier."

NEW YORK TO CHICAGO.

Frank H. Traendly says the party will fall short of the requisite number for the special train, so that they will be accommodated in two special cars on N. Y. Central, Monday morning.

Tickets and sleeping car reservations are to be paid for on the train. If any baggage is to be checked application should be made to the baggage room at the Grand Central Terminal, stating that you are a member of the florists' party en route to Chicago.

CHICAGO—THE CONVENTION CITY

A Gazetteer of the World published in Philadelphia in the year 1839 says: "Chicago; a town with a military post called Fort Dearborn, at the southern extremity of Lake Michigan in the State of Illinois. A river of the same name here flows into the lake." That's all. The same authority gives the population of the State of Illinois as 157,575, "of whom 746 are slaves." The lapse of 73 years has made an inconceivable transformation as everybody knows. Those who attend the Convention next week will see for themselves—those who do not will have no trouble in finding the facts in the history of the growth of the great metrop-

Craig of Philadelphia was president. E. G. Hill of Richmond, Ind., was elected president and W. J. Stewart of Boston was chosen secretary to succeed Edwin Lonsdale of Philadelphia, who had declined a re-election. Previous to the convention a local Florists' Club had been organized and the members of this club were the active factors in the preparations for and entertainment of the visitors. Looking over the list of those who were omnipresent in all Chicago floral affairs in those days it is appalling to realize how few are alive today. Among the notable visitors on that occasion was the late Henry Bennett of Shepperton, Eng-hospitality. The show, as we all know, which had been regarded somewhat in the nature of an experiment, was a horticultural and financial success.

Chicago Parks.

Chicago early appreciated the value of public parks and laid out large tracts which were developed with great liberality. The lake front offered splendid opportunities for public recreation purposes and the city was fortunate in securing able men for the work of construction and development so that Chicago parks were for some years probably the most noted in this country, but that distinction is, we beolis of the west, if they so desire, so there is no need to rehearse them here.

A Big Producing Centre.

Chicago was early in the game as a good flower consuming community but in due time the tables were turned and she took a leading position among the flower producing centres of the country. For a period the florists of Chicago were eager buyers of the product of eastern growers and contributed their full share towards extending the glass area and inflating the bank accounts of the affluent rose growers of other sections a quarter century or more ago; now as a distributing flower centre Chicago has no equal, her shipping trade extending to the Gulf of Mexico on the south, the Rockies on the west and to a considerable distance north and east.

The First Chicago Convention.

Twenty-five years ago the Society of American Florists held an enthusiastic convention—the third—in Chicago. The sessions opened on Tuesday, August 16, 1887, at the 1st Regiment Armory. There were nearly 500 people present at the opening exercises, and there was a very creditable exhibition for a society so young. Robert land, the pioneer in the raising of hybrid tea roses.

New York joined with Philadelphia and Baltimore in a special train to Chicago, a stop being made at Luray Cave for sight-seeing, while Boston "flocked by itself," going via the Hoosac Tunnel route, picking up additions at Utica, Syracuse and Buffalo, and stopping off for a half-day at Niagara Falls.

Chicago has furnished four presidents for the S. A. F.—J. T. Anthony, 1894; W. N. Rudd, 1899; J. C. Vaughan, 1905; George Asmus, 1911; all of whom are alive today with the exception of J. T. Anthony. Among the other Chicago members who have served on the executive board are J. D. Reynolds, Emil Buettner, P. J. Hauswirth and August Poehlmann.

Chicago Hospitality.

Chicago again acted as host to the S. A. F. on the occasion of the visit of the society to Milwaukee in the year 1903, when the members were entertained lavishly on a steamer trip from Milwaukee and in Chicago on arrival there. Again in 1908, when the first National Flower Show was held in Chicago, the florists of the country were treated with open-handed lieve, generally conceded now to Boston.

Some Leading Establishments.

We have referred to the large commercial floral and allied establishments that have found in Chicago a large and lucrative field of activity. A few of the most notable and enterprising, which all visitors to the convention should take opportunity to inspect are the following:

Poehlmann Bros. Co.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., at Morton Grove, probably welcome more visitors each year than any other house in the west, for not only is the extreme size of the plant an attraction, but the place stands for the latest ideas in building, equipping and growing. Just now a labor-saving arrangement is being completed for carrying the cars of coal directly into the coal sheds at an elevation of some forty feet and dropping the coal into the bins without handling.

The latest enterprise is in the realm of pot plants and about 60,000 square feet of glass will be devoted to azaleas, poinsettias, cyclamen, primroses and other blooming plants, as well as ferns, palms, etc. The carnation range contains 300,000 plants and as the names of varieties are always interesting to growers the writer secured them. All other whites have given way to White Perfection; for red, Scarlet Glow and Beacon; dark pink, Lawson and Mrs. C. W. Ward; light pink, Winsor and Gloriosa; lighter pink, Enchantress and Mayday. No variegated. Hill's new red Commodore is said to have all the points of a good commercial variety in its tryout so far. American Beauties, orchids, sweet peas and lily of the valley fill the remaining houses in Plant "A," while Plant "B" covers the thousands of tea roses.

Kroeschell Bros. Co.

Kroeschell Bros., whose boilers have made their names famous; Charles, William, Albert and Otto, founded the business in 1876 in their present location at 440-472 West Erie St. The firm has happily been spared most of the ups and downs that come to many and has steadily developed a gigantic business whose market is world-wide. Fred Lautenschlager is right-hand man here and is on half the convention committees.

John C. Moninger Co.

The John C. Moninger Co. represent 64 years of effort to obtain the best results in building commercial greenhouses and providing their equipment. Their illustrated catalogues on the materials and methods of building modern greenhouses, boilers, pumps, watering systems, etc., are full of money-making knowledge. Franc C. Moninger was the founder of the business in 1848 on Kinzie street, where the Leonard Seed Co.'s buildings now stand. After the Civil War a new start was made on Hawthorn avenue, and in 1890 John C. Moninger, son of the founder, took hold of the business and at his father's death three years later succeeded him and with M. J. Rupp and E. T. Kurowski, now compose the present firm, with P. McKee as manager. A visit to their place is instructive and a cordial welcome is always assured.

Budlong's.

J. A. Budlong's business was among the very first of its kind in Chicago in what was then Jefferson Park and far to the north of the city, but now a valuable part of the city proper. The two Budlongs who were the originators of the business passed away a few years ago and the next generation took up the work. Phil Schup whose wife is a daughter of one of the elder Budlongs, is in charge of the store and one of the heaviest shippers in the city. His son Roswell Schup has lately gone into the store making the third generation. The small photograph shows Fred Price, Wm. Hornburg and Phil Schup in their usual happy frame of mind.

Hoerber Bros.

Hoerber Bros. at Desplaines, Ill., have the distinction of being the newest of the large wholesale places. A strictly modern range of 20 houses 300 feet long is filled with sweet peas, roses, carnations and chrysanthemums.

The Hoerber Bros. are three in number; W. F., F. C. and J. L. and during the four years since they started, have built up a fine business. F. C. Hoerber is in the store at 162 N. Wabash Ave., assisted by Harry Mannheim who has had many years' experience in the trade.

Peter Reinberg.

The largest range of glass within the city limits, 2,500,000 sq. ft., is that of Peter Reinberg on N. Robey street, whose business was started there 30 years ago and was then far out in the country. The specialties here are roses, carnations and Beauties and their immense shipping trade reaches practically to all sections of the United States and far into Canada. Mr. Reinberg is also active in politics. His salesrooms at 30 E. Randolph street have for several years been in charge of Tim Matchen, a very capable young man.

Frank Oeschlin.

Frank Oeschlin's is the show place of the city. Once take a walk through these houses and you will plan for it each time you come to Chicago. Everything in plants and every plant grown, as nearly a perfect specimen as a plant can be, is what you will find. Frank Oeschlin was born in Switzerland but came to his adopted country when a boy, spending several years in the east, and going to Chicago in 1891 where he worked for J. Kidwell. In 1898 he rented the greenhouse known as the Garfield Park Floral Co., and soon began the erection of his present plant, which has grown yearly till now he has 80,000 sq. ft. all devoted to choice plants. Mr. Oeschlin is a skillful grower and his success is based on the quality of the stock he sends out.

FRANK OESCHLIN.

Chicago Carnation Co.

The Chicago Carnation Co., is always counted as a Chicago institution though its greenhouses are at Joliet. Its output of choice carnations is widely known. A. T. Pyfer, its manager, is well known to all the trade and through him the firm have gained the reputation of being one of the most liberal entertainers in this locality. Visitors are always welcome.

Sharp, Partridge & Co.

For the past eleven years 2263-69 Lumber street has been of interest to florists for here is where they have secured the glass for their greenhouses. Sharp, Partridge & Co. have won the confidence of the trade by Des Plaines, Ill.—It is reported that the George M. Garland Co., greenhouse builders, are to open a branch office in San Francisco next winter.

Boddington's "Quality" CHRISTMAS-FLOWERING SWEET PEAS

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

All true stocks of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas will be scarce this season. Some varieties are a total failure owing to the exceptional season in California this Spring. Our advice to intending planters is to order at once. Mr. Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., the great Winter Street Pea Specialist, sows our seed almost exclusively.

Our stock of Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas have stood the test for years, and we can refer you to the largest growers of this increasingly popular flower, as to the trueness and quality of our seed, earliest of blooming period and strength and habit of plants.

The following varieties are the "best by test" and include Zvolanek's and our own introductions, grown for seed from selected stocks by the leading California grower and specialist in Sweet Peas.

Our output last year was nearly 3000 lbs. Few kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and trueness to type.

We can make immediate delivery all the following varieties.

BODDINGTON'S EXTRA-EARLY CHRISTMAS WHITE SNOWBIRD. An exceptionally early Sweet Pea for indoor flowering—will bloom six weeks after sowing. Color clear white, upon long stems; habit fairly dwarf and of exceptionally free-flowering qualities. Without doubt the finest early white for indoor planting. We sell one grower in Pennsylvania 35 lbs. of this variety every year; name on application. Oz. 25 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. 75 cts., $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$1.25, lb. \$2.00

BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS PINK. This is the earliest and most profitable and useful Sweet Pea in cultivation, as by sowing the seed under glass in latter part of August, flowers can be cut from Thanksgiving on during the Winter months. Oz. 15 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. 85 cts., lb. \$1.50.

BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS WHITE. A companion to our Christmas Pink. Just as free and profuse a bloomer. Oz. 15 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. 85 cts., lb. \$1.50

ANGELINO. Self pink; new variety. Oz. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.50, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$2.75, lb. \$4.50.

CANARY. Similar to the above, but flowers of an exceptionally good yellow. Oz. 35 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.00, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$1.75, lb. \$3.00.

CHRISTMAS METEOR. Scarlet; fine open red flower. Oz. 35 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.00, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$1.50, lb. \$2.50.

CHRISTMAS STELLA MORSE. Creamy buff standard, wings slightly tinged with pink. Oz. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.50, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$2.75, lb. \$4.50.

FLAMINGO. Color scarlet; free-flowering and early. Oz. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.50, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$2.75, lb. \$5.00.

FLORENCE DENZER. Pure white. Oz. 25 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. 75 cts., $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$1.25, lb. \$2.00.

LE MARQUIS. This is the same color as Princess of Wales, violet; has very large flowers. Oz. 25 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. 75 cts., $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$1.25, lb. \$2.00.

MRS. ALEX. WALLACE. Lavender; very scarce. Oz. 35 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.00, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$1.50, lb. \$2.50.

MRS. F. J. DELANSKY. Daybreak pink. Oz. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.50, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$2.25, lb. \$4.00.

MRS. GEO. LEWIS. Large, pure white, wavy flower. Oz. 15 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. 85 cts., lb. \$1.50.

MRS. E. WILD. Carmine or dark pink. Oz. 15 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. 50 cts., $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. 85 cts., lb. \$1.50.

MRS. HANNAN. Deep rose-pink; very pleasing shade. Oz. 40 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.25, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$2.00, lb. \$3.50.

MRS. W. W. SMALLEY. Satiny pink. Oz. 35 cts., $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. \$1.00, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. \$1.75, lb. \$3.00.

TWO IMPORTANT NEW COMMERCIAL FERNS

Cyrtomium Rochfordianum

THE CRESTED HOLLY FERN

The Most Valuable Decorative Fern of Recent Introduction

A most important addition to our list of Ferns. Its foliage is of a rich, deep, glossy green color, the pinnae or leaflets besides being wavy or undulated are also deeply cut or toothed, giving the plant a graceful light appearance, which make it valuable not only as a dish Fern but decorative work and for apartment use.

2 1/4 inch pots, 75 cts. per dozen; $5.00 per 100; $10.00 per 1000. Also a limited lot of flats of about 200 plants each, at $3.00 per flat.

Adiantum Farleyense Gloriosa

THE GLORY FERN or RUHM VON MORDRECHT

The Fern Which Will Revolutionize the Cut Frond Business.

For the grower of Ferns for cutting this new Maiden Hair will undoubtedly prove a most important addition; it closely resembles Adiantum Farleyense and will make a splendid substitute for that fancy variety and it can be produced at much less cost, as it will thrive under conditions in which Adiantum Farleyense could not exist.

At our Riverview Nursery we have given it a very fair trial for this purpose during the past winter. A block of these plants were planted on a bench in a house devoted to the ordinary Boston Fern and received the ordinary treatment and temperature given to the Nephrolepis, and under this treatment they developed not only fronds of great beauty on longer, stiffer stems than Farleyense produces, but also many more fronds than would be developed by that variety in the same length of time under the most favorable condition.

Anyone who successfully grows the ordinary varieties of Adiantum such as Cuneatum, Croweanum and Hybridum, can grow it under precisely the same conditions given to these sorts.

We have a fine block of about 30,000 young plants coming on which will be ready to send out in September from 2 1/4-inch pots, and for which we are now booking orders at $2.00 per doz.; $15.00 per 100; $140.00 per 1000.

FERNS IN FLATS

These flats contain about two hundred plants each, only one variety in a flat, and we cannot supply less than a full flat of any one of the following varieties:

ASPIDIUM TSUSSIMENSE
CYRTOMIUM FALCATUM
CYRTOMIUM FORTUNEI
POLYSTICHUM SETOSUM
PTERIS ADIANTOIDES

PTERIS ALBA LINEATA
PTERIS MAGNIFICA
PTERIS MAJUS OR OUVRARDI
PTERIS WINSETTI MULTICEPS
PTERIS WILSONI

Samples of the above, as well as a complete line of other Dreer Specials, will be shown at the Chicago Convention and our staff of Salesmen will be present to give full information regarding same.

Seed Trade

The Dull Season.

The American seed trade is enjoying its annual midsummer siesta, its leading members recuperating from the regular spring grind, and the consequent strain on brain and body and an occasional attack of "nerves." In a few weeks the bulb season will open as a prelude to the more strenuous work required by the regular seed business. There is little of interest we can say aside from stereotyped phrases and platitudes which are of little or no value to readers, excepting to give reliable crop news. This we shall aim to do briefly and we hope with reasonable correctness.

The European Situation.

So far as we can ascertain, but little has transpired in the European situation excepting a confirmation of many of the early pessimistic predictions. We have not the data nor the space to mention each item in detail, but may say that biennials are generally in a bad way, though we believe that with a few exceptions, conditions are not quite so serious as a year ago. The heaviest shortages are in garden beets, carrots and mangels. California will relieve the situation on carrots to a considerable extent, and while many thousands of pounds of garden beets will be produced in this country this year, its relation to the total will be comparatively small. It may be of interest to note in passing, that the annual famine in genuine French-grown Golden Self-Blanching celery will be in full force again the coming season.

California Seed.

California-grown garden seeds will not match up with last year's either in quality or quantity. It is well known that sweet peas are largely a failure. Onion seed will not return an average yield, and should there be as heavy a demand as during the past season prices are likely to reach higher levels than for several years past. The chief factor in determining this will be the onion crop, both sets and large onions. We have not been able to get a line on these as yet, therefore cannot express any opinion in the matter.

Corn, Beans and Peas.

Corn is late and the condition unsatisfactory, but we need not despair of a corn crop yet, though a warm, open autumn and pretty continuously favorable weather from now on is needed to give us well matured corn that will have the requisite vitality. Everyone knows the difficulties of securing sound seed corn that would meet the germination requirements the past season, and last year up to this date was a more favorable one for corn than this.

Indications are that beans will be a short crop, but barring damage by a wet harvest, there should be enough with the carry-over to meet all requirements. There may be a hardening of prices but no famine. In the matter of peas, the situation is distinctly favorable and it looks as if we were to be surprised with a good average crop or nearly so. It is the first time in more than five years since fortune has thus smiled upon the seed trade and we almost fear to state the good news lest we awake to find it but a pleasant dream. After repeated assurances, however, we make bold to give out the information, with the additional statement that harvesting is progressing under generally favorable conditions. Of course there are occasional bad spots, enough probably to prevent a bumper crop, and cause the complete assimilation of what is produced. It may be well to remark that the worst spot on the map in the seed pea situation is Canada. We have received but meager reports from there, but such as we have are unfavorable, though we believe not nearly so black as last year.

Seed Legislation.

The Seed Import Bill is on the calendar in the U. S. Senate, but greatly changed from the original Bill as passed by the House. Senator Gronna of No. Dakota has proposed, in Section 4, a very unfortunate amendment whereby all interstate commerce in seeds mentioned in the bill must carry a label stating kind of seed, percentage of germination, per cent. of "adulteration" (?) name and address of consignee and place where seed was grown. To anyone acquainted with the nature of seeds, their harvesting, cleaning, grading, etc., this amendment is very objectionable for obvious reasons. However, such strong and reasonable objection against this impracticable legislation has been aroused by seedsmen throughout the country, that there seems reasonable certainty that the amendment will fail. This may entail the failure of passing any bill in the current session of Congress. The bill as it passed the House of Representatives is reasonable and quite likely to perform a distinct service to American Agriculture.

kill. N. Y. With his long experience and ability Mr. Robinson should make a pronounced success of his independent venture.

As stated in these columns some weeks ago, no radical changes have been inaugurated in the management of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., and none are contemplated. The old and faithful employees who have done so much to develop and make the business are still loyal and so long as the present organization controls, the business should continue to prosper.

The Cambridge Valley Fair, fostered and developed largely by the genius and energy of the late Jerome B. Rice is to be continued along the same lines by his trusted lieutenants, and there seems no reason to doubt that its popularity and success will continue. It will be held at a somewhat earlier date than usual, extending from Aug. 19 to 23. Many local seed dealers of Northern New York, Vermont and Western Massachusetts, usually attend and many have exhibits.

FRENCH RESTRICTIONS ON CUT FLOWER SHIPMENTS.

(From Consul General James A. Smith, Genoa, Italy.)

The French decree of April 19, 1912, prohibits the importation of Italian cut flowers into France from May 1 to November 1 each year. This affects chiefly the Italian Riviera region (Leguria), which exports to the neighboring Republic large quantities of cut flowers, chiefly roses, although carnations and violets have also been shipped in the past.

The reason for this prohibition is the prevalence of Diaspis pentagona, a pest which destroys the mulberry tree, thereby injuring silkworm culture and menacing the silk industry.
It seems that the larvae of the Diaspis pentagona are not mature from November to May, and for that reason cut flowers are not so apt to spread the parasite in that season as throughout the summer. The height of the Italian exportation of roses to France is said to be during December, January and February.

The exports of fresh flowers from Italy to all countries in 1911 were, valued at $1,631,390.

AMERICAN ASSOC'N OF PARK SUPERINTENDENTS

The fourteenth annual convention of the park superintendents opened in Horticultural Hall, Boston, on Monday forenoon, August 12. It was the largest and most representative gathering in the Association's history, there being about 150 visitors and, as the list below shows, coming from every section of the country. Registration and a meeting of the executive committee occupied so much time that it was nearly eleven o'clock before the Association got down to business. President W. H. Dunn, superintendent of parks of Kansas City, called the meeting to order, and introduced James B. Shea, superintendent of parks of Boston, who welcomed the delegates. "I am pleased," he said, "to see so large an attendance of men who represent the highest type of civic development in this busy twentieth century. My welcome is tinged with a feeling of sadness because we have lost one of the men who was a founder of this Association, the late J. A. Pettigrew, superintendent of parks. But if he is not here he has left his monument in our splendid park system and in the work he has done here. We will do all we can to welcome you, and hope your stay here will be long and pleasant."

Mr. Shea was loudly applauded, and President Dunn made a fitting response. He said that it was his first experience here and he had looked forward to it. "We recognize in Boston," he said, "the father of the municipal park system. We expect to learn a great deal here, and expect to find the most fully developed park system in this country. We are sure that our stay will be both pleasant and profitable, and that we will find all we can expect in the way of entertainment, as we know Boston's reputation for hospitality."

The secretary read a report of the executive committee regarding an official organ for the Association. The recommendation was to adopt "Park and Cemetery" as such organ and the members so voted.

A luncheon was given at the hall through the courtesy of John K. M. L. Farquhar. Following the luncheon automobiles were taken at the hall and went out through the Back Bay Fens, Riverway, Jamaica Way and Franklin Park to the Arboretum, where the Hunnewell Museum was visited and the rest of the afternoon was spent in the Arboretum, under the guidance of Messrs. Dawson, Wilson and Curtis of the Arboretum staff.

JAMES B. SHEA,

President Elect American Association of Park Superintendents.

In the evening Mr. E. H. Wilson delivered a stereopticon lecture on his trip to China in search of trees and shrubs which are capable of thriving in the New England states and was followed by Mr. J. J. Levison of the Brooklyn Park Department who showed a fine series of views in Prospect Park and elsewhere.

At Tuesday morning's session Denver, Colo., was selected as the place for next year's convention on a close vote, Newburgh, N. Y., being favored by many. It is understood that Newburgh will probably be selected for the following year and that San Francisco and the great Panama exposition have the right of way for 1915.

Officers were then elected as follows: President, James B. Shea, Boston; vice-presidents, S. C. Steinhuer of Denver, A. V. Parker of Worcester, C. G. Carpenter of Milwaukee, C. D. Stewart of Ottawa, E. F. Reinisch of Topeka and H. S. Ricards of Chicago; secretary-treasurer, J. J. Levison of Brooklyn, N. Y. Announcement was made of the illness of C. E. Keith of Bridgeport, one of the older members of the Association who is very popular with the members, he having suffered a slight paralytic shock. It was unanimously voted to make Mr. Keith honorary president for life. In the afternoon tours were made to the various playgrounds of the city. Many went to the public landing at Marine Park for a short harbor trip, and lunch was served on board. Later in the afternoon auto trips were made to Strandway in South Boston, to Norumbega Park, and the Hunnewell estate at Wellesley. In the evening at Horticultural Hall, interesting lectures, illustrated by stereopticon slides, were delivered by J. K. M. L. Farquhar of Boston and D. W. Cotterill, secretary of the Park Commission of Seattle, Wash.

During the session of Tuesday morning, Mayor Fitzgerald came in and made an address which was received with great applause. He said, in part:

"I think that altogether too much attention has been paid to the artistic side of park life in America with too little regard for the practical purposes for which the parks might be used. It seems to me that a middle course, which would keep the parks attractive to the eye and at the same time utilize them to the advantage of the people who pay for them, should be the policy of the park departments of the country. During my present administration I have had frequent conferences with park, public grounds and sanitary authorities with a view to increasing the opportunities for healthful exercise, and I am glad to say that a very marked improvement has taken place along these lines the last three years. In fact, it is only within a few days I signed an order creating the position of play leaders, and there are now about a dozen young men engaged in directing the play of the people in the different sections of the city. We have a municipal Athletic Association of which I have been made the honorary president, and if you were here for the next few weeks you would be able to witness some of the best sports in the world among youngsters of school age. It is my intention, while I am mayor of the city, to increase activities along these lines, particularly with a view to giving those who work for a living a chance to develop outside working hours. This is a very important phase of the public grounds life of America, and while it has been neglected in the past, I think its importance will commend itself increasingly every year to the public authorities."

Wednesday morning's session was a busy one. Papers were read by W. A. McIntyre on construction of concrete roads, W. H. Dunn on the increase in value of real estate by park and boulevard construction and G. A. Parker on park accounting, which elicited much discussion.

Resolutions were adopted on the deaths of Edward H. Perry, superintendent of the State Reservation at Niagara Falls; William R. Smith, for half a century superintendent of the Botanic Garden at Washington, D. C., and James Wilson, superintendent of parks of Toronto. Mrs. J. A. Pettigrew was made an honorary member.

Boston Public Garden. Playgrounds, Charles River Basin, Mystic Valley Boulevard, Middlesex Fells and Revere Beach Parkway were inspected on Wednesday afternoon by auto, and in the evening a shore dinner at the Lynnwood Club. Point of Pines, as guests of the City of Boston, closed the program of the 14th annual convention.

Thomas J. Murphy of Boston Park Department, had charge of the registration and information bureau. The following were registered:

MASSACHUSETTS HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The gladiolus and phlox exhibition at Horticultural Hall, Boston, on Saturday and Sunday, August 10 and 11 was a brilliant and pleasing display. Among the most notable exhibits were the gladioli from Chamberlain & Gage, B. Hammond Tracy, (first prize) Wm. Whitman and C. W. Brown; Lilium Henryi and a collection of perennials and annuals from R. & J. Farquhar & Co.; phloxes and annuals from Eastern Nurseries and Bay State Nurseries; seedling gloxinias and asters of high merit from A. W. Preston, gard. J. L. Smith, phloxes from T. C. Thurlow & Sons and sweet peas from Langwater Gardens, gard. W. N. Craig. The latter was awarded honorable mention. The Hunnewell estate, gard. T. D. Hatfield, showed Japanese cherries in fruit, first time shown here and honorable mention was accorded them.

Chamberlain & Gage were the recipients of the following special awards for seedling gladioli: Gladiolus gandavensis Myrtle, delicate rose-pink with white throat, silver medal; G. gandavensis Mrs. Montague Chamberlain snow white with slight line of crimson, stalk 4 to 5 ft. high, first-class certificate; seedling No. 301, crimson with black streaks, honorable mention. The Bay State Nurseries' display of herbaceous flowers won a bronze medal and Farquhar's lilies a silver medal. D. F. Roy got a first-class certificate for Begonia gracilis Prima Donna.

LADIES' SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

The annual meeting of above society will be held at Auditorium Hotel, Chicago, on sixth floor, Wednesday, Aug. 21st, at 10.30 A. M. Free for all. The Ladies' S. A. F. will also give an informal reception and dance at same hotel on Thursday, Aug. 22nd, 8.30 P. M. to all their friends.

The Secretary will be at Exhibition Hall in the Coliseum all day Tuesday to receive dues and members. Members please wear your badge pin.

MRS. CHAS. H. MAYNARD, Secy.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The regular meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society was held last Monday evening. Vice-President James Allen presided. Pres. Gus Adrian was away.

At the monthly meeting of the New London (Conn.), Horticultural Society, held in its rooms on Main street, it was decided to hold the annual aster show on Aug. 27, in and about the house of the Pequot, Ind., Hose Company in lower Boulevard.

Eldorado, Kan.—The greenhouses of Will H. Noble have been purchased by C. M. Salisbury, who will continue the business.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON Trade is about the same as at the corresponding date in other years but the extreme heat of the past few days is interfering seriously with the quality of flowers and stock arrives at market in a melting condition while flowers shipped out are almost sure to bring complaints to the wholesaler by return mail. Gladioli, asters, sweet peas and small roses are the most abundant features and all four are moved with difficulty. The best sellers are Carnot, Taft and medium Beauties. The special Beauty hangs fire and does not sell as well as those of the lower grades. Shakespeare gladiolus, for many years a favorite in this market seems to be losing to the more modern varieties. Lily of the valley is good but very short lived.

The first days of CINCINNATI this week market conditions were directly contrary to the first of last week. Then everything was good in so far as the general demand kept the market cleaned up pretty thoroughly. Now the supply has increased while the call if anything, has moved in an increased ratio to the increase and has become much lighter. As a result there is easily plenty of everything to be had. The best sells easily but blooms of inferior quality hardly find buyers who will take them. Asters of good quality are now in strong. They include mid-season and late ones and every color possible in this flower. Gladioli came in too strong for needs and as a result have crowded up. Among other stock from outdoors are very choice Hydrangea paniculata.

The rose cut, too, has increased until the supply is now at such a point where requirements take up only the best of the offerings quickly. The culls and seconds sell slowly. American Beauties, however, have been a brilliant feature. Ever since the summer season opened they have been a good seller in all kinds of markets.

The local situation is en-
DETROIT tirely different from a week ago. Asters and roses are being sent in in enormous quantities, a peculiarity of which is the great predominance of white asters. Roses are in the majority short-stemmed, but the buds are much larger than they were a week or so ago. Gladioli also are being shipped in very large quantities and while America is still the best in color it is odd how much shorter in stem this variety is with all growers as compared with other varieties and last year.

Business last
PHILADELPHIA week was about as usual for this time of year. Plenty of asters, of which sixty to seventy-five per cent. were under standard. First-class gladioli moved fairly well; but there was very little doing in the short-spike grades. Roses a little more plentiful with demand not quite so brisk—the one condition being probably contributory to the other. The quality of American Beauty is fairly good, all things considered, and they are a little more plentiful. But the Mrs. Taft is "the" rose at present and leads them all as to quality. Carnations are very

ST. LOUIS was rather top-heavy during the last week, plenty of stock of all kinds and the demand very poor. Gladioli are still over-plentiful in all varieties but not near so many. Asters are a big glut at all the markets. Killarney roses, too, are many but White Killarneys are short in supply. Carnations, field-cut, are the only good ones that come in now. Hydrangeas, cosmos and tuberose don't sell well at any price. Lily of the valley and lilies hold their own in price.

Business this week
NEW YORK can be put down as absolutely stagnant.

The influx of stock such as asters, lilies and gladioli has been great. There has been an abundance of roses in the last two days—certainly on the small side—but Marylands, Wards, Taits, Killarnies and some Beauties which in better times would be thought no little of, were practically unsalable as a paying proposition. Yes, this market can do with a few convention weeks now and we are settled down to the dead season in real earnest.

PROPOSED PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN FOR FLOWERS.

The committee appointed by the New York Florists' Club to appear before the convention of the S. A. F. & O. H. at Chicago to obtain the endorsement of this movement by the society and its assistance in starting the campaign, has received the support of the florist clubs of several of our leading cities, which clubs have appointed committees to act with the New York committee at the convention. The New York committee will, at the convention, present a resolution asking for the appointment of a general standing committee to conduct the campaign, its membership to embrace one delegate from each florist club organizing a publicity committee before October 1 of each year, such general committee to direct the work of the local committees, which latter are to conduct the campaign within their respective districts. The S. A. F. committee would be expected to go into session annually at the society's conventions, receive the reports of the local committees, review the work as a whole and formulate plans for the continuance and extension of the campaign. The New York committee has devoted much time to consideration of the project and ways and means to put it into operation, and it is hoped that the campaign will be started at the Chicago convention.

S. Kinder & Bro. of Bristol have nearly completed remodeling two houses. Both houses will probably be completed in a couple of weeks.

Charles Furge of Fall River has been appointed engineer at Oak Grove Cemetery in that city, by the Board of Park Commissioners. He will succeed Dennis Sullivan.

Miss Florence A. Willard of Edgewood is making extensive alterations in her large house on Massachusetts avenue and this fall she will devote her forces to producing a higher grade of flowers. The front of the house has been rebuilt with cement pillars and walls and it will be adapted for ferns, orchids, lilies and gardenias exclusively.

A. H. Johnson of Shaw avenue, Edgewood, is building a new house, 20 by 100, for sweet peas. The King Construction Company has the contract. There is a tendency among several of the florists to increase their stock of peas this summer and the supply the coming season will undoubtedly be larger than heretofore. Last winter good peas were very scarce and some of the growers plan to profit by the experience.

The Central Falls City Council has passed a resolution recommending the purchase of the Fairbanks estate adjoining Jenks Park in that city to be used for park purposes. The Council committee on parks recommended that a sum of $3000 be set aside for the purchase of the property and the matter was referred to the Council committee on finance. This committee has held up the acquisition of the property by its reluctance in not reporting the measure back for final passage. There is a unanimous opinion that the acquirement of the property would make a valuable addition to the park.

CINCINNATI NOTES.

Avondale Floral Co. are rebuilding their conservatory.

Peter Weiland cut his first Golden Glow chrysanthemum last week.

Miss Jennie Adrian recently returned from an extended trip east.

Miss Mae Carroll is calling on her trade in the lower part of Kentucky this week.

An unknown and not a bit welcome personage appropriated Wm. Gardner's horse to his own use for several hours on Thursday evening of last week. It was found by an officer early the next morning on the outskirts of New Castle.

Cincinnati will send to Chicago on next Monday the largest delegation that has ever left this city for a S. A. F. convention. The bowling team will include C. E. Critchell, A. C. Heckman, Jr., Ed. Schumann, Al Horning and Ray Murphy.

Visitors: L. B. Brague, Hinsdale, Mass., and Martin Reukauf, Philadelphia.

SPEAKING OF PHILADELPHIA

With a full realization of the commercial importance of the annual S. A. F. convention and the great publicity value of HORTICULTURE'S yearly convention special, it has been the custom of our ever-alert Philadelphia representative, Mr. Watson, to keep the Quaker City and her enterprising growers and horticultural tradesmen fresh in the minds of the trade by contributing interesting notes of what is going on there each year at this time. Just at present when the society is returning to Chicago after the lapse of 25 years the Philadelphia notes that follow are especially appropriate, for it was at Philadelphia that Chicago was selected as the convention city a quarter century ago and Philadelphia was, perhaps, the largest contributor in members and enthusiasm to whatever success was achieved at that time.

LEO NIESSEN CO.: This firm has now been located in its new building at 12th and Race streets for one year, and they report a very gratifying increase in business. Their new building is probably the largest and finest in the country devoted to this business. Their equipment in refrigerating machinery and other devices, is of the very latest and no expense has been spared putting the best in the various departments. The success of the firm has been rapid, and has been won by fair dealing with friends and competitors alike. Few business concerns have won their way to the front rank with so few animosities. Arthur NiesSEN gives a good pointer as to one of the elements that have been important when he says: "Our aim in doing business has always been to have facilities a trifle ahead of the volume of business itself. That avoids crowding which, as a rule, entails lack of supervision. It takes facilities ahead of actual requirements all the time to assure the highest efficiency of service."

MICHELL TRIAL GROUNDS AND NURSERY AT ANDALUSIA: This establishment belonging to the Henry F. Michell Co. is officially known as Evergreen Seed Gardens. It is located by the New York branch of the Pennsylvania R. R. at Torresdale station. Has been in operation three years and during the past twelve months there have been erected two new greenhouses, each 100 feet long, making four greenhouses in all and two more are in contemplation for this fall. The firm, up to three years ago depended for their supplies of plants and nursery stock, on a multitude of growers. Their rapidly growing business, however, made this system more and more impossible—hence the establishment of their own grounds. There the proper strains, can be absolutely assured and much labor and expense saved in assembling orders calling for a large variety of items. Millions of vegetable plants are grown by the million for the store trade, and a great feature is also made of hardy perennials. Field grown roses occupy an important place. In gladioli the collection is extensive and very select. The gladiolus department is under the direct supervision of that well-known enthusiast in this flower, Maurice Fuld, and the trade in these has increased wonderfully. In peonies also, the general manager, Paul Richter, informs us, there has been a great awakening, especially for the fancy-named varieties. Cannas are grown by the acre and during the summer months are a fine advertisement for the place as they attract much attention from the thousands of people who pass daily in the cars. There are large blocks of perennial phlox, which like the canna is also a brilliant summer feature. Dahlias are looking very promising but only the earlier varieties are at present in bloom. Shrubs in all the popular varieties, and hedge plants such as berberis and California privet, are largely grown.

BERGER BROS.: One of the liveliest of the wholesale commission cut flower houses of Philadelphia. About a year ago they moved from 13th and Filbert St. to more commodious quarters at 140-142 North St., where their business has extended and flourished. Established 1904 by Harry and John Berger, sons of an old Germantown family long identified with the florist business, their early training in the growing end fitted them well for making a success in marketing. They have proved themselves good merchants as well as good makers of goods to merchant.

PENNOCK BROS.: The leading and oldest retail florists of Philadelphia. They have held this premier position for over fifty years—a distinction which is we think unique in the annals of the cut flower trade in America. The present partners are sons of the founders. Many of the great present florists of other cities (such for instance as Philip Breitmeyer of Detroit) had their early training here, so that the influence of this young-old house can be seen to have been particularly far-reaching and beneficent.

S. S. PENNOCK-MEEHAN CO.: Wholesale florists of Philadelphia, with their other two establishments, in New York and Washington, we think do the largest business of its kind in the country. The steadfast stand for strict justice and square dealing which has always been the keynote has had its moral effect on the business in general, and, although silent has been no less potent in influencing others to try to reach the highest level of sincerity. They have been and are now, a potent influence for good in the business—clean, brainy, progressive.

ROBERT CRAIG CO.: One might think that it was an impossibility to say anything new about the Craig place—which is so universally known

It is continuous uniform good service that counts. We give you the Best that is in us, in every transaction. If we fail, it's because we are human like you are, or conditions are beyond our control. Our average for "making good" however is topnotch.

We please most all that give us the opportunity.

The kind of services we render during a season, must appeal to you, and will surely merit your complete confidence.

As to our square dealings, and sincerity of purpose, we point with pardonable pride to our business record of the past ten years or more.

Results speak louder than words.

And we assure you there is no slackening in our push and energy. Our facilities are nearly perfect, the most modern in this country, and our supply of cut flowers larger and better each season. With these facts in view it seems imperative that you should investigate, or establish closer business relations with us.

as one of the foremost plant emporiums of the country—but the place, like its founder, Robert Craig, has a personality and youthfulness about it which is so refreshing that no matter how often you go there or how often you write about it there seems to be a rebirth in your outlook each succeeding year. The reason for this is probably because Robert and his boys stay young and in touch with the world. Confucius tells us that the only wise man and the only happy man is he who retains to the end the heart of a child. Robert Craig and his boys have that happy faculty to an eminent degree. It is therefore a delight to a visitor to take a run through their wonderful expanses of all that is latest and best in foliage plants and flowering plants for the holidays. I forget how many thousands of crotons, but they looked to me more like millions. There's no doubt about it, Craig is "the croton king." The croton with its highly colored foliage is simply indispensable to the up-to-date florist during fall and winter and Craig can be "caught with the goods" all the year round. Another great specialty here is the cyclamen which has been a Craig specialty for twenty years. I can remember back in the early days when he was ransacking the world for good cyclamen seed. And now, with selection and reselection and constant vigilance, we really have at Craig's a race of jewels. We even have here the Kleinheinz Giant White—the most magnificent thing in cyclamens I have ever seen and I date from the old David Allen glories at Boston (1884 to 1894), the first and one of the greatest of our American cyclamen growers.

"BILL JUNIOR."

Son of William P. Craig of Philadelphia.

H. BAYERSDORFER & CO.: No convention would be complete without the familiar exhibit of this long-established firm of dealers in florists' supplies. They have been leaders in that important line since the beginning and have done much to keep Philadelphia in the forefront. Their exhibit at Chicago will be one of the best they have ever shown and will certainly be a revelation to many florists who have never before visited a convention. One of the most striking novelties will be a line of artistic baskets finished with their new electric brush. This gives an effect unattainable by other means: graceful, artistic shadings that no hand brush could ever imitate. The electric brush is an aerating device and blows the colors instead of contact application. Another line that will create much interest is bisque ware in red, white, green and brown comprising statuettes of brownies, imps and other allegorical subjects. The Bayersdorfer line of gun metal vases is charming, effective and very artistic, the models followed being the best styles of Pompeian, Etruscan and Grecian. We are not easily enthused on the Christmas wreath proposition, but Bayersdorfer certainly has a new wonder in a green static foundation dotted with scarlet ammobium. The ammobium looks a little like a red immortelle, but is far more graceful. We could tell about other things, but we refrain and mention these only to whet your appetite for the great exhibit. Welcome to visitors at Chicago will be extended by Messrs. Sidney and I. M. Bayersdorfer, Martin Reukauf, and S. D. Green.

SWEET PEAS IN 1912

(Notes from Burpee's Trial Grounds at Fordhook, by George W. Kerr.)

This must certainly be termed a sweet pea year, at least so far as this section is concerned. We have had sweet peas in flower from early May and even in spite of the extreme heat and drought experienced during the early part of July, the vines are still flowering freely; this being, no doubt, due to the moisture and rather cool weather which has prevailed for the last two weeks or so.

The first varieties to flower with us were our new seedling early or winter-flowering Spencers. I have been working on this new type for the past few years, and now have them in practically all the colors found in the Spencer section. It may be of interest to sweet pea growers to know that the seed-bearing parents of these new early-flowering Spencers were the original winter-flowering Grandifloras, namely, Burpee's Earliest of All (the original Christmas Pink), Earliest White, Burpee's Re-Selected Earliest of All and Earliest-Sunbeams.

Had it not been that I had a slight knowledge of Mendel's laws, I am afraid that I would not yet have had this interesting, and I trust valuable, new race of sweet peas, as in the first generation the seedlings were anything but promising. However, the full history with dates, parentage, etc., will make a story of its own at some future time.

Coming back to the regular type of Spencers, among the many novelties tried this year (150 or more) there were certainly some distinct breaks in color and in fact more really good things than are generally introduced in one season; this being, doubtless, due to the increased interest now taken in this beautiful annual. Among those that were particularly striking might be mentioned Afterglow, Dorothy and Prince George (the color combinations in these varieties being quite distinct to anything hitherto seen in sweet peas), and with Charles Foster sent out by the same raiser last year, might be termed pastel shade varieties. I observe that the National Sweet Pea Society of England have classified them among the Fancies.

Edith Taylor was decidedly one of, if not the gem of this season's introductions. The flowers are of immense size, the color a distinct shade of rose. Frances Deal, color rosy heliotrope, quite distinct from all others of this shade. Barbara is somewhat in the way of Earl Spencer but a more pleasing shade of salmon and a much larger flower—Melba being practically synonymous. Both are strong growers and will certainly be wanted by those who like this color. The improved strain of Thomas Stevenson (this being the variety that was reserved for the silver medal by the English Society last year) is without exception a glorious variety, the color being a glowing orange scarlet. Of the true scarlet varieties—and there were quite a number of them introduced this season—Scarlet Emperor and Vermillion Brilliant (the North American Cup winner at last year's National Show) are in my opinion the best.

R. F. Felton seems to have done well everywhere. In our trials it was extremely striking. It is a thrifty grower, practically every stem carrying four immense flowers of a rich lavender color.

The variety Loyalty appeared under various names, one being Bertie Usher, another George Curzon. It is, however, a very striking flower, the color being white with distinct violet-blue flakes. In deep blues, Blue Jacket seems to lead the way, the color being practically synonymous with the Grandiflora variety Brilliant Blue.

May Campbell, one of last year's certificated varieties, is most distinct and very dainty, the ground color being cream with delicate markings of carmine.

I was specially struck with Lady Evelyn Eyre. Although it approaches some older varieties in coloring it seems to eclipse them in size. It is a beautiful pale pink slightly flushed salmon, somewhat in the way of Florence Morse Spencer. Hercules, a variety sent out in 1911, is certainly going to eclipse the original variety of this class—Countess Spencer; although of practically the same color it is such a decided advance on Countess in size and vigor of blooming, that I may safely predict that within two or three years it will completely supersede the one time favorite.

Other varieties which pleased me were Irish Belle, rosy lilac; Mrs. Cuthbertson, pink and white bi-color; Margaret Madison, pale blue; and Mrs. Warren, which might be described as a Helen Pierce Spencer.

There were quite a number of white self-novelties, but the only one which appears to be an advance on White Spencer is the new King White, which by the way was certificated this year by the English National Society. It is a pure white of great size and substance and quite eclipses anything I have seen in this way. It will not, however, I believe, be introduced until 1914.

Orchid, a novelty for next season, is of exceptional merit. It is a lovely shade of lilac mauve, an early and continuous bloomer, and practically every flower stem contains four flowers of immense size. This variety was certificated at the Sweet Pea Show held under the auspices of the Elberon Horticultural Society at Asbury Park in July.

Decorator has been certificate both in England and America this season, and is another novelty for 1912. The color is a distinct shade of rose, but under artificial light is a brilliant scarlet. It might be termed Rose du Barri in Spencer form.

We tried several bush varieties, English introductions of this season, but they were anything but promising, and no improvement on the bush varieties grown in America a few years ago but now discarded for sometime.

The above notes are written from memory, without having the opportunity to look over my notes; therefore, doubtless, many deserving varieties may be omitted.

East Orange, N. J.—Joseph A. Manda is adding three new houses to his equipment—one 18 x 78, one 14 x 125 and one 8 x 30. These are for orchid growing, as are all his original range, the only other plant under culture here being the aspidistra, which thrives under the bench where nothing else would prosper and helps to fill out the aim that not a single foot of available space be allowed to stand idle and unproductive.

On a recent visit to Mr. Manda we saw nearly 7,000 Cattleya Dowiana, the amount received in two importations. In a recent importation of Cattleya Gaskelliana, nine white flowered plants were found and they are beauties.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

Edward Reid left on his annual Southern trip July 24th. Expected home again about August 15th.

M. Rice & Co. promise the trade some startling innovations in the combining of colors in flower baskets, vases, pot covers, etc. They will show them for the first time at the S. A. F. convention.

Damage by hail storm Aug. 5 is reported by Robert Scott & Son, Sharon Hill; and Alfred M. Campbell, Collingdale. The amounts are not stated but we understand both are insured in the Hail Association.

The new Dickson roses for next spring are Mrs. Forde (a pink Cusin but larger) and Fire Flame. These seem to have a distinct place waiting for them in the rose world and further particulars are awaited with interest.

The Craig forces at Chicago convention will be strengthened this year by the addition of Cornelius Van, an experienced man, travelled, trained, a good grower, a good salesman, speaks the truth in five languages. What more do you want—when all that is backed up by Craig quality?

John Walsh has been appointed on the Pennsylvania territory as outside man for H. Bayersdorfer & Co. We wish to bespeak for the youngster cordial greetings and good orders from the retail florists of Pennsylvania. Mr. Walsh has been thoroughly trained inside the Bayersdorfer warehouses, and knows his business.

Duncan Macaw has made a good record for himself as foreman for the Robert Craig Co. He is not only one of the most popular men who have ever held that position but he bids fair to become a producing factor on his own account in time, as he has in conjunction with his brother, Thompson Macaw, built a range of glass at Norwood where he is growing carnations, gardenias and ferns for the wholesale market.

Charles Sim had an interesting experience on his return voyage from Europe (July 27-Aug. 5) by foregathering with Alexander Forbes, manager of the great house of Peter Henderson & Co. It turned out that the two of them were born and brought up within ten miles of each other in Scotland; both about same age; both came to America nearly together; and both have made a splendid success on this side in the same line of business; and neither of them ever heard of the other before. There must have been some swapping of yarns and well, wells, on the breezy poop-deck of that Atlantic liner.

Visitors: Phil Breitmeyer, Detroit, Mich.; Theodore Edwards, Bridgeton, N. J.; Frank H. Clement, Hempstead, N. Y.; Thos. Roland, Nahant, Mass.; Geo. F. Boucher, Rochester, N. Y.

THE PROPOSED W. R. SMITH MEMORIAL.

Washington is keenly interested in and will undoubtedly liberally support the project to establish at the capital some form of a memorial to William Robertson Smith, late superintendent of the National Botanic Garden, which is now being urged by the florists of the country through their national organization. It is evident from expressions that have been made since Mr. Smith's death that he was held in the highest esteem by the horticulturists of America, not merely for his personal qualities but for the importance of his work in promoting the study and care and love of the growths of nature. The suggestion of a memorial has come spontaneously, and there is evidence that it will be given practical form at the meeting of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists at Chicago the 20th of this month. Already tentative proposals have been made for the particular form the memorial is to take, one of which, it is gratifying to observe, is for a practical establishment that will be of continued benefit to a great number of people throughout the years to come. William R. Smith was so thoroughly identified with official Washington that it is necessarily recognized that any creation or memorial institution in his name should be located in this city. Nevertheless he had become a national quantity, and now that he has passed away the sentiment for perpetuating his memory is country wide. There can be no question of the success of this project, undertaken in such a spirit.—Washington Star.

CHICAGO NOTES.

V. A. Kohout and F. Merker opened a retail store at 1702 Chicago Ave., Aug. 10.

E. B. Washburn will leave shortly for California where he will make a home in the milder climate.

Mrs. Jas. G. Hancock and daughter are at Lake Geneva, Wis., getting a few days rest before the convention.

Fleischman Floral Co. is building a 32 foot ice box and putting in a machine for manufacturing their own ice.

Mr. and Mrs. August Poehlmann and Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Poehlmann and families have returned from Lauderdale Lake, Wis.

Frank Oechslin is building a bulb cellar 22 by 115 feet, with cement foundation and cinder walls. Aside from his regular bulbous stock, he is trying out many novelties this year, especially in tulips.

Mrs. C. L. Washburn entertained the ladies' introductory committee whose business it is to make arrangements for the L. S. A. F. at her home in Hinsdale, Friday. After the business was disposed of, an automobile ride and refreshments pleasantly occupied the remainder of the afternoon.

Visitors: C. B. Knickman, representing McHutchison & Co., New York. R. Karlstrom, representing W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.

Winchester, Mass.—Mrs. George Milne has again taken possession of the greenhouses at 44 Lincoln street, formerly conducted by her husband, the late George Milne.

SCALINE

This is the new oil and sulphur composition—a scalicide and fungicide combined—which supplies the crying demand from the East, West, North and South, for an insecticide that can be employed at all seasons of the year, for the destruction of the San Jose scale, Oyster Shell scale and all sap-sucking insects infesting trees, shrubbery and hardy stock.

It can be applied as safely in the growing as in the dormant season.

SCALINE is an excellent summer spray for the cottony scale, pine tree aphid, apple aphid, red spider, thrips and plant lice generally.

The sulphur contained in SCALINE makes it effective as a fungicide for various blights which affect hardy stock.

It is readily soluble in water, contains no sediment and can be sprayed through the finest spray nozzle.

$1.50 per gallon, 10 gallons $10.00, 50 gallons $37.50

THE RECOGNIZED STANDARD INSECTICIDE

It is a concentrated liquid, its chief constituents being essential oils and nicotine, mixing readily with water at various strengths, as directions on can.

APHINE destroys green, black, white fly, thrips, red spider, mealy bug, white and brown scale and can be applied to the most delicate foliage—in fact, it invigorates plant life. It is an excellent cleanser for decorative stock.

APHINE is not a cure all, but a specific remedy for plant life, and enjoys a reputation as the insecticide that does excel all.

$1.00 per quart, $2.50 per gallon.

APHINE and FUNGINE are equally effective in the greenhouse and in the garden.

Our products are universally endorsed by commercial and private growers of reputation. We possess hundreds of endorsements, many of them published in the past, from eminent entomologists and expert floriculturists, but we have reached the conclusion that there is only one convincing way for you to become familiar with the merits of these products; and that way is, test them out yourself. It will prove worth your while.

VERMINE will shortly be placed on the market by us. It is a soil sterilizer and a germicide for destroying cut, wire, eel and canker worms, grubs, sow bugs and root aphid. This product has been successfully used for a number of years. We have secured the formula, and are now conducting experiments to test to our own satisfaction just what it is capable of.

SQUITO-RID The Mosquito Repellent. Effective for man and beast wherever this pest may be—indoors or outdoors. Sent direct, express charges prepaid, at the following prices: Quarter pint 70c., half pint $1.00, pint $1.50.

FUNGINE

THE FUNGICIDE OF MUCH MERIT

Its principal ingredient is sulphur in solution, so treated that it can be applied to the tender foliage without injurious effect. Used as a spraying material mixed with water.

FUNGINE is an infallible remedy for mildew, rust, wilt, spot and bench fungi affecting flowers, fruits and vegetables. It is used with much success by rose, carnation and chrysanthemum growers.

It is effective where Bordeaux mixture and lime and sulphur fail, and unlike those preparations, it does not stain the foliage but cleanses it.

KROESCHELL JUMBO BOILER No. 18

Kroeschell's largest Hot Water Boiler, No. 18, will heat 106,800 sq. ft. of glass for carnations, at zero.

This boiler will carry 61,410 lineal ft. of 1 1/4-inch pipe, or 11 2-3 miles of 1 1/4-inch pipe IN ADDITION TO THE MAINS.

The weight of this giant is 30,000 pounds.

The dimensions are: Length 20 feet, 6 inches; width, 84 inches; height, 66 inches. Has: 5 8-inch flows; 6 8-inch returns.

KROESCHELL BOILER DURABLE

"In 1894 we bought one of your No. 12 boilers to take the place of four smaller boilers of another make. Your boiler has done the entire work to the highest satisfaction, SAVING LABOR and about ONE THIRD OF THE FUEL we used to burn before. We had that boiler up to 1906, that is 12 years, having no repairs on it whatever, except one set of flues we put in in 1900. Last fall we installed one of your No. 14 boilers, having enlarged our plant. It takes care of 35,000 sq. ft. of glass very easy. When firing we keep the ash door open only about one inch. We think your No. 14 boiler could carry 40,000 sq. ft. of glass.

Here Is One Way To Do It

A roofed over walk about four feet long connects the work room and the residence. It is really entirely separate, yet when so connected, is reachable in practically any kind of weather. Many a small house so started has led to larger ones, simply because of the genuine personal pleasure it made so easily possible for the owner. There is a thought in that for you gardeners. But the really big thought is the U-Bar. Be sure your house is going to be the U-Bar and not simply a curved eave house that looks something like it. Send for catalog.

SEEING how attractive and practical this arrangement is, do you wonder why THE LUTTON PATENT CURVED EAVE method has changed Greenhouse Construction during the past few years? The result has been the most successful house that can be produced; the other concerns who had been producing the same antiquated buildings for years had to simply destroy their patterns as well as their catalogues and start anew. Just ask some of our imitators to show you some of their curved eave houses built before THE LUTTON PATENT was granted; you will then be convinced that you had better consult with me.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Cyclamen for Next Year

In order to have fine strong plants of this fine winter bloomer, seeds should be sown any time from now up to the middle of September. Do not be afraid to buy a good strain, even if they do cost a little more, for they will pay you in the end. To have this seed germinate well give them a proper mixture to grow in. They will come up fine in a compost of fibrous loam and leaf mold in equal parts, and enough of sand to make it gritty and porous, with good drainage of crocks. Fill your pans within half an inch of the top with very finely sifted compost, which should be about half an inch deep upon the other mixture. Scatter the seed evenly over the surface and press it down moderately firm. Cover with about a fourth of an inch of the fine mixture and place in a warm house. All pans should be covered with a pane of glass and kept well shaded until seeds show signs of germination, when they should have full light. See that they are kept nice and moist by sprayings whenever they may require it.

Begonia Lorraine

We are now coming to a season when these plants make their main growth, and they must not be neglected in any way from this out. They will require considerable attention in the way of staking and tying up; use only enough stakes to keep them up neatly and in such a way as to be inconspicuous as possible. Go over the plants often and give them room to spread and grow. They do better when set upon inverted pots; this allows them a better circulation of air and light and produces nice foliage from the pot up. Do not keep the house too deeply shaded, as they like plenty of indirect light from this out. Your earliest batch that are well established with plenty of roots should receive some liquid manure every week. Give great care as to watering so as to keep them in an even state of moisture, for a whole lot depends upon it. Keep the flowers picked as yet because they will be more salable from November until after Christmas.

Lilium Candidum

These bulbs will be arriving now. Procure bulbs that are grown in the north of France, as these have better foliage with flowers of broader petals, and with a stem that carries all the way from 8 to 12 flowers. Plant these bulbs as soon as you get them, as you will find both leaf and root growth have already begun. I think you will find 8 and 10-inch pots the best, using three and five bulbs to a pot. Of course a good many grow them in a six-inch pot. Prepare a good rich compost—say three parts of turfy loam and one part of well-decayed manure, and free drainage. When they are potted give them thorough soaking and then wait until they are tolerably dry before giving any more. You can plunge these pots anywhere outside until the severity of the frost has firmed the soil in the pots, when they should be placed in some cold frame and given slight protection so the pots will not break.

Orchids

Give your phalaenopsis a moist and genial temperature by damping down and closing down the house early. Now that the nights begin to get cooler it will be advisable to have a little fire heat from this out, to keep the temperature from 65 to 70 degrees during the night. Where the shading is quite heavy it will be well to remove some of it, as they only need just enough to keep off the direct rays of the sun. Such species as Phalaenopsis grandiflora, P. Schilleriana, P. Aphrodite, etc., that will soon be showing their flower spikes, should be carefully looked over every day so they can be kept in the right degree of moisture at the roots, and when watering be sure that you wet the whole mass thoroughly. All dendrobiums should be carefully watched and those that have finished up their growth should be removed to a more airy situation, but avoid a too rapid drying off, as this should be gradually done. This treatment is especially applicable to Dendrobium nobile, D. Wardianum, and D. Crassinode, which delight in a long rest, where they can have a cool temperature and plenty of ventilation with full sun. Such treatment greatly assists the plants in acquiring a strong constitution, which always means a free flowering later on.

Propagation

Now is the time, before we have any heavy frost, to put in a batch of cuttings of bedding plants, such as ageratum, alternanthera, double alyssum, bedding begonias, coleus, heliotropes, double lobelias, petunias, salvias, verbenas, etc. These can be put in sand in the propagating house, or in a bench and kept moist and shaded until they root. You can also lift a good number of these plants and treat as stock plants, which later on will give quantities of fine cuttings. Where large quantities of bedding plants are grown one should use every means now of increasing his stock.

Potting Evergreens

From now and up to the middle of September is the best time for the successful potting of evergreens. All evergreens used for decorative purposes should be lifted now and potted into pots or tubs, just large enough to hold them comfortably. Any good rich soil will do. See that they have plenty of drainage and are potted firmly. Stand them in some sheltered place where they can have some shade until they get well established. Keep the soil in a nice moist condition by giving them water as needed, and they should also have frequent syringings during the day, as they will establish themselves more quickly. Where you have a lot of these evergreens in pots or tubs all summer, now is a good time to remove the old soil down to the active roots and replace with some soil and manure in equal parts.

Mr. Farrell's next Notes will be on the following: Summer Bulbous Plants; Feeding Chrysanthemums; Housing Decorative Plants; Lifting Berried Solanums; Perennial Border; Stevias.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

George H. Penson

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Penson. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Making and Spawning a Mushroom Bed

Having got sufficient manure in the right condition, proceed by first mixing into it a little soil which has passed through a $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch sieve. This will help to keep the temperature more even. The bed itself must be firm and requires not a little labor to make it so. Pounding, ramming or treading it down are all the same—get it firm by whatever means. The benches should be filled to within three inches of the top, this allows of two inches of “casing” soil, and a rim should the last resort of watering be brought into practice at any later date. The day following that of making it up, the bed should commence to heat and continue to increase for about ten days, probably registering 100 or 110 before any recession takes place. When this point is reached a careful watch should be kept to enable spawning to be done at a right temperature. Individual growers have their own ideas as to what the temperature should be. The safest and best with us is 85° to 80°. The bricks of spawn should be broken up into pieces about the size of a hen's egg before inserting. Place them about ten inches apart each way, three inches below the surface, making the manure firm on top of them. The bed will be best left without the casing of soil for five or six days, when probably the heat will have subsided 8 or 10 degrees. The soil for the casing should be clean loam which has been passed through a $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch mesh sieve. Make this level and firm with a piece of board. Keep the cellar temperature as near 55° as possible and spray around the walls, etc., to keep the atmosphere moist and prevent rapid drying out of the bed.

Winter Cucumbers

A few winter cucumbers are an acquisition to any place and are grown easily. As with other stuff, if a small house can be devoted to them they will show their appreciation. If this is not possible they will thrive in a house having a moist atmosphere and a mean night temperature of 70°. Seeds sown now will come in at an acceptable time. If a house is to be given up to them entirely, make another sowing a few weeks later. Sow the seeds singly in well-drained three-inch pots, filled lightly with fine soil and place in a humid temperature of 70° to 75°. It is not necessary to repot these at all; they will plant right out on the bed as soon as they are furnished with sufficient roots. Cucumbers are the reverse of melons in the fact that they do not like the soil made hard as a melon does. The bottom of the bench can be covered with a sod, after which only sufficient soil should be given to cover the balls of the plants, the full complement to be added by successive top dressings. Let the soil be composed of three parts loam, one of leaf soil and one of horse manure, with a little sand. Shade the plants for a few days after planting, but inure them to the sun as soon as they will stand it. Keep the house well moist and close up early enough to run the temperature up to 90° to 95°.

Cauliflowers

Cauliflowers are always acceptable and any young plants on hand now which can be transferred to a deep bench will be welcome later on when green vegetables are scarce. Cauliflowers do not want to come in direct contact with a quantity of manure; better to enrich the soil earlier in the season. These are similar subjects to tomatoes inasmuch as they want to be kept going right on without the least check. Once stunted in small pots the injury is beyond recall. Throughout the entire growing season a cauliflower relishes plenty of water at the root. To get them dried out means that a large percentage will “button in” irrespective of all other liberal treatment meted out to them afterwards. Grow them in a night temperature of 50°, with the usual advance by day.

Parsley

This vegetable is always being asked for from the kitchen at all seasons and provision must be made to have it when nature outside the greenhouse is sleeping. Parsley will transplant from a row in the garden or a special sowing can be made either right on the benches or in flats. It is essential that young stock should be raised for the winter work. A late sowing can be made in the garden and when the weather breaks part can be lifted to the benches and the remainder protected from the early frosts. When transplanting reduce the top growth considerably. Parsley does not relish too much heat or moisture; rather aim at a cool buoyant atmosphere—say 50° to 55° at night. The rows can be spaced about 9 inches apart and run from north to south. Keep the surface soil well cultivated at all times.

Mr. Penson's next notes will be on the following: Christmas Melons; Position of Pipes in a Vinery

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Beauties in Solid Beds

No matter how evenly and carefully the drainage in solid beds is put in, they will not dry out as evenly as raised benches, and that is the only thing we have against them. If other roses are to be grown then it does not matter so much for they are not so particular as an American Beauty. In watering solid beds from now on be very careful not to get them too wet in places. Watch the soil and wherever it does not dry out well apply less water. Dust a little lime in such places once in a while; this will help keep the soil sweet and at the same time harden the plants so they will be less likely to contract some of the diseases a greenhouse rose is subject to. The worst to contend with is blackspot. This cannot be cured, but can be made to disappear if careful attention is given to the plants and a few simple rules followed as suggested several different times through these columns.

Another thing to remember with solid benches is when applying mulch, do not use very much. Where it can be done apply only a very little and as soon as it begins to get used up apply some more. Of course where houses have very narrow walks this is not always possible but it certainly pays not to apply too much. Another thing is applying feed and lime, etc., in a raised bench. If too much is applied it can always be "washed out" as we say. Not so with solid benches. Whatever is put on them or into them usually stays there, so you can easily see the necessity of being careful.

The Boilers Again

Have you overhauled all your boilers? If not, why not? It is high time all boilers were in perfect running order. Do not wait until the last minute to make repairs. The firms engaged in selling or manufacturing boilers will be very busy with material for newly built greenhouses and your order may not be able to receive immediate attention and any grower, even though he himself was never in such a "fix" can well imagine what it means to have the houses running cold and the boilers are not in repair to give any kind of a service. And, as is needless to say, if roses receive any severe check in the fall they will not get over it in a hurry.

Sheep Manure

This must not be used on the benches just yet for, if good at all, it contains quite some nitrogen and too much nitrogen is not wanted for the roses as early in the fall as now. We used pure nitrate of soda toward spring and in winter, but we would never recommend it to any one, for a person using nitrate of soda wants to know just what he is about or disastrous results may follow.

Poultry Manure

Usually we gather up just as much of this as we possibly can and then buy some more. We mix it into the liquid manure in winter and spring, but, like nitrate, it must be used sparingly and the grower must know when to apply it. Never apply strong feed when a large crop is beginning to show color. The plants do not need it then. The proper time to apply hen manure, etc., is when the plants are just beginning to break or have already broken. By applying strong feed at that time the stems will be much longer than if no feed is given. Do not, however, commence feeding your plants this way at this time of the year. They do not need it, for they are not rooted well enough to make proper use of it, and will become soft and weak if given feed like that now.

Mildew

As often as this has been discussed in these columns, we think it wise to say a few words again, with the cool nights here with us. Do not make the mistake so commonly made and shut the ventilators down tight as soon as the temperature begins to drop. Give the plants air and plenty of it and if they need heat give it to them. The houses should never go below 64 degrees at night. This applies to Beauties especially, for they are very easily checked and growers who handle Beauties know what a check in their growth means.

By saying that houses should not go below 64 degrees at night we mean at this time of the year only, for with the hot days the cool nights would not do the plants any good; 54 degrees is no temperature for Beauties and they will show their dislike, too. Should your plants contract a little mildew dust a little sulphur over the plants or spray with Fungine. The latter can also be used as a preventive by spraying daily during the very bad spells of weather and can be used a little weaker than what is recommended. Where steam is to be had the simplest way is to apply a little sulphur to the steam pipe, but be careful not to apply too much for sulphur can kill the foliage much quicker than mildew can; so be careful!

Cleaning Up

Now that the houses are all planted and started, clean up all those little heaps of dirt and rubbish that may have accumulated here and there. Do not let these little heaps go, for they will get larger and larger and be of no credit to the place. Save any broken glass that will cut for broken hot bed sash and do away with the rest. The best way is to bury it around or under some new building now being put up. It may be of benefit there for mice have little use for broken glass and will not bother digging and tunneling around buildings where broken glass happens to be in the soil. Burn whatever is burnable out of all the rubbish. Some of this may be of use when starting a fire in the boilers, so do not be in too much of a hurry to burn it all in an empty lot where no benefit will be derived from the heat.

President Vincent's message

President Vincent's message to the S. A. F. which we print in full in this issue strikes us as a well-considered and patriotic document—the honest convictions of a conscientious, industrious official and in this respect it will rank well with the convention addresses of his predecessors. While we must differ with Mr. Vincent as to the wisdom of some of his recommendations yet we are satisfied that he advocates them in all sincerity of purpose for the Society's welfare. This at least we can all agree upon. It is a satisfaction to see that the society is in full accord with the sentiment we have repeatedly expressed and we feel sure that the action of the S. A. F. in adhering to conservative principles will in due time prove to have been wisely taken.

Our Canadian neighbors

We much regretted our inability to devote more space in our issue of last week to the account of the meeting of the Canadian Horticultural Association at Montreal. The proceedings were full of animation and snappy debates on cultural processes and business practices somewhat on the order of the earlier meetings of the S. A. F. Much cordiality towards the S. A. F. was manifested and the subject of "closer relations" between the two organizations might with good reasons be given consideration on both sides of the "line." An amalgamation would hardly be possible even if desirable, but something in the way of an exchange of delegates, with certain voting privileges at the respective conventions, might result in useful harmonious action on matters of mutual interest.

A good parcels post bill

On July 27, Hon. William Sulzer introduced in the House of Representatives, Bill No. 26006, "to reduce postage rates, improve the postal service, and increase postal revenues." It provides for a parcels post worthy of the name and does not undertake to rob the seedsmen and others who publish catalogues and other literature of like educational character. So different is it from the other parcels post schemes which have been under consideration that one cannot help conjecturing as to whether the express companies are not at the bottom of some of them. With one slight modification suggested by Chairman Burpee Mr. Sulzer's bill meets the approval of the committee on postal laws of the American Seed Trade Association. Why not write to your congressman and ask him to help put it through?

As to Renaming

The recent notes that have appeared in HORTICULTURE about the evils of renaming plants are pertinent to one of the great troubles of present-day gardening. The practice of raisers and introducers of sending out the same plant under different names cannot be too strongly condemned, but this is a minor matter, easily discovered and rectified, and the one at fault can be charged with it.

There is, however, another phase of renaming that is far more difficult to deal with. We will take as an example the old Spiraea opulifolia; this has been given four different generic names by different authorities at the times named, and today the poor cultivator is at a loss to know which is right. Anyone would admit that the plant is not a Spiraea when examining the bladder-like seed capsule, and while this might have passed in 1753 and has lived in our memories until now, it is a curious fact that among botanists, there are three other authorities who have dealt with this shrub differently as will be seen below.

Spiraea opulifolia—Linnaeus, Sp. Pl. 1753.

Physocarpus opulifolius Maximowicz. 1836, recognized by Coulter and Bailey.

Neillia opulifolia, Brewer & Watson Bot. Cal. 1876. (Bentham & Hooker.)

Opulaster opulifolius, Kuntze, Rev. Gen. Plant. 1891. (Britton & Brown.)

Other similar examples might be cited were there time, but the question now is, what is the proper name for this much-named shrub?

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS AND ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS

A Well Attended Convention and Most Important Exhibition in Society's History

Minneapolis, Minn., Next Meeting Place

Officers Elected

PRESIDENT—J. K. M. L. FARQUHAR, Boston, Mass.

SECRETARY—JOHN YOUNG, New York, N. Y.

TREASURER—WILLIAM F. KASTING, Buffalo, N. Y.

The convention was called to order at 11 A. M., Tuesday, August 20, by Vice-President August Poehlmann of Chicago. On the platform were the officers, several ex-presidents of the Society and Hon. John B. Payne representing the park systems and the people of Chicago. After a few brief and very cordial words of welcome by Mr. Poehlmann on behalf of the Chicago florists, Judge Payne voiced a royal welcome. He told his audience that they represented the cream of civilization and called attention to the tremendous growth of the outdoor sentiment all over America, eliciting enthusiastic applause.

Judge Vesey, who responded on behalf of the Society, asserted that the S. A. F. contains in its membership the finest type of American citizenship and on behalf of the visitors gracefully accepted the courtesies offered and the opportunities for education and enjoyment that had been so lavishly provided.

The hall was well decorated with palms and Southern smilax. The attendance at the opening session was disappointingly small, due to the fact that visitors were lined up to register and obtain their badges, tickets, etc., in the secretary's department down stairs and the late arrival of several trains, thus emphasizing the folly of calling a convention opening session in the forenoon, and the weather was exceedingly hot and sultry.

President Vincent was next introduced and proceeded to read his annual address, which was received with approving applause.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

Ladies and Gentlemen, Members of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists:

Your generous welcome has made this day the proudest in my life, and I thank you for your reception from the depth of my heart. Strange as it may seem, for the reason that no florists' club has been more active than yours in the affairs of our national society, this is the first meeting of the S. A. F. and O. H. in this great city of Chicago since the Society's organization meeting in 1884 and its annual meeting in 1887. In all the years which have passed since then no annual meetings have been held here. At the time of the great World's Fair, held here in 1893, it was thought inadvisable to hold the convention in Chicago. It was, therefore, held in your annex, the city of St. Louis, although, after that meeting, there was one week devoted to a horticultural conference in this city. Later, at the time of the Milwaukee Convention, our members were lavishly entertained in Chicago on the closing day of the meeting. At various other times we have passed through your city en route to our annual meeting tryst, and at such times we have been well and heartily received.

There is no city in the United States to which we can come with greater hope of a successful meeting than this, for your inhabitants claim your city to be the center of commerce, of population and of civilization. Their claim is well put and we agree with them.

We feel that our stay in this city is going to be one of wonderful interest and that our sessions will be marked by progress of a notable character.

For the recommendations I am about to make, I invite your earnest consideration. Some of them may, and probably will, meet with opposition, but generally through opposition only is a principle best worked out. My desire is that when we leave Chicago it will be with the knowledge that something tangible has been done for the future welfare of the Society of which we are all so proud to be members. Let us not indulge in dreams, but in action.

On behalf of all our members I thank you for the hearty welcome received this day.

The S. A. F. Executive Board.

In the past history of the Society, its executive board, after mature deliberation, has presented plans for the benefit of the Society which have been ruthlessly torn to pieces in general meeting; in some instances the membership has been in the right; but in most cases the officers have been defeated in their efforts in the direction of betterment for the Society through the fact that the members who influenced the results of the debate had not had opportunity to consider the subject from all its angles, and, therefore, from lack of this consideration were inimical to the proposed changes, and so sought to defeat them. It would be but a slight expense to the Society to print and immediately place in the hands of each individual member the full text of the work of the executive board at its meetings. Members would then be in prior possession of the reasons why certain policies had been advocated and would come to a convention properly prepared and fully informed on the subject, ready to discuss and vote aye or nay, according to their convictions. I urge that in the matter of the executive board meetings more light be given each individual member.

The Office of the Secretary.

The secretary of the Society should devote his entire time to its business, and his compensation should be such as would justify the employment of the best man obtainable. I affirm that the appointment of a secretary should be absolutely controlled by the board of directors of this Society. There has been much discussion on this subject hitherto, but my contention is that no president and board of directors of a large business house, corporation or bank, would care to run their institution if its acting secretary was under the control of the stockholders, and so not directly responsible to himself and the board. While I do not contend that the S. A. F. is a business proposition only and solely, it cannot be gainsaid that there is more of business practice in its workings than not. In other words, while our Society is working both for the elevation of its members and the benefit of the people of the country at large, it is in great measure controlled by its business interests. The work to be accomplished by our Society in the future will be due as much to its secretary as to its president or its board of directors, and the only men qualified to judge as to the value of the secretary to the Society are those with whom he comes in direct contact, namely, its board of directors. A secretary whose time is to be given entirely to the affairs of the Society can well earn a living by traveling through the country talking up the S. A. F. and obtaining members if, together with the National Flower Show, we present other salient benefits to be derived therefrom—which we can well do—such as a year book to be issued by the Society, a permanent home, a school of horticulture wherein your sons or any worthy young men can be educated; all these and other features will prove attractive in leading to an enlarged membership, the limit of which should be placed at not less than 3000.

Annual Dues and Membership.

Although membership in this Society is probably worth more today than when it was originated, I do not believe that either the membership fee or the life membership fee should be increased, not, at least, until we have more inducement to offer prospective members. The most important point I have to make is in regard to regulation of membership. I urge that this Society pass a rule whereby new members proposed must have the endorsement of the vice-presidents of their respective States or of their florists' clubs, or of two members of the S. A. F. in good standing, before their application is granted by the Society; this to be through its secretary or a membership committee.

Increase in Membership.

Much has been said with regard to increasing our membership, but actually little has been done toward that end. Several of our members have distinguished themselves by bringing in many new members, but, taken as a whole, the majority have made no great effort to influence others to join with us. One need not seek far to ascertain the reasons for this passive condition. With all that has been said and done in the matter, the fact remains that until quite recently our Society held one big meeting once a year, and when that meeting adjourned the Society was practically dead for the next eleven months and three weeks. The institution of the biennial National Flower Show has already worked considerable change in this apathetic condition, and a few further live moves in the right direction on the part of our Society will materially alter the condition of indifference to the S. A. F. prevailing among the trade at large. When we make membership sufficiently attractive to the pocketbooks of our fellow florists, we shall obtain the adhesion, not spasmodically at each city visited as has been the case in past years, but for keeps, just as a live trade paper holds its circulation.

Annual Convention Meeting Date.

The subject of holding our annual conventions at the same time as the Spring Flower Show created a lively debate at our meeting in Baltimore last August, and those in favor of holding the convention in the month of August had the better of the argument. Inasmuch as it is absolutely impossible to do convention work whilst a great flower show is in progress, this fact being fully demonstrated at our last National Flower Show held in Boston, when it was found impractical to bring our members together for a business session, although they were present in great force all through the week, it would seem just as well that this Society continue its August meetings as heretofore.

Affiliation of Horticultural Societies.

It is useless to further attempt to disguise facts. The Society in its early days committed its first tactical error in not assuming the paternity of the Florists' Hail Association, and it has gone on from year to year disregarding the requirements of its specialists in all lines until today we have strong societies which, in the value of their work and the influence they wield, are nearly at par with the work done by the so-called parent body, the S. A. F. and O. H. More discussion has been offered on the matter of closer relationship than possibly on any other subject, at our various meetings for the past ten years or so; yet, with it all, not one step in advance has been made to clear the situation or bring about the desired ends until the present year. Prospects are now brighter and, if a good working committee can be gotten together during this convention, results may follow. There is no doubt in my mind but that the most active of our societies will continue each under its own autonomy. Societies such as the Carnation, the Rose, the Gladiolus, the Sweet Pea, even the Peony, will each continue on its way, fixing their several policies to suit the needs of the hour and enlarging their organizations and scope as the years go by. In great part the men who are prominent in these societies are the men who are prominent in the S. A. F. and O. H., and it must be said of these men that they are just as loyal to the old S. A. F. as they are to the separate societies in which they take so active an interest. It is for the reasons aforesaid that every plan of affiliation which has heretofore been brought forward has been laid on the table. There must, however, be some common ground on which these societies can come together in order to form that strong, compact body of horticultural interests which could produce far more good for the business than is possible through the efforts of isolated groups and separate organizations. I ask the most thorough consideration of the plans which will be presented on this floor with that object in view, the result of a "get together" meeting held in this city.

With regard to the affiliation of the purely local horticultural societies throughout the country, we think the way should be made easy whereby these may become affiliated with our Society. It is for this convention to decide as to whether it would be in opposition to an attempt to form an amateur section of the S. A. F.; our constitution and by-laws, and our national charter make provision for the admission of all interested in horticulture. I ask the privilege of appointing a committee to formulate plans to that effect, said committee to report to this convention in 1913. The admission of local horticultural societies should place no additional burden on the funds of this Society, while much mutual benefit would result. The Society itself would become better known locally throughout the country, while the amateur societies represented could have the assistance and advice of the Society's officers whenever they were required. The S. A. F. could also afford to contribute silver and bronze medals to the various shows conducted by the affiliated amateur societies, could provide a uniform constitution and by-laws, scale for point judging, and rules for show handling among those affiliated. A feature of the affiliation should be that officials or members of the S. A. F. be in official evidence at all exhibitions of the societies, an easy detail to provide for on account of our universal membership.

With regard to the florists' clubs throughout the country, the question of the affiliation of these is the next most important to that of the affiliation of the various larger societies mentioned. Can we not offer representation to these clubs on a basis that would be satisfactory to both contracting parties? The individual florist clubs form the backbone of the S. A. F. and deserve better recognition. The same committee appointed to take up the affiliation of the local horticultural societies could also consider this proposition.

How to Bring About Affiliation.

Some of the lines on which our societies might be brought together and affiliated with the S. A. F. and O. H. are as follows:

Liberty to join or resign—in effect state sovereignty and home rule.

Affiliation along co-operative lines.

Reason for affiliation being that there is strength in unity.

Each society to be represented in the S. A. F. directorate.

S. A. F. to exercise the functions of our Federal Government.

In the publication of an annual, each affiliated society could pay its proportionate expense of publication, taking as well a certain proportion of the copies printed.

Attendance at Meetings.

We most certainly need a reform in this direction. It is scant courtesy to ask a gentleman to prepare a paper on some special feature of interest and then have him lecture to a beggarly array of benches. If the members will not remain in session to hear the essays, we should eliminate them from our programs, and confine ourselves entirely to the matters of business which are presented for our consideration. In fact, it has often occurred to me that while in former days, when there were no trade journals to rely upon, the presentation of essays was most advisable; in these days such papers are not so necessary as a part of our meetings, unless they be connected with some special feature of the business which calls for elucidation or discussion. Subjects selected should be confined to those which appeal to the entire membership, for a Carnation grower does not care to listen to a paper on Roses, a Rose grower to one on general gardening principles, and so on. Papers on cultural topics can well be confined to the societies which represent one phase of our business.

The Convention Exhibition.

Here we can report satisfactory progress. The recent action of the executive committee, which has brought about the long advocated change to the effect that the receipts of the exhibition belong to the Society, has met with unqualified success. The further supervision of the exhibitions by the Society's secretary is another step in the right direction. The surplus receipts from this and other sources could well go toward the maintenance of our required headquarters. On account of the value of these exhibitions to the trade at large it does seem advisable that our conventions should be held in cities of large population. The trade exhibition is of more interest to the average attendant than any other feature of our convention, and its development should be encouraged by every means in our power.

Tariff and Legislative Committee.

The affiliation of all horticultural societies and florists' club would go far toward strengthening the hands of the gentlemen composing that committee, inasmuch as in numbers there is strength. The work this committee is called upon to handle is mainly of a nature which brings it into contention with great interests, such as the railroads, the express companies, the various National and State legislative bodies, as also the Interstate Commission. From this it will readily be seen that when this committee succeeds in winning a decision on a contested case or in obtaining a concession, it is doing great work, not alone for the Society, but for the trade at large.

Society Work Between Conventions.

We should make a strong effort to check the deadness which so often characterizes this Society between its annual meetings. A real, live Society should have something doing all the time. It should not be like the annual circus which comes to town, pitches its tent, performs for a week and then fades away to remain unheard of and unnoticed for a year to come.

Affiliation of societies, committees working on live issues, the National Flower Show and a progressive secretary always on his mettle and on the move for betterment of the Society, will help greatly to remove an apathetic condition which has too often been directed against us in reproach.

Horticulture Flourishing.

For years past our successive presidents have felt called upon to make remarks upon the improvement of floricultural conditions, and I find myself joining in this acclaim with my predecessors, for certainly the development of our product has kept pace with that of all other arts and sciences which tend toward the betterment of the condition of the people of our common country. Within the past ten years there has been a wonderful "back to the land" movement on the part of our wealthy men. Consequently great amounts of money have been spent in the embellishment of estates; this movement has been in no way confined to that class, for we find that the desire is becoming universal on the part of all who own their homes to make their grounds beautiful. Civic improvement is the order of the day everywhere. The demand for the best in horticulture is increasing accordingly. As this added knowledge of plant life is gained it becomes necessary that we keep progressing, furnishing not only better but more diversified stock, meeting present wants yet encouraging the call for more expensive stock.

Our State and National Experiment Stations.

There are valuable educational factors in the working out of experiments in regard to insect pests, diseases of plants, and in solving matters which could not be handled by the general horticulturists. As a trade, we are in a position to obtain bulletins, State and Federal, practically free of cost, and in fact any information on any reasonable subject when it is asked for of the proper authorities. In the proposed "Annual" could be incorporated a list of the experiment stations and the names of the officers to whom to refer for guidance on the various subjects of insect pests, diseases, etc. The Society and its members should endeavor to aid the experiment stations in every way in their power, in order that their managements may be provided with sufficient funds that they may be in no way restricted in their researches for practical knowledge. Efforts should also be made to interest the stations in horticultural studies as well as in studies purely agricultural, to which latter they mostly incline.

Permanent Headquarters for the S. A. F.

The national charter granted our S. A. F. and O. H., and signed by President McKinley, requires that we maintain permanent headquarters in the city of Washington. We have dodged action on this subject from year to year. It is time that we took it up, got down to business, and instituted our home in that city, even though its start be on a most humble scale. Let us begin by making a beginning. We want a home there for our Society. With this we should institute a practical school of horticulture for our children and a permanent trial ground for our members. If this convention will take the necessary preliminary steps to establish such a home, this desirable institution can be brought about. What we will, we can do. The permanent headquarters should contain the offices of the secretary of the S. A. F.; our executive board meetings can be held there; it could be made the rallying point of horticulturists; and, in fact, the institution can be so handled as to create an added attraction to that Mecca of America—the city of Washington. Possessing such an institution, the Society would take on additional vigor; it would add to its name and to its reputation, and would then be in a position to assert itself and its influence. There are many things this Society should do, but none more important. If this matter is placed in the hands of an able committee at this present convention, I have no doubt that it will find ways and means to make an early start.

Publicity.

To still further advance the cause of horticulture, the subject of florists' publicity is expected to be brought before this meeting. We have many important subjects before us, none much more important than this. I simply allude to the subject in order that not one of you be absent when the matter is brought up for discussion. It is one which appeals to your pocket-books in that it is desired to plan ways and means whereby a much greater interest in our business may be stimulated, to the end that a still greater volume of business may be transacted. It is proposed to do this through co-operation, and I sincerely trust that a practical method of working out this idea will be evolved. For instance, if through publicity we could influence every man on the street to wear a boutonniere and every lady a corsage boutonnet, can any one figure just how many cut flowers would be required daily for this one particular custom?

Overhead Costs.

Here is a subject which must appeal to us all. How many of our members have put into practice a system whereby they can tell, weekly or monthly, just what their overhead expenses amount to in actual money? There is no point more vital to success in any business than the possession of this knowledge. Houses which understand fully their overhead costs seldom go into bankruptcy; on the other hand, they will generally be found among the more prosperous of our country's establishments. By overhead costs I refer to the thousand and one expenses of a business which, being indirect, are all too often lost sight of when making a price. These overhead expenses comprise every detail of cost which is responsible for the ability to produce your goods but which do not appear as direct expenses; for instance, rent, coal, original cost of building and ordinary wear and tear on same, the keeping up of horses and wagons or automobiles, advertising, taxes and insurance, necessary travel, the salaries paid to all non-producers and petty expenses. In clearer words, overhead expenses consist of the non-productive factors in a business, all of which, however, have to be reckoned with and provided for in making a scale of charges for your product.

I would like to see a committee appointed on overhead costs, to be directed to present a report at the 1913 convention, with such figures and data as they could bring to bear on this progressive subject. When a man in business has the certainty that the price at which he is selling his stock includes all the indirect charges incidental to its production, he can feel that his business is being run at a profit, but with these factors unknown, it must ever be a case of "hit or miss." With the establishment of the cost system, we will soon be made acquainted with those stocks we are handling on which we are making a profit and those on which we do not make a profit, and as the tendency of modern business is to throw out everything on which it is impossible to make money, this knowledge, once fixed, will certainly be of untold value to all of us who lack that knowledge, and who set a price on their goods, not because they know it will pay them, but because of the fact that others are selling the same stock at an approximate price.

This committee, if agreed upon, should have an appropriation of $100 for advice from experts as to how to correctly take up the consideration of the subject.

Coming National Flower Show.

The chairman of the National Flower Show Committee will make his report at this meeting, and from what we have gathered, the same will contain much cheering information, prospects being exceedingly bright for a first-class exhibition. Mr. Chas. H. Totty, its chairman, having visited the great International Exhibition at London, which took place toward the close of last May, has undoubtedly gathered together many pointers which will be of service to him in handling our own American enterprise. Now that a permanent Flower Show Committee is in operation, it should not be too much to expect that before many years have rolled around, this Society will be enabled to successfully hold a flower show annually.

An S. A. F. and O. H. Annual.

I have elsewhere mentioned that the publication of an annual by this Society would be of practical value to our membership. This annual could contain, in addition to the report of the proceedings as now published annually, much material of trade value and interest. If all our national societies affiliated, the one publication might embrace the proceedings of all the societies. Additionally, could be given all the facts and data of horticultural progress from year to year, with condensed reports of the various exhibitions taking place during the year, together with fixtures for the year following. It should contain a list of American novelties seeing the light during the year and the varieties certificated by the various societies. It would necessarily have to be a progressive book; that is to say, built on the idea of a calendar, increasing in value from year to year as the data became available. The actual value of such a book would depend, in a great measure, upon the one into whose hands it would be entrusted for publication. The cost of the work would, I believe, be met in considerable part through advertising patronage.

Parcel Post and Postal Reforms.

Inasmuch as both our great political parties now realize the fact that parcel post must become an established institution of the U. S., the work which now remains is for us to assist other organized bodies in the endeavor to bring about a genuine parcel post and not a "make believe"—a parcel post institution that will be of advantage to the business men of the country as well as to the masses, and not one that will work into the hands of the organized express or other interests. The subject is one which demands the closest attention, and I will not attempt to go into details nor advocate the passage of any particular measure now before Congress or the Senate, as, of the several bills now before one body or the other, there are none which are to be recommended in their entirety. I would counsel all our members to watch their daily and trade papers most carefully, and to take such action as may be recommended by these journals, assisted by their own good common sense. In this connection, it has been proven, without doubt, that if you write your congressmen and senators, with conviction, a letter expressing politely but forcibly the result of your own thought in the matter, it will be given attention. My recommendation is that we pass a resolution on this floor, calling for the enactment of a parcel post bill which will give us the same low rates and privileges as to parcel post as are now being enjoyed by the people of nearly every European country. We cannot attempt to make rates, but we can protest against the charges being made so high as to render the institution of parcel post a farce.

The Horticultural Trade Press.

To our trade press much is due for the advancement of horticulture in the 20 years that have passed, and for the unremitting efforts of the directors of these publications to keep us in the vanguard of events should our utmost thanks be expressed. As conducted, they keep us apprised of everything that is going on in our line throughout the entire country, often obtaining their news at great expense. Added to their educational side, they conduct business for us at extremely small returns to themselves; in fact, they act as brokers, spending the money received for advertising in efforts to improve their service to their subscribers. We have no figures showing the amount of money which changes hands as a result of the advertising contained in the columns of our trade papers, but it certainly must run up into several millions of dollars a year.

The great advantage which our trade possesses over other lines of business in its use of these papers lies in the fact that it obtains direct returns from its advertising as against the very indirect and sometimes wholly unsatisfactory returns obtained by the general advertiser who may spend thousands of dollars in a campaign of education of the people, where it is only necessary for us to spend our tens.

The Convention Sports.

These result in decided pleasure to a great portion of those who attend. Were it not for the sports the probabilities are that attendance at our meetings would be considerably reduced in number. It is also true that "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." To the sports and games there can be and is no objection, but these events should be arranged so as not to interfere whatsoever with the business program. For that reason, I would urge that all sports take place on the fourth day of the convention, our day of recreation. All business having then been transacted, everyone could enjoy the games, whether it be a bowling match, shooting, or the races, and so on, and I believe each and every member would appreciate the privilege of being able to attend. As the sports program is now conducted, many of us cannot be present on account of other duties.

Finale.

I am proud to be your presiding officer this year. Let us come together during this meeting to the material benefit of ourselves and of all mankind, so that when we leave this wonderful city we may return home rejoicing in the knowledge gained, the friendships renewed and the new ones made, which will cement us in stronger bonds to the ends of our lives.

Generosity of thought and action is an attribute of the florist, because we live close to Nature, and no body of men and women anywhere stands more ready to extend a helping hand to a brother or sister in trouble. We are becoming more broad minded as we mingle with the world, more united for progress and the general distribution of our discoveries in order that our fellow tradesmen may be benefited.

Let us strive to increase the love of flowers universally not only for our own selfish or money making purpose, but for the elevation of mankind. Neither should we confine our efforts to our own country, but let us make use of them freely wherever we can extend our cult from country to country the world over, in the endeavor to bring about that peace and good will which will ultimately reign throughout the world and bring us into one brotherhood of communion and fellowship. I thank you yet again for your attention and your welcome.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Next came the report of Secretary John Young, which was as follows:

From January 1, 1912 to August 15, 1912.

The books and other properties pertaining to the secretary's office were turned over by the outgoing secretary early in January. The books were all in good order and accompanied by an inventory covering the property of the Society that is in the possession of the secretary.

Membership.

Since January 1st, 1912, to August 15th, 1912, there has been added to the list of members the names of 135 annual members and 31 life members.

New Members.

Following the recommendations of the Board of Directors, a circular letter was sent to each name in the florists' directory, setting forth the advantages of being a member of this Society. With this letter was enclosed a copy of the official program of this meeting and an invitation from the Chicago Trades Committee to attend this convention; also an application blank, and very gratifying results are being shown.

Trade Exhibition.

The trade exhibition held at the time of the convention is growing in importance each year. At Baltimore the receipts of the Trade Exhibition managed by Mack Richmond were $3,808.05 and the expenditures $1,550.31, the net proceeds turned into the permanent fund of the Society being $2,258.19.

The present trade exhibition has surpassed anything of the kind ever attempted, and the net proceeds should almost double those of the Baltimore convention. It will be well for the members to pause and think of the varied interests and high quality of the exhibits in the main hall. The secretary finds that much of the printed matter and material purchased for use at this exhibition can be saved and used again next year. Without question many economies can be practiced for the next convention.

Transportation.

Application for rates was made to all the passenger associations, and refused. They will pay no attention to such requests unless an attendance of 1,000 is guaranteed.

Plant Registration.

The following plants have been registered since the last convention:

472, Sept. 21, 1911—Begonia, "Feastil Punchii," by Lloyd C. Bunch, Fredonia, Kansas.
473, Oct. 7, 1911—Rose, "Porjole," by Jackson & Perkins, Newark, N. Y.
474, Oct. 7, 1911—Rose, "Genevieve"

Clark," by Jackson & Perkins, Newark, N. Y.

475, Oct. 7, 1911—Rose, "Sunshine," by Jackson & Clark, Newark, N. Y.

476, Oct. 5, 1911—Rose, "Double Improved White Killarney," by S. J. Reuter & Son, Westerly, R. I.

477, Oct. 5, 1911—Althaea, "Wm. P. Smith," by Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.

478, Nov. 30, 1911—Geranium, "General Wayne," by F. H. DeWitt, Wooster, Ohio.

479, Nov. 30, 1911—Geranium, "Aviator Rodgers," by F. H. DeWitt, Wooster, Ohio.

480, Nov. 30, 1911—Geranium, "Dr. Wylie," by F. H. DeWitt, Wooster, Ohio.

481, Nov. 30, 1911—Geranium, "Aviator Atwood," by F. H. DeWitt, Wooster, Ohio.

482, Nov. 30, 1911—Canna, "Conowingo," by the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.

483, Nov. 30, 1911—Canna, "Splendor," by the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.

484, Nov. 30, 1911—Canna, "Wabash," by the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.

485, Nov. 30, 1911—Canna "Beacon," by the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.

486, Nov. 30, 1911—Canna, "Kate P. Deemer," by the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.

487, Feb. 5, 1912—Orchid, "Laelia Anceps, var Lageriana," by Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J.

488, Feb. 22, 1912—Carnation, "Commodore," by the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.

489, March 9, 1912—Gladolus, "American Wonder," by H. W. Koerner, Milwaukee, Wis.

490, March 9, 1912—Gladolus, "American Giant," by H. W. Koerner, Milwaukee, Wis.

491, March 22, 1912—Geranium, "Mrs. E. D. Curtis," by Curtis Floral Co., 515 S. Main St., Hampton, Iowa.

492, May 11, 1912—Rose, "Killarney Brilliant," by Robert Scott & Son, Sharon Hill, Pa.

493, April 27, 1912—Fern, "Petris Cretica Andersonii," by J. F. Anderson, Short Hills, N. J.

494, June 28, 1912—Geranium, "Helen Michell," by Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Medals.

The following medals were awarded during the year:

Silver Medal—F. Dorner & Sons Co., Lafayette, Ind., for carnation "Rosette" offered through the American Carnation Society at its annual meeting held in Detroit.

Bronze Medal—E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., for carnation "Commodore," offered through the American Carnation Society, at Detroit.

Silver Medal—J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati, Ohio, for begonia "Westwood," offered through the Cincinnati Florists' Society at their exhibition in Cincinnati, November, 1911.

Bronze Medal—R. Witterstaetter, Cincinnati, Ohio, for carnation "President J. A. Valentine," offered through the Cincinnati Florists' Society at their exhibition held in Cincinnati, November, 1911.

There were also three silver and three bronze medals offered at the International Exposition in London for plants and flowers of American origin. The secretary has not yet been notified to whom these medals were awarded.

Since the last convention the following members have died: E. A. Moseley, I. L. Powell, Fred Ehret, C. A. Juengel, J. Labo, J. A. Pettigrew, J. F. Wilcox, J. R. Freeman, W. H. Moon, Frank Piorowski, Wm. Bester, Charles Knopf, W. R. Smith, ex-president and father of the charter of the Society.

Trade Press.

The trade press continue to publish all items of interest sent them from the secretary's office and publish all reports of the proceedings of the Society and furnish complimentary copies of their publication for the use of the secretary.

Secretary's Office.

The work of the secretary has been very interesting and fascinating.

I desire to thank publicly the officers and members of the Society who have assisted me at all times with their advice and good council, which has made the work so much lighter and pleasant.

W. F. KASTING,
Treasurer.

In the absence of Chairman Pierson, J. G. Esler stated that the legislative committee had learned that the several postal parcels bills had gone into conference at Washington. Charles H. Totty next presented an interesting and encouraging report on behalf of the National Flower Show Committee. The stenographer, Mr. Brown, then read for the information of the meeting the full report of the Executive Committee's mid-winter meeting. Messrs. Valentine, Vaughan, Esler and Welch were appointed a committee on the recommendations in the President's address.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON SESSION.

Tuesday afternoon session was better attended than that of the morning and developed into a record event in some respects. The first thing on the program was a talk by Wm. Gourlay of the American Express Company, who gave many assurances of the desire of his company to deal with florists and plant shippers on the square.

Next Meeting Place.

The question of the next meeting place then came up and after more or less debate Minneapolis, Minn., was selected by unanimous vote, although W. A. Manda put up an eloquent plea for Atlantic City, N. J. Mr. Manda proved himself to be a spell-binder of no mean quality.

TUESDAY EVENING SESSION.

After a brief intermission the evening session was opened and with it the discussion of the various proposed amendments to the by-laws. Patrick O'Mara outdid himself in his speech against the proposition to hand over to the Executive Board the appointment of secretary. Mr. O'Mara's "declaration of faith" was a classic. "The wider you divide the responsibility the better it will be for this Society," he said, and it was the prelude to a battle royal in which many clouded possibilities were dragged out to the light of day and then given a decent burial. The proposition as to the secretary was tabled until next year and the proposal to correct the records of 1909 and validate the remission of dues to certain members was defeated, a substitute motion applying the concession and the title of "Pioneer Member" to all members of 1885 who paid dues for 25 consecutive years being adopted. A committee was constituted to consider and report on a plan to erect a monument in Washington to W. R. Smith.

Mr. Rossi of San Francisco then ad-addressed the meeting extending an invitation on behalf of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, of which he is president, to have the S. A. F. visit San Francisco in 1915 on the occasion of the great Panama Exposition. Letters from the President of the Exposition and others were also presented. Mr. O'Mara and Mr. Kasting spoke in approval and a favorable vote was cast.

THE PRESIDENT'S RECEPTION.

The reception to the president at the Auditorium Hotel on Tuesday evening proved as popular as usual and was a brilliant social event. It was enjoyed by a vast multitude of the members and their ladies. Music, refreshments and dancing were enjoyed until midnight.

WEDNESDAY MORNING'S SESSION.

Wednesday morning's session was well attended. President R. Vincent, Jr., announced W. F. Gude, John K. M. L. Farquhar, J. A. Valentine, Harry Papworth, and R. Vincent, Jr., as a committee on the memorial to William R. Smith with power to add to the number from each state in the Union.

J. A. Valentine reported for the committee on the president's address endorsing his recommendations for more general dissemination of the proceedings of the Executive Board, the appointment of a committee to consider plans for closer affiliation with other organizations (to report next year), recommendation for a careful adjustment of exhibition space rates according to exigencies each year, and that an appropriation of $500.00 be made for more active work on matters of legislation, parcels post, etc. Also the sum of $100.00 for the use of a committee to consider the matter of over-head costs. The committee did not believe that the Society was in a position to establish a School of Horticulture as recommended. L. W. C. Tuthill then read his paper, "Advertising. Some Wrongs to Make Right," a most excellent and practical address.

Report of Judges.

Charles Graham then presented the report of the judges giving honorable mention to South Park, Lincoln Park, and West Park commissioners for their magnificent plant groups in the exhibition hall; giving certificates of merit to F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown-on-Hudson, N. Y., for unnamed fern; W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., for plant group; J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati, O., for plants; Lager & Hurrell, Madison, N. J., for orchids; Robert Craig, Philadelphia, Pa., for new ficus and plant groups; Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, Ill., for Golden Glow Sawyer's aster and chrysanthemums; J. Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y., for gladiolus Panama; Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y., for gladiolus Rochester White; Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, Pa., for adiantum Glory of Moor-Drecht; Robert Craig, Philadelphia, Pa., for crotons America, Canada, and Mrs. August Poehlmann; and honorable mention and high commendation to a large number of other exhibitors of plants and bulbs.

NOMINATION OF OFFICERS.

The nomination of officers resulted as follows:

President, J. K. M. L. Farquhar.
Vice-President, W. J. Vesey.
Secretary, John Young.
Treasurer, William F. Kasting.

Additional awards in the florists' supply section, also in greenhouse building and heating section were reported by the judges and will be given in our next issue.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Balloting for officers had already started on Thursday forenoon when Judge W. J. Vesey mounted the platform and after an eloquent expression of his regard for Mr. Farquhar and the latter's high qualifications for the office of president asked permission to withdraw from the contest and moved the unanimous election of Mr. Farquhar. This was done and amid a great outburst of enthusiasm all the officers were declared elected by a unanimous vote.

Mr. Farquhar was then escorted to the platform by Judge Vesey and in earnest words expressed his thanks for this demonstration, his appreciation of the honor and the responsibility which comes with it, and promised his best endeavors to promote the Society's interest, whereupon Miss Mary Hayden of Sam Murray's establishment, Kansas City, presented to the president-elect a magnificent bunch of American Beauty roses in a most gracious and charming manner.

Wallace Pierson then addressed the meeting in advocacy of the publicity campaign inaugurated by the New York Florists' Club.

Mr. O'Mara took the floor and proposed a resolution of thanks to the Chicago Park Commission, Florist Club, Allied Trades and ladies for their magnificent hospitality.

W. F. Gude brought up the proposed Smith Memorial plan and a resolution recommending a pledge of $1,000 by the Society was unanimously voted, after which individual subscriptions were made by members from the floor to the amount of $1,100.

A communication from W. Atlee Burpee in reference to the Parcels Post legislation, was next presented and after discussion, a vote favoring genuine Parcels Post and in accord with Mr. Burpee's views was passed. Adjournment followed and the sporting events were then in order for the afternoon.

The Florists' Hail Association met on Thursday and re-elected all old officers, also Messrs. Ammann, Will Burke and Rasmussen as directors. Messrs. Valentine, Esler and Rasmussen were appointed to prepare amendments to the by-laws covering the readjustment of rates.

THE EXHIBITION.

This feature was by far the most important in the Society's history—a gigantic display which in the short time at our disposal, we cannot attempt to do justice to in this issue.

The plant exhibits not only were a conspicuous part of the whole, but were exceptionally well done for a trade exhibit and there were many notable firms represented. The parks—Garfield, Lincoln and Washington—all lent generously of their plants and their displays formed the centers of the floor while around them were grouped tables of commercial plants. Robert Craig, W. A. Manda and H. A. Dreer all had fine showings of palms and decorative plants. F. R. Pierson Co. had their usual excellent display of grand ferns. Jos. Heacock Co. confined their exhibit chiefly to palms, kentias, both made-up and single, cibotiums, phoenix and small cocos. J. A. Peterson & Sons had splendid specimen plants of dracaena, Victoria and pandanus. Poehlmann Bros. Co., who are the latest Chicago firm to enter the plant field, made a creditable showing, considering their business is in its infancy. C. C. Pollworth Co., Chas. D. Ball, Jackson & Perkins Co., and estate of Lemuel Ball all had well selected groups of plants. S. A. Anderson had a table of well-grown cyclamen and Begonia Gloire de Lorraine. Michell's Seed Store was also represented by a good display.

The ribbon houses were well represented and their novelties made a feature in the decorative scheme of the great hall, where lately great conventions had made history. Most of them occupied spaces bordering the walls, under the galleries, and were filled with all that human brain could devise to allure the florist to part with his dollars. Schloss Bros. had a Bon Voyage ribbon for the steamer bouquet among other novelties. There was no end to the corsage novelties. Lion & Co. showed the colonial cup of rubber for the stems instead of tin-foil. Various dress shields of velvet, satin, etc., were seen in all the exhibits. Pennock-Meehan Co. had a very complete line of chiffons and the lace edged chiffon ribbon at Wertheimer's made one wonder what more was left for the designer of beautiful things.

Gladioli made a showy and interesting display and anyone seeing the excellent varieties there could hardly be excused for growing poor sorts next year. Some of the exhibitors could not do themselves justice owing to the recent storms their stock had suffered from. A. E. Kunderd, who specializes in the ruffled varieties, said a severe rain storm accompanied by hail swept the field the night previous to cutting and a rainfall of fourteen inches was recorded. A White Glory (not yet registered) and a ruffled red maroon, possibly to be named Chicago, were conspicuous among the Kunderd varieties. Cushman Gladiolus Co. had a large exhibit and included two large baskets of Mrs. Francis King and Klondyke. The John Lewis Childs exhibit was large and included many good things. B. Hammond Tracy, Arthur Cowee, E. E. Stewart and others all had exhibits of merit.

Among the new offerings was a device for tying carnation and chrysanthemum plants by Williams' Florist Supply House, Utica, N. Y. It was a simple arrangement and practically demonstrated. The originator had a gratifying pile of orders and many were large second orders from those who had tried and found them "just the thing."

M. Rice & Co., of Philadelphia, made a superb display of florists' supplies, rich in novelties and covering all classes of choice decorative material and sundries. No finer show of such a nature has ever been placed before the convention visitors.

The year 1912 has proven disastrous. Losses have been excessive and in many instances have been repeated in the same locality as many as three times in succession. While hail storms have prevailed in many localities, those of especial violence occurred in the neighborhood of Wichita, Kansas, and Kansas City, Missouri. Members of the F. H. A. who have escaped loss this year have had to congratulate themselves.

The efficiency of The Florists' Hail Association has been thoroughly proven, and, while it has been necessary to borrow liberally, using Reserve Fund Securities as collateral, there has been no delay in the prompt payment of losses. The 24th Assessment has been ordered for Sept. 15, 1912, in order to meet the liabilities incurred, and restore the Reserve Fund intact.

The thanks of the Association are due Messrs. J. F. Ammann, Samuel Murray, A. F. Barbe and Arthur Newell for valuable assistance rendered in the adjustment of losses.

THE LADIES' S. A. F.

The Ladies' Society of American Florists had a temporary office at the door and thirty new members were secured, making a total membership in good standing of about 300. The regular meeting of the society was held in the Auditorium, Wednesday A. M., and there was about 75 per cent. of the members present, Mrs. Boone, presiding. An address of welcome was given in behalf of Chicago by Mrs. John Worthy, after whose husband the John Worthy School for Delinquent Children was named, and whose founder, Mrs. Worthy, president of the Chicago Woman's Out Door Art League. Her remarks pertained to the great good the club had accomplished in Chicago. Mrs. F. H. Traendly of New York responded and presented a bouquet of American Beauties to Mrs. Worthy in behalf of the L. S. A. F. The reading of the report of the secretary and treasurer showed the society to be in a gratifying condition numerically and financially, and some minor changes in the constitution were made. It was also voted to provide the secretary with an expense fund of fifty dollars per year. The election of officers followed Thursday morning. Mrs. F. H. Traendly was elected president, Mrs. C. M. Kellar, vice-president. The other officers were re-elected.

FLORISTS' TELEGRAPH DELIVERY ASSOCIATION.

On Wednesday afternoon the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association held a meeting and the following officers were elected: President, I. Bertermann; vice-president, W. F. Gude; secretary, Albert Pochelon; treasurer, W. L. Rock. The old board of directors were re-elected.

CONVENTION NOTES.

Maurice Fuld will address the Gardeners' Club, Lake Forest, next Tuesday, on Gladioli and Dahlias.

On Wednesday evening Fred Brown delivered his lecture on floral designing, which gave much pleasure.

Wednesday afternoon a large party went to Morton Grove on invitation of Poehlmann Bros. to inspect their big establishment. Another party of about one hundred went to Maywood to visit the A. F. Amling Co., and other establishments. They were taken by auto to Elmhurst to visit Wendland and Kleimmel and then back to Forest Park for supper.

The attendance of ladies at the convention was noticeably strong, a good proportion being members of the L. S. A. F. They were given a cordial welcome as soon as they stepped into the Coliseum and a committee immediately took charge of them. Mrs. Boone, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Maynard, of Detroit, president and secretary of the Ladies' S. A. F., were given a delightful treat on Wednesday. Two hundred and twenty-five were at the Auditorium in response to an invitation to lunch at the South Shore Country Club, and traverse the 55 miles of boulevard connecting the Chicago parks, in automobiles. A more delightful trip could scarcely be found and a perfect day added to the enjoyment.

NEW YORK TO CHICAGO.

The usual happy crowd was in evidence when "The Mohawk" train pulled out of the Grand Central Station on Monday A. M., under the experienced guidance of Frank Traendly. There were not so many as on some former occasions, but counting the ladies, they numbered close to half a hundred—a good showing when it is remembered that reduced rates are no longer granted by the railroads. The trip was without special interest. A mild, companionable hilarity prevailed, but the boisterousness of the memorable trip to the first Chicago convention twenty-five years ago was absent and it is very evident that the florists of today have their predecessors beaten to a standstill when it comes to civilization. A fine array of re-

Horseshoe Brand Lily Bulbs

The crops of all early forcing lily bulbs of good quality are very short this year, owing to a lack of rain at the proper time. At such times many bulbs of inferior quality find a ready sale in the market. Those who want good lily bulbs should therefore not delay a day in placing their orders. The following are the revised prices for Horseshoe Brand bulbs, the best produced in the World. Immediate delivery.

CANADIAN HORTICULTURAL ASSOCIATION.

This organization held its fifteenth annual convention in Fraser Hall, Montreal, opening on Tuesday, August 6, and continuing for three days. At the opening session, Tuesday afternoon, President A. C. Wiltshire delivered his address and Secretary-Treasurer Jules Luck made his annual report. About 200 members and visitors were present. There was an interesting program of essays and business discussions during the three days in which the principal talkers were George M. Geraghty, Thomas Manton, H. Dilleuth, W. Gammage, H. B. Cowan, and P. Welch of Boston. Officers were elected on Thursday as follows:

President—W. Muston, Davisville, Ont.
First Vice-President—H. B. Cowan, Peterboro.

Second Vice-President—George Hopton, Montreal.

Secretary-Treasurer—Jules Luck, Montreal.

Executive Committee: M. Milford, Sherbrooke; E. Wise, Peterboro; A. Ferguson, Montreal; J. Graham, Ottawa; A. H. Ewing, Woodstock; H. G. Mullis, Brampton; A. Amodeo, Toronto; F. S. Chaseman, London, Ont.; E. I. Mepstead, Ottawa.

Representatives to Toronto Exhibition—H. Simmers, Toronto; to Ottawa Exhibition, E. I. Mepstead and C. Craig, Ottawa; to London Exhibition, W. W. Gammage and H. Dicks, London.

Auditors—Jos. Bennett, Lachine, and James McKenna, Montreal.

Peterboro was selected as the place for the next meeting. Many visits were made and hospitality was lavish everywhere. On the closing day the Association and visitors were guests of the city of Montreal in the forenoon and in the evening the Association banquet was held in Stanley Hall and many toasts were responded to. A handsome clock was presented to Mr. Wiltshire by the Association as a token of their appreciation of his services. P. Welch, of Boston, made the presentation. H. B. Cowan then presented Mrs. Wiltshire with a gold watch amid much cheering. Both Mr. and Mrs. Wiltshire acknowledged in few words of thanks.

The proceedings were enlivened by music, songs and recitations.

It was pronounced the most successful meeting the Association has ever had.

NASSAU COUNTY HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The monthly meeting of this society was held at Glen Cove, N. Y., on Aug. 14th, with a good attendance. Asters were exhibited at their best by Messrs. Barton, Boettcher and MacCarthy. J. W. Everett exhibited some fine melons (new seedling) and was awarded a certificate of culture. He also received a certificate of culture for a fine vase of Lycoris squamigera. H. Boettcher was awarded a certificate of culture for 12 vases of asters all of them good. Honorary mention to F. Petroccia and J. Marmolote for tomatoes and cucumbers. The society's prize for asters went to G. Barton, and for melons and corn to J. W. Everett. Mrs. J. H. Otley offered a silver cup for the best 18 Killarney roses to be competed for at the fall exhibition. H. Ortiz was elected an honorary member. It was decided to have the annual summer outing at Karatzonyi's, Glenwood, on Aug. 27th. The next meeting's prizes will be for 12 gladiolus, 6 onions and 3 heads of celery.

JAMES MacDONALD, Cor. Sec.

ST. LOUIS FLORIST CLUB.

A very harmonious meeting was held by this club last Thursday afternoon. The great importance of the meeting was the annual election of officers and S. A. F. convention matters. Thirty-five members were present. The trustees read a final report of the clubs' picnic which was held at a recent date.

In the election for president the first ballot resulted in a tie between F. H.

Weber and Jules Burdet, the next one resulting in the election of Fred H. Weber; for vice president Chas. Young was elected; secretary, J. J. Beneke; treasurer, W. C. Smith; three year term trustee, Wm. Ossic; two year term, John Connon. The installation will take place at the next meeting September 12th, 1912.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The Yonkers Horticultural Society will hold their Chrysanthemum Show in the Armory, October 29, 30, 31.

At the annual meeting of the White River (Vt.) Horticultural Society it was voted to hold their third annual show about the first of October and to offer premiums to the value of $400.

The regular meeting of the Tuxedo Horticultural Society was held in August. It was decided to set the date for the fall show October 26th to 27th. August 14th the picnic was held at Camp Comfort, Mombasha Lake. Carl D. Schaeffer at the July meeting offered a special prize of five dollars to anybody in Tuxedo Park growing a pumpkin to weigh not less than 100 lbs., to be exhibited at the fall show.

The garden committee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society viewed 20 acres of gladioli at Cedar Acres, Wenham, Mass., on August 15. The committee consisted of President C. W. Parker, W. P. Rich, Jackson Dawson, Thomas J. Grey, William Nicholson, Charles Sander, T. D. Hatfield and A. H. Fewkes. They also inspected the shipping house and storage bins. Luncheon was served in the house after which the party motored to Redgate, the summer home of President C. W. Parker.

As announced in our advertising columns, the time-honored annual auction sale for choice of stalls at the Boston Flower Exchange will begin at 9 A. M., Saturday, August 31, at the Market, C Park street, Boston, Mass.

TWO IMPORTANT NEW COMMERCIAL FERNS

Cyrtomium Rochfordianum

THE CRESTED HOLLY FERN

The Most Valuable Decorative Fern of Recent Introduction

A most important addition to our list of Ferns. Its foliage is of a rich, deep, glossy green color, the pinnae or leaflets besides being wavy or undulated are also deeply cut or toothed, giving the plant a graceful light appearance, which make it valuable not only as a dish Fern but decorative work and for apartment use.

2½ inch pots, 75 cts. per dozen; $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000. Also a limited lot of flats of about 200 plants each, at $3.00 per flat.

Adiantum Farleyense Gloriosa

THE GLORY FERN or RUHM VON MORDRECHT

The Fern Which Will Revolutionize the Cut Frond Business.

For the grower of Ferns for cutting this new Maiden Hair will undoubtedly prove a most important addition; it closely resembles Adiantum Farleyense and will make a splendid substitute for that fancy variety and it can be produced at much less cost, as it will thrive under conditions in which Adiantum Farleyense could not exist.

At our Riverview Nursery we have given it a very fair trial for this purpose during the past winter. A block of these plants were planted on a bench in a house devoted to the ordinary Boston Fern and received the ordinary treatment and temperature given to the Nephrolepis, and under this treatment they developed not only fronds of great beauty on longer, stiffer stems than Farleyense produces, but also many more fronds than would be developed by that variety in the same length of time under the most favorable condition.

such as Cuneatum, Croweanum and Hybridum, can

Anyone who successfully grows the ordinary varieties of Adiantum grow it under precisely the same conditions given to these sorts.

We have a fine block of about 30,000 young plants coming on which will be ready to send out in September from 2½-inch pots, and for which we are now booking orders at $2.00 per doz.; $15.00 per 100; $140.00 per 1000.

FERNS IN FLATS

These flats contain about two hundred plants each, only one variety in a flat, and we cannot supply less than a full flat of any one of the following varieties:

ASPIDIUM TSUSSIMENSE
CYRTOMIUM FALCATUM
CYRTOMIUM FORTUNEI
POLYSTICHUM SETOSUM
PTERIS ADIANTOIDES

PTERIS ALBA LINEATA
PTERIS MAGNIFICA
PTERIS MAJUS OR OUVRARDI
PTERIS WIMSETTI MULTICEPS

FERN SEEDLINGS

In the leading best varieties, ready now for potting. For assorted varieties, $1.50 per flat; 10 flats at $1.25 each; 50 flats at $1.00 each. Plants packed out of flats for shipment, 110 clumps to a flat.

Kentia Belmoreana and Forsteriana, from 2½ inch pots, $6.00 per 100; from 3 inch pots, $12.00 to $15.00 per 100.

PHOENIX ROEBELENI.

From 3½ inch pots, well rooted, ready for shifting, $6.00 per dozen; $40.00 per 100.

ASPARAGUS PLUMOSUS NANUS.

Transplanted Seedlings, well branched, from flats, $1.50 per 100; also 2½ inch pots, $3.00 per 100.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

W. Helper of M. Rice & Co., has started on his first trip. Look for him, he will be calling on you shortly.

Charles F. Edgar, well known in local circles, goes from here to occupy an important position in the retail life of Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Eschner of Elkins Park, spent the week end at Atlantic City in honor of the 77th birthday of Mrs. Eschner's mother. Mrs. Hyman H. Herzberg.

John W. Duncan, late of the Boston Parks, now superintendent of the park system of Spokane, Wash., was a welcome visitor on the 20th inst., taking in Dreer's and other points of interest in Phila.

C. H. Grakelow, one of the bright retailers of Philadelphia, has been absent from his usual haunts for many days. The latest heard from him is addressed to Capt. Davis of the Nissen Co., dated Los Angeles, Cal.

Of course we went to see the Philadelphia contingent off to Chicago. The train was half an hour late; but as the commodore said: "that is nothing strange for the B. & O." They were a merry party, and though fewer than usual lacked nothing in enthusiasm.

This has been a busy week at Craig's. Orders from Chicago have been coming in thick and fast. The powerful combination of Craig quality with the persuasive personalities of Bill and Van—aided and abetted by the old War Horse—has evidently turned the trick.

J. S. Butterfield and Mrs. Butterfield blew into our midst on the 16th inst. on their way back from the Railroad Gardeners' Convention at Roanoke. Mr. Butterfield is the "Paul Huebner" of the Missouri Pacific—with headquarters near Kansas City. He has the gardening interests of some seven thousand miles of track under his care. That's some railroad! He states that the convention was a great success and very enjoyable. The Association now numbers over one hundred members which is a good showing for the limited field.

Visitors: C. C. Austerman of Austerman & Steele, Springfield, Mass.; Mr. Siebrecht, Siebrecht & Siebrecht, wholesale florists, New York City.

CINCINNATI NOTES.

The Toomey Flower Shop is moving to the next door south; the new store room is much more commodious than the old one.

About forty-five left this city at noon on Monday on the "Florists' Special," bound for the convention. C. E. Critchell, state vice-president, and A. C. Heckman, Jr., headed the party. E. G. Gillett's midnight party was up to its quota.

Visitors, most of them on the way to Chicago, were Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Crouch, Knoxville, Tenn.; S. M. Harbison, Danville, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Haeger, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Chas. L. Baum, Knoxville, Tenn.; William Lodder, Hamilton, Ohio; L. D. Thompson, Atlanta, Ga.; W. A. Hollingsworth, Atlanta, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Dietrich, Maysville, Ky.; J. M. Garvey, Indianapolis, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Heberling and family, from Georgetown, D. C.

SWEET PEAS

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

All true stocks of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas will be scarce this season. Some varieties are a total failure owing to the exceptional season in California this Spring. Our advice to intending planters is to order at once. Mr. Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., the great Winter Sweet Pea Specialist, sows our seed almost exclusively.

Our stock of Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas have stood the test for years, and we can refer you to the largest growers of this increasingly popular flower, as to the trueness and quality of our seed, earliest of blooming period and strength and habit of plants.

The following varieties are the "best by test" and include Zvolanek's and our own introductions, grown for seed from selected stocks by the leading California grower and specialist in Sweet Peas.

Our output last year was nearly 3000 lbs. Few kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and trueness to type.

Seed Trade

Competition Based on Quality.

The Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., has sent us the following communication:

A most hopeful sign, indicative of results largely attributable to the persistent efforts heretofore made by the United States Department of Agriculture in the line of seed testing, is manifest from an inspection of the catalogues of more than fifty of the principal seed dealers of the country.

All of the firms referred to make definite statements that they test their seeds for germination. Nine firms advise purchasers to send samples either to the seed testing laboratory of the United States Department of Agriculture or to a state experiment station to be tested. Seven firms state that they themselves follow this course in regard to the seeds they offer and that the seeds are thereby officially guaranteed to be of the high grade represented. Six firms allow a stated time for making a test, advise purchasers to make such test on receipt of seeds, and request the return of seeds which do not satisfactorily meet the test.

Five firms state that the seeds they are selling comply with state laws, and a number of firms give the percentage of purity and germination in compliance with state laws.

These statements indicate that competition between seed dealers is becoming more and more a competition based on quality—a healthy tendency from the standpoint of both customers and honest dealers.

The Bourne Bill Condemned.

The Association of Hammonton (N. J.) Dahlia Growers, at its last meeting, passed the following resolution:

Whereas, There is pending in Congress a bill known as the "Bourne Parcels Post Bill," which bill in its present shape, as reported by "The Florists Exchange," we consider detrimental to our business interests, and

Whereas, We are in favor of a Parcels Post at the rate of two (2) ounces for one cent, with a weight limit of eleven (11) pounds, without the "Zone" system; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this Association does most respectfully request our Senator and Congressman to protest by voice and vote against this bill in its present shape, and to favor the amendment as above suggested; and be it further Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be mailed to the Hon. Frank O. Briggs, Hon. John J. Gardner and the Hon. John A. Moon, Chairman Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads.

EDW. H. WHITE, Secretary.

Notes.

Topeka, Kan.—The Zimmerman Seed Co. has changed the firm name to that of the Snyder Seed Co.

Yankton, S. D.—The Gurney Seed & Nursery Co. has increased its capital stock to $100,000. They are building a new tree storage and packing house 64 x 100 feet of concrete. If this building is completed in time they expect to erect two 150-foot greenhouses this fall.

Norway, Mich.—A movement is on foot here to organize the Cloverland Seed & Nursery Co. with a capital stock of $25,000.

Fayetteville, Ark.—Thomas Shelton has purchased the interest of his brother, J. A. Shelton, in the Southwestern Seed Co. and succeeds him as manager.

Fort Worth, Texas—The Frank Clark Seed Co. has been incorporated with a capital stock of $2,500. Incorporators, Frank Clark, R. H. Beck and E. H. Fabian.

Albany, N. Y.—Mr. F. A. Sherman, formerly head of The Sherman & Eberle Seed Co., of 112 So. Pearl street, has severed his connection with the firm and organized the Houghton & Sherman Co., dealing in seeds, farm implements and heaters. Mr. Sherman has bought the stock held by the Houghton Co. and has taken his two sons in with him.

INCORPORATED.

Winnipeg, Man., Can.—Island Park Nurseries, Ltd., capital stock $50,000. Incorporators, A. D. Wallace, B. D. Wallace, S. R. Wallace and Harold Wallace.

Council Bluffs, Ia.—Meneray-Crescent Nursery Co., capital stock $10,000. F. W. Meneray, president; A. O. Meneray, secretary; Lucy Meneray, treasurer.

Davenport, Ia.—Davis Floral Co., capital stock $25,000. Frank L. Davis, president; J. W. Davis, secretary and treasurer.

Cortland, N. Y.—The Forrest Seed Co. has been incorporated with a capital stock of $20,000. Directors, William Forrest, Lulu M. Forrest, Wilton A. Mabee.

The so-called Nursery Stock Bill passed the U. S. House of Representatives on August 10th last, but was amended in one important particular, that is, in Section 10, the penalty clause, to disobey the rules or regulations provided in the act does not entail fine or imprisonment.

"THE KENILWORTH STRAIN" of GIANT PANSY SEED

Must not be compared with the flimsy Trimardeau

It is much larger and of good substance; the immense flowers, of 3½ to 4 inches, are of perfect form, and every tint and shade is produced in striking combinations and endless variations of beautiful colors and markings. The Stock Plants are most critically selected. It is rich with shades of brown, bronze, red, mahogany, and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures. Read what Growers say about my strains of Pansy Seed in HORTICULTURE of July 20.

Connecticut Nurserymen's Association.

The Connecticut Nurserymen's Association were in New Haven Aug. 9th for their annual summer outing. The objective point was The Elm City Nursery Co. whose nurseries are located just beyond Edgewood Park in the new Edgewood suburb.

The nursery business has become one of Connecticut's important industries and the amount of capital and number of men engaged in the business would be a source of surprise to those who are unfamiliar with such matters. The old New England hills which have in the past years become unprofitable for farming purposes in competition with the great West, are proving to be eminently suited to the production of the finest fruits, fruits which compare favorably with the finest productions anywhere in the country. Not only can they grow under modern means of cultivation apples which are as fair as the Oregon brand, but they can beat them on quality and keeping qualities. The same is true of peaches, pears, plums, quince, etc., so that the hillsides of Connecticut bid fair to soon be one great orchard and add another important industry to the state. The demand for ornamental stock has enormously increased in the past few years as parks are being developed in every city and town and private estates and homes are being rapidly evolved which compare favorably with the finest homes of Europe and practically every home place even down to the smallest garden now shows signs of care and attention. Such a movement as this makes an increasing demand for nursery stock.

The Elm City Nursery Co.'s extensive grounds are a just source of pride to all New Haveners. The grounds, especially about the office, are laid out in a true landscape style and few private estates are kept up with greater care.

After looking over the nursery the association took an auto ride and dinner was enjoyed at the West Shore.

Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society.

The second annual outing of this society was held in Rye Beach, N. Y., on Wednesday, August 7th. Over 125 members attended, most of them accompanied by their family. The games were all well contested for, valuable prizes were carried home by many, and all enjoyed the dinner which was excellent. All told, this was a most successful affair.

The three contests between Westchester and Fairfield were won by Westchester, namely quoit game, football game and tug-of-war.

for so many weeks must now take a back seat. Maryland and all other roses are now quite plentiful. The shortage reported for some time back has entirely disappeared. There is not much change in the carnation situation. These are still scarce and of only middling quality. What few flowers come in clean up fairly well at moderate prices. Orchids are very scarce—particularly cattleyas. The demand for gardenias has fallen off somewhat. Sweet peas do not cut much of a figure. The best flowers are coming from northern and eastern points; but they do not stand reshipping well and are good only for local wants.

This has indeed been a week of asters. Enormous quantities have arrived every day, some of first rate quality, and there have been enough of the latter to satisfy all buyers. Dahlias have been on view at some of the wholesalers, but they are not wanted. Very few orchids to be had just now, but 600 were found and supplied to fill one order this week, together with 1100 bunches of pink lilies. The latter are a glut as are also gladioli. Small roses have improved in quality, with a good choice in variety. Richmonds, Tafts, Hillingdons and Wards have been good sellers, but the market has been much too overcrowded with the inferior and worthless stuff. Gardenias have been scarce and somewhat in demand. Golden Glow chrysanthemums are coming in lightly.

The market is very dull as far as demand is concerned but in big supply in seasonable cut flowers. The commission houses have been and are loaded down with asters, gladioli and roses, and no clean-up sales have been reported on any of these during last week. The retailers are buying sparingly and say that the month of August has been a dull one so far.

FIRE RECORD.

Spokane, Wash.—A slight fire damaged the store of the Winters Floral Co., recently.

The Boston Co-operative Flower Market will hold its ninth annual sale of stalls on Saturday, August 31, at 2 Park street, Boston, at 9.30 A. M. W. W. Tailby will wield the hammer, as usual.

ST. LOUIS NOTES.

Dan MacRorie, Angelo J. Rossi, H. Plath and Mr. and Mrs. Julius Eppstein, San Francisco florists, spent a day in St. Louis on their way to Chicago to attend the S. A. F. convention. They are looking forward to land the S. A. F. meeting for San Francisco in 1915.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Weber, Sr., will spend their vacation at Atlantic City, N. J.

Frank Windler will represent the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. at the convention.

John Connon, of the Connon Floral Co., is spending his vacation at Portland, Ore.

William C. Young, Chas. C. Young and James Hoata, of Young's, are in Chicago this week.

The Mullanphy Floral Co. will soon occupy their new quarters at 3514-16-18 North Grand avenue which will give them the much needed room for their fast growing business.

David Geddes has been visiting in Pittsburgh.

J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, state vice-president of Southern Illinois, is leading a large party of Southern Illinois florists for the Chicago convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Angermueller left Monday morning with the St. Louis party for Chicago to attend the convention.

PERSONAL.

Paul M. Bryant is now advertising manager for the Foley Manufacturing Co., Chicago, Ill.

Frank Connors, assistant florist at the greenhouses of George W. Knowlton, West Upton, Mass., will take charge of the greenhouses of Denholm & McKay, Worcester.

Harry A. Barnard, representing Stuart Low & Co., Bush Hill Park, Enfield, Eng., is about to make another visit to this country. He will be at the Hotel Albert while in New York.

NEW YORK NOTES.

Angelo Dentale, at Young & Nugent's has just returned from his honeymoon trip.

Stumpp & Walter Co. report trade in grass seed very brisk. They find a steady increase each year in this direction.

Weeber & Don have had their store front set back and are making extensive alterations and improvements in the interior.

Wallace Pierson is very sanguine about the future of his new red rose "Mi Lady," just named by Fred Dornier. He says it is sure to make one of the greatest hits ever known in the annals of new roses.

The New York party for the convention left the Grand Central terminal on Monday at 10.30 A. M. in two special Pullmans and although it fell far short of the anticipated number was certainly a representative one and was favored by the presence of the following ladies: Mrs. F. H. Traendly, Mrs. Harry Bunyard, Mrs. Austin Shaw, Mrs. Kuebler, Miss Esler and Mrs. Jos. A. Manda.

Obituary.

Charles E. Keith.

"Charlie" Keith, for many years superintendent of parks of Bridgeport, Conn., beloved by all who knew him, passed away on Thursday afternoon, August 15, aged 63 years. He had been taken ill suddenly in Beardsley Park on the previous Saturday while making preparations to attend the meeting of the Association of American Park Superintendents at Boston. Mr. Keith was a charter member of the Association and the news of his illness had occasioned much sympathy among the members at the Boston meeting and in recognition of his lovely personality and his loyalty to the Association a unanimous vote was passed making him president emeritus for the balance of his life. Unfortunately, the honor was a brief one, although sincerely bestowed. George A. Parker of Hartford, G. X. Amrhy of New Haven and Theodore Wirth of Minneapolis attended the funeral and a floral piece was sent as a token from the Association of American Park Superintendents.

Joseph M. Cole.

Joseph M. Cole, who opened the first cut flower store in Peoria, Ill., and who had lived in that city for about 58 years, died at his residence, 615 North Jefferson avenue, Peoria, on August 9. He was born in London, England, and came to America with his parents when a year old. For many years he was associated with his brothers in the florists' business, retiring about six years ago.

Andrew Johnson.

On August 8, Andrew Johnson, gardener for Mrs. David King, Newport, R. I., died at his residence from pneumonia. He was born in Sweden in 1851 and came to America in 1871 and for the greater part of the time since has been head gardener for the late David King, Jr. His widow, one son and a daughter survive him.

Miss Mary Foley.

Mary, daughter of James Foley, died under an operation for appendicitis Aug. 19. She was nine years of age and is the niece of P. J. Foley, presi-

KROESCHELL HOT WATER BOILERS

NOT CAST IRON

Send for Catalogue

No Sections — Easy to Set Up — Made of Boiler Plate — Absolutely Safe Cannot Crack

Has Thin Water Ways — Vertical Circulation — The Longest Fire Travel — Heats Quick — Easy to Clean — More Direct Surface than Any Other Boiler

WHAT THE USERS SAY

Better than All Others

I have fired boilers for the last forty years. The Kroeschell is the best I have ever used. I have two cast iron boilers, also a locomotive boiler coupled with yours, but did not need to use the cast iron boilers this winter. Your No. 7 boiler is rated at 15,000 sq. ft. of glass and carries 25,000 sq. ft. of glass until the outside temperature goes down to 10° of frost. We have no trouble to keep temperatures in our houses with easy firing since we installed your boiler. From the boiler to the farthest end of our violet houses and return is 800 feet, and circulates very quickly.

OUR BIG Advance Ventilating Apparatus

Which we exhibited at the S. A. F. and O. H. Convention was certainly in a class by itself. All who called at our exhibit left with the same idea, "That it was undoubtedly the best on the market." We also received many "bouquets" on our new machine by the users, who are Chicago's most prominent florists. To date we have sold over 800 of these new machines and they have only been on the market since March.

Get in line now, and send for particulars of this machine. It is just the thing for your new range.

SEEING how attractive and practical this arrangement is, do you wonder why THE LUTTON PATENT CURVED EAVE method has changed Greenhouse Construction during the past few years? The result has been the most successful house that can be produced; the other concerns who had been producing the same antiquated buildings for years had to simply destroy their patterns as well as their catalogues and start anew. Just ask some of our imitators to show you some of their curved eave houses built before THE LUTTON PATENT was granted; you will then be convinced that you had better consult with me.

"THE" FLORISTS' SUPPLY HOUSE OF AMERICA

EVERYBODY'S SAYING IT

What?

That Bayersdorfer led the "grand march" at Chicago, and held the lead he has held for so many years, as the greatest florists' supply house in America. The extracts below from the various trade journals tell an interesting story of what we have accomplished. It shows that "Everybody's saying it." They are some straws from the great moulders of public opinion which show which way the wind blows:

SOME EXTRACTS FROM WHAT THEY SAY

The journals quoted from below are among the leaders in trade circles in American Horticulture, and all of the highest standing.

From "Horticulture"

The Bayersdorfer exhibit was a stunner and demonstrated once again that Philadelphia leads the country in the department of florists' supplies. We noticed many meritorious novelties here which we hope to mention in detail later on. Business was humming at the Bayersdorfer & Co. end of the hall.

From the "Florists' Exchange"

This exhibit comprised about everything in the supply line a florist could be looking for in staple goods * * The new color in Parisian basket * * a bright russet and entirely new * * Mr. Bayersdorfer brought this novelty from Paris * * a very extensive and interesting exhibit.

From the "Florists' Review"

The Bayersdorfer exhibit was not only the largest in the hall, but the largest ever made at an S. A. F. convention. * * There were hundreds of styles of baskets, including two new colors—one a Nile green, the other a brown—discovered by Mr. Bayersdorfer in Paris. * * Gun metal tone ware was a distinct novelty. Decorated ivy vases and baskets were shown for the first time.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Care of Summer Bulbous Plants

Gloxinias, tuberous-rooted begonias, achimenes, gesneras, etc., will soon be passing out of flower. All these tuberous plants will need to be gradually dried off, by withholding water a little more each time until they are thoroughly ripened up. When they are allowed to dry off too suddenly the life is taken out of them and they never give as good results as those that get especial attention. A good place to put those that are in pots for the present is in a cold frame or pit where they can have the sash on and be dried off gradually. They can stay here until they are thoroughly ripened. Before danger of frost arrives they can be removed to a dry shed or cellar and the pots laid on their sides. It is a good plan later on when you get time to shake out the tubers and label them and store in boxes in a dry place where the temperature is about 50 degrees.

Feeding Chrysanthemums

It makes no difference how rich the soil was when the benches were filled; they always need feeding from the time the buds make their appearance, and up until they begin to show color, when all stimulants should cease. There is no better fertilizing element than liquid cow or sheep manure. Where your stock is in good condition you can make up some liquid by placing in a barrel of from 45 to 48 gallons of water a half a bushel of cow manure, or, if sheep manure, half the quantity will be enough. Let it stand for a day or two so the water will be well impregnated before being applied. It is better for the average grower to start with one application a week and then increase it to twice a week. Where liquid manure is used with prudent care you will find a decided difference between the size and color of flowers where it is used and where it is not. It also gives that black green foliage and heavy stem which goes with an ideal flower.

Housing Decorative Plants

All tender stuff used outside for decoration or for tropical effect in bedding should within the next ten days be removed to their winter quarters so as not to let any frost reach them. Those that are planted out in beds or borders should be very carefully lifted and given the smallest sized pots that will hold them comfortably. Nothing is gained by putting them in too big pots as root action will be very slow from this out and when the sun begins to have power again—say in February or March—you can shift into larger pots. All these newly potted plants will need three or four sprayings overhead each day, until they become re-established. Give enough of water at the roots to keep the soil moist, and they soon will start and make new roots. All decorative stock should have a thorough cleaning and sponging, followed by a good syringing which will be of great benefit in cleaning them of bud and scale.

Lifting Berried Solanums

Berried solanums should be lifted and potted now. Give the larger plants a 6-inch pot; a 5-inch pot will do for the ordinary run. Mix up a compost of three parts fibrous loam, to one of well decayed cow manure, and see that each pot has good drainage. Work the compost in and around the roots well so it will be firm when finished. Place them on a bench and give temporary shade for about a week, when they will stand full sun. Give them frequent sprayings overhead and keep them moist at the roots and they will quickly become established.

Perennial Border

Where you wish to make a show border there is no better time than the next three weeks. Fine perennials may be grown in almost any soil and position, but where the highest and lasting qualities are desired it will be necessary to select an open, sunny position, sheltered from the north winds, and clear of all roots of trees and shrubs. As these plants are to remain for some time undisturbed, make the ground loose to a depth of two feet at least. A satisfactory way is to throw off the surface soil and then dig over the subsoil good and deep and mix with plenty of rotten manure, bone and wood ashes. Where the drainage is imperfect, it must be provided with under-drainage to a suitable depth. When throwing back the top soil add well rotted manure, bone and wood ashes, and put in a finely pulverized condition. While it is possible to plant these perennials quite late in the fall, the earlier they can be planted the better, as it gives the young plants time to become established before hard freezing weather. They should be planted far enough apart so that when full grown they will not overcrowd one another. Use judgment when planting so as to blend colors throughout. Too great a mixture of colors often gives a tangled and untidy effect. By selecting different perennials you can maintain a succession of flowering the whole season until frost.

Stevia

Now is the time to lift stevias that are planted out. Great care should be used in handling as they are very brittle. Use a good rich soil to pot them in. When they are potted up stand them where they can have certain protection from frost. They should have some shade for a few days and be sprayed overhead two or three times a day until they take root. Keep as cool as possible.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Bouvardias; Cyclamen for the Holidays; Crimson Ramblers; Hydrangeas; Lathyrus; Making a New Peony Plantation.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

George H. Penson

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Penson. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Christmas Melons

Melons for Christmas are a delicacy within the reach of all who have a small house in which to grow them. Sow the seeds at once and under ordinary conditions they should be in nicely for Christmas. The season in which they have to grow is the reverse to the earliest spring crops and with good weather for the first two months strong healthy plants will be built up and two good fruits should be carried by each plant. Take them along at a lively clip after setting, as it is easier to hold them up a week near Christmas than it is to finish them. Use a little extra lime rubble in the soil to help dry it out quicker than previous beds. As the crop is swelling the tendency will be to lie wet, with a gradually diminishing sun power. Hero of Lockinge, His Eminence and Superlative will be found reliable for this shift. Melons can be grown the year round but with so much excessive firing to consider, this is usually considered the last house until spring crops commence, December 1st, to furnish fruit for April. When growing later sowings than Christmas-ripe, pots are advisable to grow them in.

Position of Pipes in a Vinery

With some modern builders there seems to be a lack of certainty as to the correct position in which to place the heating pipes in a vinery. The general prevalent idea seems to be to push them up against the outside wall, without consideration of how and where the vine is to grow. Apparently the house is built for the pipes and not for the vines. When inquiries are made you are told it is the usual way and, without wishing to be a dictator, I think it is possible to prove the correct place for the heating pipes is a little further away from the vine than is generally thought. On theory the heating pipes should be near the outside of the house combating the cold air. The hot air (or heat) radiates, reaching the top of the house, thus concentrating the heat on the outside glass, the center of the house readily warming itself. This is all good theory, but here is one instance where practise scores well over theory and it is the practical part of it which counts. The three sketches below illustrate vines growing and the pipes in position. No. 1 with the pipes at the side, the vine planted in the center of the border. Some foliage must be very close to the pipes and this spells trouble; the side of the border will persistently dry out, too, with a consequent loss of feeding roots, unless examined almost daily. No. 2—piping similar to No. 1, with the vine planted—no, crowded—at the back of the pipes. This has all its predecessor's disadvantages and more, inasmuch as it has not sufficient room to swell at the base and often is found hard against a pipe; many young feeding roots are burnt away and an even greater watch has to be kept on that strip of border immediately beneath the pipes or it will become as dry as a bone. A border is best kept evenly moist all over and when watering so many feet today and the rest next week this is impossible. No. 3 sketch plan has proved itself satisfactory by results obtained. The pipes are situated about the center of the border away from the bottom foliage. This gives access to the border immediately beneath the pipes, from both sides, making top dressing, etc., easy; the border will dry out evenly and the house is heated efficiently. Using the pipes in this position the first portion of the border made up will be inside the location of pipes. With young vines tied down near the glass to "break" in the cold weather, an allowance of two degrees can be made for them being in this position.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Red Spider

Now is the time to go over your benches carefully and make note of all spots where spider appears. The best way is to tie a piece of cardboard to stake or wire at such a place so that when syringing you can syringe these spots more thoroughly than the plants that do not need it so much. Unless you can rid your plants of spider altogether you will have all sorts of trouble when the dark days of the winter come. This applies especially to Beauties, as other roses are less subject to spot and Beauties are very apt to get it if syringed too often.

If spider is bad in places spray with some good insecticide advertised in HORTICULTURE, making sure that the spray reaches the under side of all leaves for here is where Mr. Spider and his kin make their home or rather would if they were left to themselves undisturbed by the rose grower. With the hot dry weather the houses can all be syringed very thoroughly without any danger of getting them too wet, for the benches will dry out very rapidly in weather such as we have had lately.

Old Plants

Old plants that have been cut down and replanted, or left in the bench—as the case may be—must be carefully looked after and by all means see that they do not receive too much water before they have enough top to give the roots plenty of work. If given too much water before any top is formed the roots will decay and the plants all die, and then no doubt “black rot” will be given credit for all that! When first beginning to water cut-down plants that have been run on the dry side for quite some time, water the ball of the plant only, gradually increasing the circle as the roots spread. With Teas it is a good idea to spray the plants over three or four times a day, continuing this until the buds begin to show. This syringing should of course be omitted on all cloudy or rainy days, doing it only when the day is clear.

Another great point is to make sure that the plants are not too dry, for if very dry and syringed the foliage will be badly scalded. This weakens the plants a good deal, and must be avoided. A very quick syringing is all that is necessary and there is no excuse whatever for soaking the benches while syringing to help soften the wood, to make the plants break more freely.

Leaky Houses

Many houses have to wait until next season for their coat of paint. There may be some pretty bad leaks in such houses. These ought to be repaired even though the house itself cannot be all puttied and painted. During a shower mark well all the bad leaks and as soon as an opportunity to repair these presents itself, do so, for a continual drip, drip, drip, upon the bench does not agree with any rose. There may also be places where the glass is beginning to slide a little; mark all such spots and repair, for, should a heavy windstorm come these loose lights will surely blow out, taking or smashing others as they go.

Soil for Winter's Use

This should be stored under cover or, if no cover is to be had, heap it up in some easily accessible place where it can be covered with either straw, manure, or leaves to keep it from freezing. It is but little trouble to remove the covering and have the soil unfrozen even though the thermometer stands at zero. Prepare all your soil now. Winter is no time to be digging around after soil and trying to secure suitable mixtures for the different crops. Soil can easily be mixed and heaped up now and then it will always be on hand when wanted.

Sometimes soil for ever so many different crops is needed; it is then best to make separate heaps of the different soils and then have a heap of well decayed cow manure close at hand so that when a mixture of certain proportion is wanted it can be easily made.

Fumigating With Tobacco Stems

The practice of fumigating with tobacco stems still keeps up on many places although a large number of growers have given this method up altogether. To those who find it most convenient to use stems we think a little note on the subject may be of interest.

To begin with be sure to have the house down below 70 before attempting to fumigate. Fumigating when the temperature is above 70 is dangerous and should never be done unless absolutely necessary. The plants should never be dry; for the foliage of dry plants will burn much easier than if it had just been watered a few hours before. After a little experience a grower can easily determine just how dense the smoke should be to give best results. Do not have the stems too wet. It is best to sprinkle them a little in the morning if you want to use them at night. The water will then gradually soak into them leaving them uniformly damp. In burning the stems in the house be careful not to let the stems burn with a flame for if this happens the smoke will be too hot and unless your house is a high one, will burn the foliage of the plants.

Do not stand the pot in one place only. The house will never fill properly and the hot smoke in one place is none too good for the plants either. Take the pot to one end and gradually bring it to the other end, filling the house up as you go. It is not a very pleasant job, to say the least, and I am sure that after doing it once or twice, the growers will believe in starting with clean plants and keeping them clean.

For the first time in its career the S. A. F. For 1913 found itself without an urgent invitation in the matter of its next place of meeting. Yet when the Society of its own choice had selected Minneapolis it transpired that an invitation to that city had actually been contemplated, thus giving a welcome assurance against possible embarrassment on the part of the city selected. We look for a splendid convention in the twin cities for 1913.

One of the most momentous questions before the S. A. F. and kindred organizations at the present time is that of publicity—the campaign of education to awaken the public to a greater appreciation of floral products and to encourage a more general use of these things. It is a big and rapidly growing industry which this movement will affect and it is most important that it shall be started right. No narrow-minded restricted proposition, no petty policy can suffice. A broad-visioned, comprehensive plan must be formulated and put in operation and this will call for the exercise of sound judgment and executive ability of the highest type. Our biggest and most experienced business men must be enlisted in this work if anything of value is to be accomplished.

Sebastopol, Cal., has been giving an apple show. Criticism has often been made, and not without reason, of the absurd monstrosities florists are sometimes called upon to "make up" in flowers, but the exploits of the California apple growers in this direction, as described in the San Francisco Chronicle certainly equal the worst atrocity ever perpetrated in the name of floral designing. "The Titanic wreck done in apples" is one which the Chronicle has deemed worthy of a half-tone engraving. Regarding this gruesome exhibit it says:

"In the sinking of the Titanic, the splendid exhibit of W. S. Liddle, a huge iceberg is shown made of dried apples, and the vessel plunging to its doom bow first is done in vari-colored green fruit. Miniature electric lights shine from the vessel, and give it a decidedly realistic appearance."

Can anyone suggest a punishment to fit the crime?

No more conspicuous instance of "the office seeking the man" has ever occurred in the history of the national Society than in the nomination and election of J. K. M. L. Farquhar as president and in the events leading up thereto. Mr. Farquhar's consent to allow his name to be presented one year ago at Baltimore for this position of honor was obtained only upon the urgent request of his admirers in Boston and elsewhere who knew his fitness and capability. He neither did nor said anything in advocacy or furtherance of his own candidacy. This year his attitude was decidedly negative and it was only two days previous to the election that the persistent appeals of his friends finally met with success and he became a candidate. The president-elect will go into office untrammelled by overtures or obligations of any sort except the pledge to serve to the utmost of his ability the organization which, with such invincible enthusiasm, has called him to this position of honor and large responsibility.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS AND ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS

Convention Report Completed

John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, high commendation for galvanized iron frame bench construction and pneumatic water supply systems.

Lord & Burham Co., New York, high commendation for ice cleaning transom, sash and sill.

After the election of officers and other closing proceedings of Thursday forenoon as detailed in our issue of last week, the Convention adjourned to meet in New York at the International Flower Show of 1913 and the bowling contests scheduled for Thursday afternoon at Bensinger's Alleys became the centre of attraction.

THE BOWLING.

There were nine teams in the field. As the following figures indicate, some of the erstwhile triumphant cities had to take a dose of unaccustomed medicine. Three strings each were played:

CLEVELAND.

Hart	550	Adgate	556
Friedley	422	Graham	545
Knoble	516	Totals	3589

BUFFALO.

Mansfield	533	Streit	460

PHILADELPHIA.

Wescott	334	Connor	445
Kift	402	Robertson	468
Shober	302	Totals	1951

In the individual bowling there were 51 contestants. Those making 400 or over in three strings were as follows:

Ed. Schultz 538, C. Balluff 524, W. R. Pierson 507, V. Bergman 506, Peter Olsem 499, F. S. Ayres 496, John Zech 493, Al. Fischer 488, C. W. McKellar 487, D. Weeks 480, W. Cook 477, D. J. Scott 473, E. F. Winterson 463, F. L. Miller 461, C. N. Ruedlinger 454, L. H. Vaughan 449, Otto Goerlich 446, A. Zech 445, F. H. Traendly 442, J. S. Wilson 433, F. J. Krauss, Jr., 430, H. S. Will 419, W. J. Vesey, Jr., 419, A. Henderson 412, Andrew Wilson 408, J. P. Degnan 403, W. F. Kasting 402.

The ladies, who bowled on Thursday forenoon, played two strings each. There were 36 of them—and here is the record:

Mrs. C. W. McKellar 325, Mrs. F. H. Traendly 265, Mrs. S. H. Klein 253, Mrs. H. J. Quick 221, Mrs. Geo. Asmus 216, Mrs. J. W. Boone 207, Mrs. A. L. Vaughan 198, Mrs. C. Byers 196, Mrs. E. F. Winterson 194, Mrs. G. Smith 192, Mrs. E. A. Fetters 191, Mrs. G. W. French 182, Mrs. J. A. Manda 176, Mrs. A. M. Herr 168, Mrs. C. E. Critchell 166, Mrs. W. N. Rudd 145, Mrs. H. A. Bunyard 144, Mrs. J. C. Enders 143, Mrs. F. S. Ayres 138, Mrs. S. S. Tiegell 135, Miss Nellie B. Able 133, Mrs. M. Weeks 133, Mrs. A. Rasmussen 132, Mrs. A. F. Poehlmann 125, Mrs. A. Myers 117, Mrs. Adolph Poehlmann 115, Mrs. M. E. Miller 108, Miss Perle B. Fulmer 106, Mrs. P. M. Paley 106, Mrs. C. B. Thompson 105, Miss Phylliss Rudd 103, Mrs. Henry Schmieg 101, Mrs. W. W. Coles 93, Mrs. C. Quarles 80, Mrs. W. J. Johnston 71, Miss F. Virgin 40.

Mrs. Chas. McKellar, as was anticipated by all who know her, made the highest scores and won the silver loving cup, the special prize of $50 in merchandise and several other prizes; Mrs. Traendly won a cut glass pitcher; Mrs. S. H. Klein a silver cup and the special $25 prize; Mrs. Geo. Asmus, coral beads; Mrs. A. L. Vaughan, kodak; Mrs. E. F. Winterson, brass basket.

THE DAY AT RAVINIA PARK.

Friday, the fourth day of the Convention, had been set apart for pleasure, as guests of the Chicago florists and allied trades. It required two special trains to carry the visitors from Chicago to this noted resort and everything possible was done by the local committees to make the occasion one of pleasure long to be remembered by all who participated. The grounds are beautifully laid out and the expansive playstead and grand stand in its setting of woodland scenery made an unexcelled location for the much-heralded baseball game between the Chicago and "All Stars" teams, and for the various races and other athletic events that had been scheduled.

A large bed of King Humbert cannas at the entrance of the grounds was the centre of an admiring throng. All agreed that never before had they seen so superb a canna display. King Humbert is certainly the grandest canna in existence and here it outdid itself. A fringe of Eulalia gracilimum and dwarf salvias gave an effective finishing touch to the group. Under the leafy forest canopy luncheon was served at noon and in the spacious pavilion dinner was enjoyed in the evening, after which the visitors listened to opera and the Theodore Thomas orchestra, which had also given a grand concert in the afternoon.

Immediately following dinner an interesting event took place—the presentation to President Vincent and Mrs. Vincent of a handsome set of silverware. The presentation speech was made by President-elect Farquhar, who expressed the hope that future generations of Vincents might look upon the gift with pride in the achievements of their illustrious ancestors. Mr. Vincent replied appreciatively, saying that he had tried to do what he could for the Society's welfare and expressed good wishes for the future.

Robert Craig and E. G. Hill followed with brief and, at times, humorous addresses and Mr. Farquhar closed this part of the proceedings with an urgent appeal for loyalty and activity in all departments of the work of the Society, emphasizing particularly the International Flower Show to be held in New York and the convention of 1913 in Minneapolis, Minn.

THE GAMES AT RAVINIA PARK.

The baseball game was a prime attraction. The "All Stars" beat the Chicagos by the close score of 11 to 10 in a 10-inning game.

Three-legged race—1st. Currie and Pollworth; 2nd. Perkins and Gornley.

High jump, 3½ feet to enter—Won by David Scott.

Hot stuff dash, 50 yards and return—1st. August Poehlmann; 2nd. Geo. Asmus.

Hop, skip and jump—Won by David Scott.

PRESENTATION TO SECRETARY YOUNG.

Amid the noise and confusion attending the disruption and removal of the trade exhibits, there was a little gathering of the exhibitors and other friends of the secretary and exhibition manager, John Young of New York. At a well conceived moment the secretary was seized, and amid cries suggesting force, was pushed or carried to a clear spot, where what appeared to be a "row" on the part of the exhibitors at once commenced. President Vincent appearing, the unfortunate victim was charged with all sorts of things. The president sought to pacify the crowd and heard in whispers the charges made against the secretary. "I am very sorry, Mr. Young," said Mr. Vincent, "to hear the charges made against you at this time, when the exhibition is over. I think it is a serious thing for a man to be suspected of having done things which have in great measure ended in the disruption of the exhibition at this date, and these good people evidently are determined that you should be watched, a determination with which I am entirely in accord; therefore it is my duty, in their behalf, to now "watch" you with this handsome gold watch in the hope that you may live long to wear it, and in wearing it think of those whose pleasure it is to remember your many acts of courtesy in your official and dual position at this convention."

Mr. Young, who was taken by surprise, in language somewhat feeble through his very palpable emotion, made suitable response amid much cheering.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

As briefly mentioned in our last issue, on Wednesday a number of the Chicago florists kept open house. Over 700 visited the Poehlmann Bros.' establishment at Morton Grove in two trains. An object of special interest was the new electric soil mixer just installed and which seemed able to perform wonders in its line. Poehlmann Bros. kept up their reputation as ideal entertainers by serving lunch at the Wayside Inn.

One hundred and forty accepted the invitation of E. C. Amling to visit their greenhouses and those of the other seven florists in Maywood. They met at the store, 70 E. Randolph street, and took the train to Maywood, where autos were waiting for them. Supper was served at Forest Park after an afternoon of genuine pleasure.

Frank Oechslein's plant range was daily the object of attraction. Being inside the city its convenient location made it possible for those to visit it who had never had an opportunity before and they were well repaid, for every plant was apparently dressed in its best for the convention week. As Mr. Oechslein served his apprenticeship in the east he was able to extend a welcome to many of the eastern growers, who were certainly surprised at the plant he has here.

Bassett & Washburn are building this year and therefore had little to offer, but two automobiles met the early trains at Hinsdale where the old plant is and after visiting it the party was taken to Gregg, the new site.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON FINAL RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, The Twentieth eighth Annual Convention now closing will, we believe, live in the annals of the Society as one of the most successful and enjoyable in the history of the organization, and desiring to recognize the efforts made to achieve these results, we therefore submit the following:

Be it Resolved, That the thanks of the Society are hereby extended to the officers and members of the Chicago Florists' Club for their lavish hospitality, the splendid efforts made for our comfort and pleasure and their untiring care of us while in their midst. We desire to couple with them, in this recognition, the men of the allied trades in Chicago who worked hand in hand with them.

Our special thanks are due to the Board of Park Commissioners for the great interest manifested in the exhibition, and their splendid display of plants which was such a feature.

We also desire that the thanks of the Society be extended to the various exhibitors and the advertisers in the souvenir album.

Our thanks are also due to the daily press of Chicago for the notices given of the Convention and Exhibition.

In closing, we wish to specially express our appreciation of, and tender our heartfelt thanks to, the ladies of Chicago and the Ladies' Society of American Florists for all they did to entertain the visiting ladies. We recognize that the work done by them was a potent factor in the social success of the gathering.

LADIES' SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

The annual meeting of the Ladies Society of American Florists was held on Wednesday morning, August 21st, the President, Mrs. J. W. Boone of Baltimore in the chair, Mrs. Chas. H.

Maynard in her place as Secretary. The usual order of business was despatched, the Secretary's report showing 261 members, including 34 new members taken in during the year. The report of the Treasurer showed between $500 and $600 in the treasury.

Officers elected at this meeting to serve for the ensuing year were the following: Mrs. F. H. Traendly, New York, President; Mrs. Chas. W. McKellar, Chicago, 1st Vice-President; Mrs. George Asmus, Chicago, 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa., Treasurer; Mrs. Chas. H. Maynard, Allen, Mich., Secretary.

An appropriation was voted, to be in effect annually hereafter, of $25 for first prize for ladies' bowling tournament.

At the ladies' reception Thursday evening, Mrs. A. M. Herr, in behalf of the society presented Mrs. J. W. Boone, retiring President, a beautiful brooch of 78 pearls and diamonds. Mrs. Chas. H. Maynard thanked the ladies on behalf of Mrs. Boone, who was suffering from severe throat trouble. Mrs. Maynard says "Entertainment tickets" were a perfect success.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY OF AMERICA.

This Society held a meeting on Thursday. Matters concerning the National Flower Show were discussed. It was decided that they ask the S. A. F. for its medals to be awarded at the National Flower Show under the auspices of the C. S. A.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

A meeting of the Rose Society was held on Thursday morning. The schedule of prizes in the cut flower section of the National Flower Show was under consideration. The Executive Board will meet in New York within the next ten days to complete the schedule.

AMERICAN SWEET PEA SOCIETY.

At the meeting of this Society on Thursday, President Sim urged members to make their plantings now so as to have cut stock in readiness for the National Flower Show. A big sweet pea display is assured for that event.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

The annual meeting was held Aug. 23, 9.30 A. M. A speech of welcome was made by President Vincent of the S. A. F. President Hendrickson read his annual address. Secretary Gage presented his minutes. E. H. Cushman reported for the judges, A. Cowee for the color chart committee, Prof. Beal for the nomenclature committee and Mr. Youell for the exhibition committee. It was voted on motion of B. Hammond Tracy that members of the society pay $1.00 for registering new varieties and non-members pay $2.

Officers were elected as follows:

President, I. S. Hendrickson, Floral Park, N. Y.; vice-president, Matthew Crawford, Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio; corresponding secretary, L. Merton Gage, Groton, Mass.; financial secretary, H. Youell (pending the decision of the Executive Committee in regard to abolishing this office); treasurer, Carl Cropp, Chicago, Ill. Executive Committee: Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y.; E. E. Stewart, Rives Junction, Mich.; Maurice Fuld, Philadelphia, Pa. Nomenclature Committee: Prof. Beal, Ithaca, N. Y.; Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y.; Leonard Joerg, Flowerfield, N. Y.

Prof. Whetzel of Cornell University gave a most interesting and instructive talk on the diseases of the gladiolus. A petition, to which a large number of signatures of growers were attached, calling for a change of the customs tariff on gladiolus bulbs, was read by Mr. Cowee.

List of Awards:

W. A. Burpee's prize—Best collection, 10 varieties, 3 spikes each; E. E. Stewart, Rives Junction, Mich.

Michell bronze medal for the best pink gladiolus at the exhibit, went to John Lewis Childs, Floral Park, N. Y., for variety "Panama."

Corresponding Secretary's Report.

A meeting of the executive committee of the American Gladiolus Society was held in New York City on December 6th, with the following members present: Arthur Cowee, E. W. Fenger, A. T. Boddington, I. S. Hendrickson.

The matter of a die and medals was discussed and it was finally decided to purchase a die and offer ten sets of medals the first year to as many local horticultural societies. It was thought best to offer a silver medal for the first prize, and bronze medal for second prize, the ten sets of medals to cost $70.00.

The matter of registration bureau was taken up, and it was decided to combine this committee with that of the nomenclature committee already established, with trial grounds at Ithaca, New York where all tests can be made. It was the sense of the meeting that certificates of merit should be awarded only by the nomenclature committee, and not by judges appointed for the annual exhibition.

Prize winners for best article on Gladioli, written for amateurs, Mrs. Francis King, Alma, Mich., first; Mrs. May B. Crane, Hammondsport, N. Y., second.

President Hendrickson appointed Mr. Cowee and Mr. Beal as members of the color chart committee.

I regret having to report the death of two of our members, Professor L. B. Judson, who was one of the little party of organizers at Boston, and W. H. Dunning of New York City who joined our ranks but recently.

Our New Medals.

The face or obverse side represents a spike of gladiolus flowers with "American Gladiolus Society" engraved around the rim. The reverse side is a simple wreath of gladiolus blooms, with space for engraving. The design is unique and original. The medal is made in sterling silver, colored silver gray, and is also made in bronze, and was designed and made by the Boston Badge Co., Boston, Mass. The medals will be given to the representative horticultural societies which will offer them, in their schedules, to be competed for by amateur exhibitors of gladiolus blooms at summer shows. The conditions require that the individual exhibits shall consist of fifteen named varieties, three spikes each, the same to be correctly labeled. The silver medal is for the first prize and the bronze medal for second prize. The following societies have been given sets of these medals for their summer exhibitions: Massachusetts Horticultural Society, Boston; Newport (R. I.) Horticultural Society; Southampton (L. I.) Horticultural Society; St. Catharines (Ont.) Horticultural Society; Pasadena (Cal.) Horticultural Society; Melrose (Mass.) Horticultural and Improvement Society; Worcester County Horticultural Society, Worcester, Mass., and Elberon Horticultural Society, Asbury Park, New Jersey.

I have received two letters from the secretary of the National Gladiolus Society and the two numbers of their National Hand Book and have sent them copies of all of our bulletins. The secretary, Mrs. Atkinson, writes that it is the earnest desire of the National Society to exchange views and co-operate with our society in straightening out the nomenclature.

The correspondence has been very large for the past year, and includes many letters soliciting new members which have brought quite satisfactory returns and I have fourteen to my credit. Ten more sent in by other members have been sent to me, besides some more that were sent to Mr. Youell direct.

I believe it would be a good idea to offer a prize to the one securing the largest number of new members for the coming year, and I will promise not to enter the contest because I think the secretary would have a little advantage in a contest of this kind.

As chairman of the Bulletin Committee I would say that there are members of our society that could give us a great deal of help in making it more readable and interesting, if they would only feel so inclined. We need items of interest and material for our question box, and any grower, the beginner as well as the grower of long experience, can often give us valuable suggestions.

Thanking those who have given us a helping hand and earnestly asking, like Oliver Twist, for more, I submit this report for your consideration.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

The American Carnation Society held a well attended meeting on Thursday morning. The schedule of the premiums for the National Flower Show was fully discussed and general plans outlined.

CONVENTION NOTES.

A correspondent suggests that Thursday, August 22, was "ground-hog" day in Chicago.

The Coliseum was perfectly adapted to the purpose of an exhibition hall but the room used for the meetings was the noisiest and most unsatisfactory the society has ever had.

Many souvenirs in the form of pencils, thermometers, knives, pocket-books, etc., were given away by exhibitors and will long serve as pleasant reminders of the occasion and the donors.

F. C. W. Brown had a good audience for his talk on floral decorative art and he was well entitled to it for his remarks on simplicity and the avoidance of overcrowding were decidedly to the point.

The splendid groups of decorative plants and masses of cannas and geraniums from the various parks of Chicago were strong attractions and added immensely to the general effect of the great exhibition hall.

The Hitchings & Co. exhibit of greenhouse construction and heating was installed and in charge of J. MacArthur and the Lord & Burnham exhibit was staged under the direction of George Sykes, manager of their Chicago office.

Farquhar and Wirth are a great team to look forward to for 1913. Mark it down as certain that the New York Flower Show and the Minneapolis Convention, under such leadership will leave a shining record on the pages of S. A. F. history.

The daily lunch in the basement was a feature admirably carried out and, in this instance, was greatly appreciated by the visitors. The exhibitors were especially benefited by this generous provision as it helped to keep customers in the building and was a great convenience to them in many ways.

E. G. Hill's suggestion that the S. A. F. purchase a big exhibition tent to be used when hall rents are too high is not without merit. Mr. Hill can speak from his experience abroad last spring and we should like to hear more of it. It has much more to commend it than anything thus far presented regarding a "home."

August Poehlmann's words in advocacy of harmony and fraternal agreement, "each for all and all for each," at the close of the visit to his establishment at Morton Grove, were full of noble sentiment and well worth remembering. Personalities and acrimony discord make for disintegration and men who foster such are among the worst enemies of any organization. Happily, the S. A. F. is probably as free from this blight as any society in existence. May it so continue.

REPORT OF THE ENTOMOLOGIST.

This valuable report by Prof. Thos. B. Symons is too lengthy to present in full at this time but we shall hope to find room for it all in succeeding issues. In his introduction Prof. Symons said:

There is no doubt that the phase of Entomology relating particularly to the insect pests that are troublesome to the florist and ornamental horticulturist has not been given the attention that the industry represented demands. In no State institution with which I am familiar is there provision for one man's time devoted to the study and control of these pests, notwithstanding the industry in many individual states alone would more than justify the employment of men to devote their whole time to the study of insect and disease problems of the florist.

As a member of the Committee of American Association of Official Horticultural Inspectors on National Legislation, I have kept in close touch with the movement to secure an adequate national inspection bill which will serve to protect all horticultural interests from new insect and disease pests, and at the same time will not work a hardship upon any particular industry. We hope to secure the passage of this bill by the Congress now in session.

I also desire to say that it will be my pleasure to serve any or all the members of this Association in identifying insects or giving information for their control, as occasion arises.

Then followed detailed descriptions of and remedies for the following: The Greenhouse Orthenia, Short-Tailed Mealy Bug, Long-Tailed Mealy Bug, Hemispherical Scale, Soft Brown Scale, Olive Scale, Long Scale, Olean-der Scale, Enonymus Scale, Circular Scale, Miscellaneous Scale. Approved remedies and their application were then given.

THEODORE WIRTH.

A regrettable incident in connection with our partial report of the Chicago convention in our issue of last week was the omission, through a careless blunder of the Western Union in transmitting telegram, of the name of the gentleman elected to serve as vice-president for 1913—Mr. Theodore Wirth of Minneapolis. Mr. Wirth's nomination and election were unanimous and we know he will by his splendid ability and efficiency in that important office fully justify the confidence so well demonstrated in this action by the society.

THEODORE WIRTH.

Vice-President Elect Society of American Florists.

REPORT OF A. L. MILLER, STATE VICE-PRESIDENT FOR NEW YORK.

As State Vice-President, New York East, including New York city and vicinity, I find, in investigating, that there is an increase in all branches of the business. The greenhouse constructors, pot manufacturers, seedsmen, supply men and the importers, all report an increase over last year. The store men also report a good season—Easter trade being exceptionally good.

There has been considerable greenhouse building in the commercial line but not so much private construction. On Long Island quite an amount of glass has been erected for growing carnations and sweet peas, and a more limited amount for growing general stock. As the land is getting too valuable and the taxes too high in Greater New York, the glass is gradually decreasing, the growers moving beyond the city line.

The greenhouse constructors inform me that, at the present time, it is impossible for them to take any more contracts for immediate delivery. The demand, they say, has been mostly for large modern houses for the growing of carnations, sweet peas and vegetables all over the country, especially in the middle west. The pot manufacturers report an increase of over 25 per cent. above last year. The importers report that there has been 20 per cent. more orders placed with them this year for azaleas, for small to medium sized plants; they also report that on account of the dry season in Germany, first-size valley pips are over-sold and will be scarce, and that Lillium formosum and Roman hyacinth crops are short.

Last winter the cut flower growers complained about the low prices, especially for orchids and gardenias, the price being the lowest in the history of the New York market; the rose growers also complained very much. Easter plants sold well and were in great demand. The carnation growers have now completed housing their plants, which have not made much growth in the field.

An important event in the florist trade in New York State was the organization, pursuant to a call issued by the New York Florists' Club, of the New York State Federation of Floral Clubs, at Cornell University, on February 23rd, last. Delegates from a number of clubs and horticultural societies met on that date, formed the organization, and adopted a constitution and by-laws, the objects of the federation being to promote in all possible ways the art of floriculture, ornamental horticulture, and gardening under glass, including educational and civic improvement benefits arising therefrom, among the people of the State of New York. Each club or society in the state has the right to appoint or elect one delegate for each twenty-five members in good standing. The treasurer of the S. A. F. and O. H., W. F. Kasting, was elected president, and our secretary, John Young, was elected secretary of the new organization. Resolutions were passed during the meeting pledging the support of the organization in an effort to secure a state appropriation of $75,000 for erecting greenhouses for experimental work in floriculture at Cornell University. The federation is to hold its meeting during the week of the State Fair at Syracuse. It will thus be seen that the trade in our state is now organized and the organization is expected to become an important factor in the obtaining of state aid in the development and advancement of horticulture within the state.

The National Flower Show is the great topic and we are striving to make this the greatest show in the history of the country. Chas. H. Totty and his committee will leave nothing undone that will help to make this a grand success, the New York Florists' Club assisting with all its power. The National Flower Show, taking place in New York City, will give us the opportunity of inducing a great many to become members. We certainly hope to have all the members of the S. A. F. and O. H. give us the pleasure of meeting them in New York city next spring.

In conclusion I am glad to be able to say that our state heads the list with 234 members, 54 more than any other state.

VEGETABLE GROWERS' ASSOCIATION.

At the fifth annual meeting of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, at Rochester, September 4th, 5th and 6th, a somewhat different plan from that of previous years has been adopted. Each session is to be devoted to a single general topic, with papers by eminent authorities on its different phases. The general topics of discussion are crop rotation, plant breeding, soil fertility, greenhouse problems, and cooperation, all treated from the standpoint of the vegetable man.

Dr. H. J. Webber of Cornell University, who is to open the discussion on plant breeding, has been a leader in the advancement of scientific plant breeding both in the college world and in the field. The second part of the period will be occupied by O. G. Bishop of Pontiac, Michigan. The discussions of the soil fertility session will be led by Dr. C. E. Thorne, Director of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, and Prof. E. O. Fippin of Cornell University. Prof. R. L. Watts of the Pennsylvania State College, Prof. T. C. Johnson of the Virginia Truck Experiment Station, and Mr. H. F. Thompson of Massachusetts, are to deal with the questions of crop rotation. Greenhouse building will be taken up by Prof. W. J. Wright of Alfred University, New York, and soil sterilization by Mr. Chauncey West of Irondequoit, New York. Mr. C. R. White, president of the New York State Vegetable Growers' Association, will speak at the closing session on cooperation.

The sessions of the Association are to be held in Convention Hall, Rochester. Headquarters have been opened at the Powers Hotel, where the annual banquet will be held on Thursday evening.

The Munroe County Market Gardeners' Association, are planning for a splendid exhibit of local products by many of the leading manufacturers of supplies for vegetable producers.

Complete programs of this meeting may be secured by writing to S. W. Severance, 508 Walker Building, Louisville, Kentucky, or to Paul Work, College of Agriculture, Ithaca, New York.

CONNECTICUT HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

On the 23rd inst., business meetings were resumed. Efforts this autumn are to be concentrated upon the Dahlia Exhibition at Unity Hall, Hartford, September 19-20. The Chrysanthemum Exhibition in November will, this season, be omitted.

Special prizes have been liberally offered for the Dahlia Exhibition, among which are the following:

By H. L. Metcalfe, Hartford, $2 for largest dahlia bloom. 1st prize $1.25, 2nd 75c.

By a member (anonymous), for 6 vases of gladioli, 6 blooms each, distinct varieties, 1st $3, 2nd $2.

By Thomas J. Grey Company, Boston, for collection of dahlia blooms, 12 distinct varieties, one bloom each. 1st $3, 2nd $2.

By C. H. Sierman, Hartford, for exhibit of dahlias in pots not exceeding 10 inches in diameter. 1st $6, 2nd $4.

By Joseph Breck & Sons' Corp., Boston, for collection of asters, 50 blooms of each variety. 1st $6, 2nd $4.

By Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, silver cup for collective exhibit of greatest merit. This prize is intended for the individual having the best all-around exhibit, quality and quantity both considered.

By Arthur T. Boddington, New York, for collection of vegetables, to be judged by the scale of points in use by the Lenox Horticultural Society. 1st $12, 2nd $8, 3rd $5.

Vice-President J. Alfred Weber, of Hartford, will again have charge of the immense floricultural exhibit at the Connecticut Fair, at Charter Oak Park, which opens on Labor Day, September 2nd, with ex-President Roosevelt as one of the attractions.

Our Society has just suffered the loss of a valued and honored life member, in the sudden decease of Stephen Delbar, of Hartford, who dropped dead on Monday last, after a long and useful life. He was a lover of horticulture, and a member of the former organizations out of which our present Society evolved.

GEORGE W. SMITH, Secretary.
Melrose, Conn., August 27, 1912.

NEWPORT HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

After a suspension of regular meetings for two months this Society held a business meeting on the evening of August 27th. The main business was the arrangements necessary for the fall show, which is dated for September 14, 15 and 16, and also for the annual ball which is to be held on the evening following the close of the show. The schedule for this show is a particularly attractive one, including many special prizes for plants, flowers, fruit and vegetables, with the usual table decorations on the third day. From present indications the exhibits will be numerous and a better attendance of visitors than usual is expected.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

There will be an exhibition of Gladioli, Montbretias and other summer blooms, in the Museum Building of the N. Y. Botanical Garden on Saturday, Aug. 31, and Sunday, Sept. 1, under the auspices of the Horticultural Society of New York.

E. J. Shaylor of Wellesley Farms,

Mass., will give a talk before the New Bedford Horticultural Society, in Library Hall, New Bedford, Mass., on the evening of September 6th, at 8 P. M. Subject, "Paeonies."

WM. F. TURNER,
Chairman Com.

The September meeting of the Florists' Club of Washington is scheduled for Tuesday evening next. On September 5 the club will hold a field day at the Chain Bridge-Potomac Heights reservation. Here will be run off the various games and athletic events which had been postponed from the outing held in July. Glen Echo and Cabin John Bridge cars pass the park.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

Mrs. E. C. Mayberry is spending several weeks at Meadows, Md., visiting relatives.

E. C. Mayberry has returned from a very pleasant fishing trip with W. W. Kimmel at Blackstone's Island.

O. A. C. Oehmler, with Gude Bros., is finishing up a vacation at his cottage at Colonial Beach, Va. Walter Hawley, with the same firm is in Boston, Mass.

The family of Adolphus Gude are spending August at Atlantic City as are the Misses Amelia and Louise Gude, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Gude, who are registered at the Hotel Strand with Mrs. Catherine Loefler.

CINCINNATI PERSONALS.

Wm. Gear went to the Chenoux Islands from the Chicago convention.

C. E. Critchell is spending a month in Canada in the St. Lawrence region, and in Michigan.

Visitors: Harry Papworth, New Orleans; Jas. P. Keller and John Keller, Lexington, Ky., and Harry Gravo, Dallas, Texas.

Some New Roses.

A batch of meritorious new roses has charmed the enthusiasts at the shows this season. The gold-medal roses at the National show were Mrs. Andrew Carnegie and Old Gold. The first named, shown by Cocker & Sons, of Aberdeen, is a seedling from Frau Karl Druschki crossed with Niphetos. It is a handsome bloom of pale lemon white. Old Gold, raised by S. McGredy & Son, Newtonards, Ireland, is of scarlet orange. Messrs. McGredy & Son have another splendid novelty in Mrs. Edith Part, which has been aptly described as having something of the tint of a highly-colored Beaute Inconstante blended with Lady Pirrie. The same firm are showing Lady Mary Ward, a deep orange, and Mrs. Fred Vanderbilt, of a pleasing hue. Hugh Dickson, Belfast, Ireland, has some sterling new introductions in Mrs. C. D. Hunting, William Cooper and Mrs. R. D. McClure. Queen Mary, from A. Dickson & Sons, Newtonards, Ireland, bears a resemblance to the old rose Luciole. Sunburst is another useful addition to M. Pernet-Ducher's long list of excellent varieties. Moonlight, pale creamy white, is a perpetual-flowering moschata rose raised by the Rev. J. Pemberton, who also has an attractive pink variety Dinah. These few selections by no means exhaust the list of the good things which will be welcomed by the large and increasing army of rosarians.

The Sweet Pea Show.

The remarkable development which has taken place in the form, size, and color of the sweet pea was fully demonstrated at the National Society's show at the Royal Horticultural Society's hall in London, on July 9th—the same day as the rose show. The gallery at the end of the hall was radiant with a lavish embellishment of sweet peas, whilst the floor was completely filled with a kaleidoscopic assortment. The trade groups were triumphs of successful culture; the decorative classes afforded instructive hints for the effective use of the blooms for floral adornment. W. J. Unwin, who has raised some of the best known varieties, received a gold medal for a magnificent group. The new introductions included Walter P. Wright, light lavender; Leslie Imber, a pleasing shade of blue; Winifred Unwin, light blue, and Cyril Unwin, maroon shaded violet. Dobbie & Co., also received a gold medal for a meritorious display. Very striking were Dobbie's Scarlet; Decorator, old rose with a shade of terra cotta; Brunetta, deep mahogany; Lady Miller, apricot on cream suffused with pink, and Marks Tey, a handsome bicolor. The Burpee cup was won by W. E. Alsen, of Denmead, Hants. A dinner was given to the judges and committee, this being attended by visitors from Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and the United States.

JAPANESE GARDEN ARCHITECTURE.

The Elm City Nurseries at New Haven, Conn., have arranged a collection of Japanese dwarf trees and shrubs, old stone lanterns, etc., in a model Japanese garden, which is a great attraction for visitors. Our illustration shows a view in this garden, which is probably as fine as anything of its kind in the United States.

INSECTS IN RELATION TO THE DYING OF THE CHESTNUT TREES.

The importance of having the best information that can be secured on the subject of insects in their relation to the chestnut led the Secretary of Agriculture to project an extensive investigation through the Branch of Forest Insects of the Bureau of Entomology.

General investigations since 1893 have shown that more than 450 species of insects inhabit the chestnut. While all of these are not destructive, some are especially so. One, the so-called two-lined chestnut borer, is directly responsible for the death of more timber, perhaps, than all the others combined. This is a small, elongate beetle which flies in May and June and deposits eggs on the bark of living and dying chestnuts, oak, beech, and ironwood in the Southern, Middle, and Eastern states. The elongate, slender larvae mine in the inner bark and outer wood in such a manner as to girdle the trees. When they attain their full growth they transform to the adult stage in the outer wood, or bark, to emerge the following spring and repeat the process. Investigations have shown that it can be controlled by disposing of the infested trees in such a manner as to destroy the bark on the main trunks during the fall and winter months.

The extensive dying of the chestnut in the Southern states during the last century, where the chestnut blight disease was not known to occur, together with extensive investigations in this region, indicate that there are a number of agencies of destruction which must be investigated before the problem of protecting the chestnut can be solved.

In some sections of the South where more than fifty years ago the chestnut trees were abundant, very few are present to-day. Observations by Dr. A. D. Hopkins, in charge of Forest insect Investigations, during the past twenty years in the Appalachians show a widespread death of both chestnut and chinquapin during the period.

Holliston, Mass.—The Eastern Nurseries are to build, in addition to the greenhouses reported in the last issue of HORTICULTURE, a packing shed 21½ x 65, a fumigating house 12 x 18, and an office 24 x 30, 1½ stories. A new water supply system is to be installed also.

BILL and VAN

(With their aides and abettors)

Have just returned from Chicago with "THE RECORD" for largest total of orders ever taken at any convention of the S. A. F., and the "Craig Quality" has been represented at each one of these annual events for the past 25 years and over. Showing that

The CRAIG "MONEY BRINGERS"

THE VICK CONSOLIDATION.

Final steps in the consolidation of James Vick's Sons, The Vick Seed Co., and the Vick & Hill Co., of Rochester, N. Y., were recently taken. This completes one of the most important movements of this character in the seed business in recent years. For the purpose of effecting the various transfers, the Vick & Dildine Co. was organized earlier in the year as a corporation under the laws of New York, with a capital stock of $150,000. The officers of this company are: F. W. Vick, president; Dr. H. W. Allen, vice-president; Hon. H. F. Remington, secretary, and W. H. Dildine, treasurer and general manager.

It is expected that each of the subsidiary concerns will continue practically the same as heretofore, but their union will mean the elimination of much expense and will strengthen every department. All of the men actively connected with the business as reorganized have been occupying responsible positions in one concern or the other for many years and are familiar with the various phases of the seed, plant and bulb business.

The officers of the subsidiary concerns are as follows: James Vick's Sons: Chas. H. Vick, president; Hon. H. F. Remington, secretary, and W. H. Dildine, treasurer. Vick & Hill Co.: F. W. Vick, president; Albert F. Vick, vice-president, and W. H. Dildine, treasurer. Vick Seed Co.: Chas. H. Vick, president; Geo. Arnold, secretary, and W. H. Dildine, treasurer.

Chas. H. Vick is the only son of James Vick, the founder, now remaining in the business. He has been connected with the house all his life. Besides his connection with the business of the firm Mr. Vick gives a good deal of thought to the success of other horticultural interests. To him is largely due the credit for the splendid success of the Rochester flower shows. He was chairman of the general committee for the two previous shows and is acting in the same capacity for the coming one. This season he was urged to accept the position as superintendent of the horticultural department of the New York State Fair at Syracuse. He has thrown into this work his characteristic energy, enthusiasm and artistic temperament with the result that he had secured the support of the various Park Boards of Rochester, Buffalo, New York and other cities and of several commercial horticultural interests. The display in 1912 promises to surpass anything hitherto.

Fred W. Vick, nephew of James Vick, has long been prominent in seed and plant interests. For many years he was in charge of the entire plant and bulb department of James Vick. Later, as president of the Vick & Hill Co., he established an independent business, closely affiliated with the house of James Vick's Sons. For a number of consecutive years he was president of the Rochester Florists' Association. He has been vice-president of the S. A. F. and O. H. As president of the Vick & Hill Co., he will continue to have control of the plant and bulb interests of the affiliated concerns.

Albert F. Vick is a son of Fred W. Vick and has been connected with his father's business since he was a boy. Probably most of our readers who attended the National Convention at Rochester, will remember him, since he was chairman of the sports committee at that time. He is captain of the bowling team of the Rochester Florists' Association and is a very popular young man.

W. H. Dildine began his experience in the seed business as traveling salesman for Mandeville & King Co., in whose interest he traveled through most of the eastern states at different times during his vacations of his preparatory and college course. Immediately after graduating from the University of Rochester he went into the office of Mandeville & King Co. as superintendent of agents, which position he has held for ten years. Because of the close association of Mandeville & King Co. and James Vick's Sons, Mr. Dildine was placed in charge of one department after another of James Vick's Sons until at the present time he is business manager of the entire concern. It was through Mr. Dildine's efforts that the present consolidation was effected and the business financially strengthened. Mr. Dildine has the confidence of the business community in Rochester, and with his marked ability and energy his business associates predict for him a brilliant career.

Mr. Arnold has been for a number of years connected with the Vick interests, principally as farm superintendent. Mr. Arnold is a former student of Cornell University and a man of wide experience in scientific gardening and field work. Under his supervision the products of the Vick seed farms have rapidly grown in importance and to him is due a large part of the success the concern has attained in the development and culture of asters.

TWO IMPORTANT NEW COMMERCIAL FERNS

Cyrtomium Rochfordianum

THE CRESTED HOLLY FERN

The Most Valuable Decorative Fern of Recent Introduction

A most important addition to our list of Ferns. Its foliage is of a rich, deep, glossy green color, the pinnae or leaflets besides being wavy or undulated are also deeply cut or toothed, giving the plant a graceful light appearance, which make it valuable not only as a dish Fern but decorative work and for apartment use.

2 1/4 inch pots, 75 cts. per dozen; $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000. Also a limited lot of flats of about 200 plants each, at $3.00 per flat.

Adiantum Farleyense Gloriosa

THE GLORY FERN or RUHM VON MORDRECHT

The Fern Which Will Revolutionize the Cut Frond Business.

For the grower of Ferns for cutting this new Maiden Hair will undoubtedly prove a most important addition; it closely resembles Adiantum Farleyense and will make a splendid substitute for that fancy variety and it can be produced at much less cost, as it will thrive under conditions in which Adiantum Farleyense could not exist.

At our Riverview Nursery we have given it a very fair trial for this purpose during the past winter. A block of these plants were planted on a bench in a house devoted to the ordinary Boston Fern and received the ordinary treatment and temperature given to the Nephrolepis, and under this treatment they developed not only fronds of great beauty on longer, stiffer stems than Farleyense produces, but also many more fronds than would be developed by that variety in the same length of time under the most favorable condition.

such as Cuneatum, Croweanum and Hybridum, can

Anyone who successfully grows the ordinary varieties of Adiantum grow it under precisely the same conditions given to these sorts.

We have a fine block of about 30,000 young plants coming on which will be ready to send out in September from 2 1/4-inch pots, and for which we are now booking orders at $2.00 per doz.; $15.00 per 100; $140.00 per 1000.

FERNS IN FLATS

These flats contain about two hundred plants each, only one variety in a flat, and we cannot supply less than a full flat of any one of the following varieties:

ASPIDIUM TSUSSIMENSE
CYRTOMIUM FALCATUM
CYRTOMIUM FORTUNEI
POLYSTICHUM SETOSUM
PTERIS ADIANTOIDES

PTERIS ALBA LINEATA

been located for twelve years. The offices and warehouses were recently removed to a more modern and convenient building at the corner of State and Platt streets, which is said to be one of the finest factory buildings between Boston and Chicago.

The increased demand for flower and vegetable seeds of the various kinds in the growing of which the Vick concerns have specialized, has made it necessary for them to secure more land for that purpose. The accompanying picture taken on the new place this spring shows a part of the farm force setting out aster plants. If only a fairly good harvest of aster seed is secured this fall from the fifty acres of plants now in the field, it ought to furnish seed to grow plants sufficient to set a border of asters on every state line in the United States, since it is estimated that it would grow a single row of asters over 35,000 miles long. The picture represents only a part of the field force. The GREAT EXHIBITION OF ROSES AT BOSKOOP, 1913.

In the month of July, 1913, a great Exhibition of Roses will be held at Boskoop by the well-known society, Bursary of Trees and Plants." This society can count on the support of nearly all the inhabitants of Boskoop, since the great Exhibition of flowers in 1911 had such an enormous success, although it had been brought about by only fifty participants. Mr. Y. H. van Nes, then president of the exhibition will now, supported by the best forces of the village, accept the presidency, which guarantees a success.

To give an idea of what the exhibition will comprise we mention that of roses in pots alone already more than 30,000 pots have been promised. The schedule of prizes lists nearly 400 classes. A. van Kleef, Boskoop, Holland, is secretary.

Boddington's "Quality" Christmas-Flowering

SWEET PEAS

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

All true stocks of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas will be scarce this season. Some varieties are a total failure owing to the exceptional season in California this Spring. Our advice to intending planters is to order at once. Mr. Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., the great Winter Sweet Pea Specialist, sows our seed almost exclusively.

Our stock of Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas have stood the test for years, and we can refer you to the largest growers of this increasingly popular flower, as to the trueness and quality of our seed, earliest of blooming period and strength and habit of plants.

The following varieties are the "best by test" and include Zvolanek's and our own introductions, grown for seed from selected stocks by the leading California grower and specialist in Sweet Peas.

Our output last year was nearly 3000 lbs. Few kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and trueness to type.

WILLIAM ELLIOTT & SONS
42 VESEY STREET, NEW YORK

PERSONAL.

W. J. Smart, of A. T. Boddington's, New York, goes on a two weeks' vacation this week.

Phil Kessler, the hustling New York wholesale florist, is taking his vacation in the Adirondacks.

Ernest Ludwig has given up his position as foreman at the Burbank Seed Farms, Elmhurst, Calif.

Mr. Reidel, of Badgley, Reidel & Meyer, New York City, is on an extended vacation tour. He intends to visit some of our Canadian friends.

H. E. Bates, long identified with the King Construction Co., and Victor Morgan, who has been on the road for Bobbink & Atkins for many years, have accepted positions with the Lord & Burnham Company in New York.

Ernest Townsend, formerly gardener at the Henry C. Pierce estate at Pride's Crossing, Mass., is now gardener for Mrs. Lathrop Brown, West Manchester. He succeeds Wm. Swan, who is now superintendent for Mrs. Levi Z. Leiter, Beverly Farms.

George H. Penson of Somerville, N. J., well known to the readers of HORTICULTURE through his instructive contributions on Fruit and Vegetables Under Glass, sailed for England on the Lusitania, August 28. He is booked to return on the Carmania from Liverpool on September 21, bringing with him a fair English flower which he will introduce to America under a new name. Another case of "renaming!" We wish them long life and happiness.

Boston visitors: David Rust, Phila.; Wm. Anderson, South Lancaster, Mass.; George McClure, Jr., Buffalo; A. E. Thatcher, Bar Harbor, Me.

PTERIS PARKERII.

This is a new fern, vigorous habit and with bright olive green fronds. It is a sport from the well-known Pteris cretica major, but is greatly superior to that variety in every way.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

The returned prodigals from the Chicago convention have nothing but good words about their reception at the hands of the brethren in the great western metropolis. There are many comical incidents being related but nothing reflecting on the good will and hospitality of their hosts. The latch string seems to have been out everywhere judging from the private firms and individuals who threw everything to the winds and devoted their resources unreservedly to giving every visitor they could reach "a good time."

Among those who are most loud in their praises is our "commodore," John Westcott. He had a splendid time and was much pleased that his good friend, John Farquhar, got the presidency.

Another distinguished delegate who has a good word to say is the president of our Florists' Club, J. Otto Thilow, who said that one of the most delightful experiences of his trip was his meeting with Will Currie of Milwaukee. To say that he, Currie, was a most charming man seems limber and Frenchified. To say he was a friendly and jolly spirit unexpectedly met in the desert with manna and honey and the water of Moses when he struck the rock, in his hands, comes a little nearer to it; but the real effulgence that emanates from this unique Scot is really impossible of description. No man can describe or account for the magnetism; but we all feel it. What the writer thinks about Currie was well put by Andrew Carnegie once: "He's a pawky chiel" and no one but a Scot will ever be able to sense that expression.

When "Young Fred" Michell started to tell us about it all the adjectives came so thick and fast we had to guess at them. But one thing seemed clear: events so crowded themselves on him that it will take at least six months to get a consecutive narrative. An interviewer has rights. He can't make a story out of a perpetual chuckle.

B. Eschner, of M. Rice & Co., was all wreathed in smiles when yours truly called on him this week, still busy taking care of the largest business ever transacted by this house at a convention. Mr. E. has been the recipient of numerous congratulations on the splendid exhibit of florists' supplies and ribbons at Chicago.

"They may all talk as they please," said Duncan Macaw of Craig's, after his return from Chicago, "but certainly nothing in sight could touch us in cyclamen, Lorraine begonias, or any of our specialties. Orders came thick and fast and many went away that we could not wait on." But the mails are still open, the Craig Quality is still unimpaired and the Honorable Robert wears that same smile of welcome and can show the goods to all callers.

The horticultural trade of America owes far more than is at present appreciated to W. Atlee Burpee and his colleagues in their struggle for fair play with the postal authorities at Washington the past three months. The good news that they have won out and that there is to be no change in the eight cents per pound rate we have so long enjoyed, is most glorious, welcome and glad some. There is not the slightest doubt that if it had not been for the magnificent fight put up by Burpee and his committee Congress would have—unwittingly perhaps, but none the less surely—done irreparable injury to the mightiest agency for the uplift and advancement of the country, the horticultural bodies, who are far more than mere business interests, who are, moreover, the pioneers of the aim we all have at heart—to make the wilderness blossom as the rose. To put a brake on that proposition would forever condemn Uncle Sam as a hopeless reactionary.

And while we think of it, let us not forget that other wonderful personality who first got us the eight cent rate—as against other merchandise at sixteen cents, many years ago. Under the magnetism of a committee of the S. A. F., headed by Patrick O'Mara of Peter Henderson & Co., of New York City, that great boon of eight cents a pound was granted and no man can tell the wonderful things that the concession has produced in these succeeding years.

We hail Burpee; we hail O'Mara; and we hail the S. A. F. who were behind Patrick O'Mara, and are now behind Burpee.

John Duncan, now of Spokane, Wash., informs us that the climate out there has been a revelation to him. Hot as here during the day but two blankets at night. Lots of timber land yet—Pinus ponderosa, Abies Douglasi, and such. The fruit growers, the wheat growers, and in fact all along the line of farming—no better anywhere. Sweet peas—stems two feet long and six and seven flowers. Mr. Duncan thinks the eagle eyes of Burpee and the rest of our great seedsmen are on the blink as yet about this latitude and Northern Idaho.

A. Zirkman of M. Rice & Co., is in town this week after a long successful trip to the coast and having just finished a strenuous week at the Chicago Convention.

Visitors: John A. Beck, Milton Pa.; Robt. L. Smith and S. G. Barnes of the Flower Shop, Pittsfield, Mass.; H. L. Holmes, Harrisburg, Pa.; Sidney Hoffman, Boston, Mass.

PROVIDENCE NOTES.

Theodore R. Peterson of Benefit St., has gone to Morristown, N. J. for his vacation.

William Cohen with William Hoffman, has returned from a two weeks' vacation at Newport.

Samuel Reswick, a clerk in the store of Joseph Kopelman, is back from a vacation at Cape Cod.

Charles Johnston, who has been ill for a long time, is reported this week as being slightly better.

N. D. Pierce, of Norwood, who submitted to an operation at a private hospital in this city on August 23, is reported as resting comfortably.

Joseph Kopelman has made extensive repairs at his store on Washington street. The arrangement of the furnishings has been changed so that the store makes a much better appearance and gives additional room.

Robert Johnston, Prof. H. J. Wheeler and Eugene McCarron, the special committee in charge of meetings, have something interesting for the next meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners Club on September 16.

Horseshoe Brand Lily Bulbs

The crops of all early forcing lily bulbs of good quality are very short this year, owing to a lack of rain at the proper time. At such times many bulbs of inferior quality find a ready sale in the market. Those who want good lily bulbs should therefore not delay a day in placing their orders. The following are the revised prices for Horseshoe Brand bulbs, the best produced in the World. Immediate delivery.

Not How Cheap
But How Good

John I. Lindblom, familiarly known to the trade as "Long John," for the past six years foreman of the houses of Miss Florence A. Miss Willard's specialty is ferns and orchids. Both men are experts in this branch of the trade.

Boston, Mass.—A new plan to increase the usefulness of the parks to the people has been put in operation by Superintendent Shea. Auto phaetons have been provided in which for the sum of ten cents a six or seven-mile ride through Franklin Park and adjoining reservations may be enjoyed and many parts hitherto almost inaccessible except with carriages are thus brought within reach of the general public.

Henry Eckford's £1000 sweet pea competition took place at Wem, Eng., on the 18th of July. In the five classes the money was awarded in the following manner: Three first prizes of £200 each, two of £100 each and 200 consolation prizes of £1 each. The competition was very keen, the entries numbering close on 3,000.

Not from Winstead but from Atchison comes this story. A Kansas man planted lettuce, but as fast as it came up through the ground the English sparrows ate it off. He finally got a few small flags and stuck them in the lettuce bed and not an English sparrow or other foreign bird touched that lettuce so long as Old Glory floated over it.—Boston Transcript.

CHILDREN'S EXHIBITION AT BOSTON.

It will be children's day at Horticultural Hall, Boston, Saturday, Aug. 31, when the annual exhibition of the products of children's gardens will be held. Liberal prizes are offered for plants, flowers and vegetables grown in school gardens and in home gardens, and also for native flowers, berries, leaves and grasses. The competition is open to all school gardens and to all children in Massachusetts, under the age of 18 years. In compliance with a recent act of the Legislature the sum of $200 is offered at this exhibition to be distributed in premiums for the encouragement of agriculture among the children of the state.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society is a pioneer in the work of interesting the children in gardening and for 34 years has carried on in some form an annual exhibition for the purpose of stimulating and encouraging this interest.

The exhibition is free and will be open Saturday from 12 M. to 6 P. M. and Sunday from 2 to 6 P. M.

GIANT PANSY SEED

Must not be compared with the flimsy Trimardeau

It is much larger and of good substance; the immense flowers, of 3½ to 4 inches, are of perfect form, and every tint and shade is produced in striking combinations and endless variations of beautiful colors and markings. The Stock Plants are most critically selected. It is rich with shades of brown, bronze, red, mahogany, and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures. Flower Market Reports

BOSTON Business has fallen off badly this week. Regular orders for seashore resorts are being reduced or discontinued earlier than has been the case heretofore, and there are evidences that the special summer trade is approaching the end. Asters are plentiful and good—much too good for the very meagre price realized by even the best of them. American Beauty roses are plentiful and selling as well as at the same date in any former year. Other roses run small as a general thing, but there are some very nice lots occasionally. Sales are rather sluggish. As to gladioli, there are plenty of them and they are of nice quality; but nobody seems to want them. There are no good sweet peas in the market and they are about through for this season.

There is very little to BUFFALO report. Growers are busy replanting carnations and there are not many cut blooms seen at present. Asters of good quality are not overplentiful but another week should see them both in quality and quantity. Too many gladioli and sales have not been flourishing. Roses are coming in more plentifully each day. Lilies and other stock in good supply.

Business is very dull CHICAGO and August closes with many more flowers than can be disposed of to advantage, and stock has piled up. The opening of schools next week will bring the people back to the city and a stir in trade is looked for. The one flower most in evidence and perhaps least sought for is the gladiolus. Counters are full of stock, which will be moved only to the barrels, and to be entirely just one can but say that there is where it belongs. If only good varieties were bought that can lay claim to beauty, money could be made in growing this flower, but the price is kept down and demand ruined by poor off-colored stock. New American Beauties are now to be had in extra as well as in short lengths. The summer roses, Melody, Ward, Sunburst, My Maryland and Kaiserin are all in crop and of excellent quality, Sunburst leading the demand. Asters are at their height and the better grades move rather slowly even at a low figure, while the poorer ones are worthless. Some very fair carnations from old plants are offered and the usual outdoor summer flowers are to be had. Chrysanthemums are already here, but there is no demand.

The usual summer dullness prevails. The situation is probably even worse now than it was early in July. No life to the market in any direction. We are probably in for this state of things for two or three weeks yet. There has been a vast improvement in the quality of the aster cut during the week and these are now something like what they should be. Gladioli are still plentiful and high grade. If anything can be called a best seller at present, the new crop American Beauty roses deserve the title. These are exceptionally plentiful and good, and all things considered, sell well. There has also been a marked improvement in Mrs. Aaron Ward, Mrs. Taft and Killarney, new crops of all of these having now commenced. While My Maryland is still good and is a great summer rose the buyers for some reason prefer Killarney as soon as it can be had good. Carnations remain about the same. Some of the growers who have taken special care of their old beds are still sending in some pretty good flowers.

Orchids very scarce. Some mornings it's a hard job to fill an order for even a dozen cattleyas at any price. Gardenias are of excellent quality with demand very sluggish and the price at the lowest notch it has reached this year. There are lots of hydrangea heads and other outdoor flowers to be seen around but there is little use sending these to town the way business is at present. Same may be said of dahlias. No sense in cutting many of these yet except on special orders.

There has been practically nothing doing on the market this week, except perhaps grumbling. The supply of all stocks has been enormous, for which there is no outlet. Heavy rains have been experienced around here during the last few days, which must affect the supply of outdoor stocks. We are having the finest of lilies. Asters continue good; dahlias, too, and American Beauties finer than have been seen for a long time. Taft, Hillingdon and Sunburst are improving in quality, and it is a pity one cannot write the same of the price.

Conditions have changed but little since last report. There is plenty of stock of extra good quality, and especially so in roses, the best novelties being Killarney, Richmond and Maryland. Gladioli and tuberose are coming in heavy with slow demand. Asters have been a great glut all during the month and the wholesaler will take any old price in order to dispose of them. Carnations are as yet small and short stemmed but fairly good flowers. Everything else plentiful and cheap.

Business here has been very quiet during the month of August and now that Congress has adjourned little can be expected until the coming cold weather. The funeral of Mr. Thomas C. Noyes of the Washington Star, president of the Board of Trade and owner of the local baseball team, called for the supply of an exceptionally large number of funeral designs. The bulk of this business went to J. H. Small & Sons and Gude Bros.

Providence, R. I.—The market remained quiet this week. There is a plentiful supply of everything including asters of excellent quality.

The seventeenth annual flower show of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society will be held this year on Oct. 31st and Nov. 1st, in Assembly Hall, Madison, N. J. The prospects for a big show were never brighter. We will miss from our tables the exhibits of Wm. Turner of Oceanic, who rarely failed to help us make up the show. Pure good fellowship was the spirit which moved him to be with us, and the same spirit we hope will bring him to at least break bread with us this year.

Obituary.

Melville A. Scovell.

Melville A. Scovell, for 27 years director of the Kentucky Experiment Station, Lexington, Ky., died last week of heart failure.

Peter Erickson.

Following an operation for appendicitis, Peter Erickson, gardener, of Berkeley, Cal., died at the hospital on August 8th. He was born in Sweden 67 years ago and had resided in Berkeley for about 15 years. Two children survive him.

Harry Dampier.

On August 10, Harry Dampier, gardener, of New Orleans, La., died suddenly at his home. He was a native of Devonshire, England, and located in New Orleans twenty years ago. He was 57 years of age. His wife and two daughters survive him.

John M. Diedermann.

John M. Diedermann, formerly a florist on Orleans street, Baltimore, Md., died at the home of his daughter in New York. He retired several years ago and his son continued the business. He is survived by his wife, three sons and two daughters.

Mrs. George Cruickshanks.

Mrs. Cruickshanks, wife of George Cruickshanks, of R. & J. Farquhar's seed store, Boston, passed away on Tuesday night, August 27th, leaving an infant a few days old. Mr. and Mrs. Cruickshanks had been married about a year. The funeral took place from their home in Roslindale, Mass., on Friday, the 30th inst.

IDENTITY OF ROSE MRS. TAFT.

Messrs. S. S. Pennock, George C. Watson and I compared today some blooms of Mrs. Taft with Antoine Revoire and Prince de Bulgarie. We were unable to detect any difference between Mrs. Taft and Antoine Revoire and believe them to be identical. Prince de Bulgarie is quite distinct from either. Later the same flowers were shown to J. Otto Thilow, who fully agreed with our decision.

The plants of Revoire and Bulgarie from which the sample flowers were taken were obtained from Alexander Dickson & Sons in 1904.

ROBERT HUEY.

Phila., Pa., Aug. 17, 1912.

Queens N. Y.—The florist business of John Gilkinson, Hollis avenue, has been sold and Mr. Gilkinson has purchased a farm in Millertown, N. Y.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

L. C. Page & Co., Boston, have just published two new books in the "Spell" series—"The Spell of England," by Julia de Wolf Addison and "The Spell of France," by Caroline Atwater Mason.

The Spell of England is all engrossing and the romantic and historical facts with which it deals are treated in a vein which has just enough of the sparkle of humor to maintain the interest of the reader. The various chapters are devoted to The Heart of England, The Moated Grange, Bam-bury Cross and other quaint spots in the Coteswood Hills, The Valleys of The Severn and The Nye, About Bath and Wells, Here and There Near London, The Great Universities, Days in The North, The Vale of Conway, Snowdonia and the Great Legend, Merioneth and The Dee, The Shrine of St. Edmund, Canterbury, Along the Southern Coast, etc. 436 pages and many beautiful illustrations including a frontispiece in natural colors of "Caesar's Tomb" at Warwick Castle. The price is $2.50 net.

"The Spell of France," like the foregoing is adorned with many illustrations from special photographs in rich binding and all the finish which characterizes all the Page publications. The author conducts the reader through haunted castles, churches and abbeys, olive fields and vineyards, the roses of Provence, under the palms and groves on the Mediterranean shore, and among the mountains and rivers of Old France and the impressive remains of an earlier civilization in a most entertaining manner and next to an actual visit this book will be enjoyed by anyone interested in foreign travel, history, legend and customs. Price $2.50 net.

A word regarding two new books of fiction from the same publishers. "The Chronicles of Avonlea" by Miss L. M. Montgomery, author of "Green Gables," is a delightful story, full of the element of human pathos, cheery and refined, and pervaded by a sweet atmosphere throughout. Price $1.40, postpaid.

"Miss Billy's Decision" is overflowing with romantic humor and just suited for these vacation days. It would be a most excellent companion for the ladies of the family if you have to leave them at home when you go to the fall exhibitions. It is a sequel to "Miss Billy" and all the interesting characters portrayed in that

PRESENT KNOWLEDGE OF SWEET PEA DISEASES AND THEIR CONTROL.

A paper by J. J. Taubenhaus, Delaware College Agricultural Experiment Station, Newark, Del., read before the American Sweet Pea Society, Boston, July 13, 1912.

Diseases of the Sweet Pea.

In dealing with the diseases of the sweet pea, we have to recognize two classes: 1. Disease of the sweet pea grown under glass. 2. Diseases of the sweet pea grown outdoors.

Under glass, sweet peas are not as extensively grown as outdoors. The time is undoubtedly rapidly approaching when the market will call for more sweet peas in the winter. We have no information as to how many are actually engaged in growing winter sweet peas, nor of the successes or failures these growers meet. We know of a few growers who have attempted to grow sweet peas under glass but who have failed. For the benefit of the rest of us, we will here consider some specific cases in order to bring to your attention some of the possible diseases which may trouble sweet peas under glass. A grower (I cannot give you the name) erected a forcing house for the purpose of growing winter sweet peas. His first attempt was a failure. His plants began to die in spots and only here and there did a plant remain alive. The grower soon complained to his seedsman and the latter kindly referred him to us. We immediately asked for a complete history of the trouble and for specimens of diseased plants and soil. The following is the history of the trouble as told by the grower himself: "The house the peas are in was built last summer, on a piece of ground which had been in grass for over five years. I bought the ground six years ago from a farmer, who had corn in it for several years, but always very poor. I gave it a heavy dressing of horse manure and had it ploughed and sown with Kentucky Bluegrass and Red Clover seed. The grass was a failure and the clover did not come up at all. When I planted the peas I manured very heavily, about 4 in. of cow manure and some little horse manure. Those that did grow did very finely, the rest were a failure. It is altogether a puzzle to me, and I hope you will be able to get at the root of it."

The diseased specimens this grower sent us revealed some very interesting things. It was plainly seen that the plants suffered from more than one disease. At an exterior view the plants looked healthy, but a closer examination revealed a yellowish, sickly appearance. The seat of the trouble in some cases was confined to the roots only, and in others to that part of the stem just above the roots. In the first instance we found a typical case of eel worms, (Heterodera radicola) better known as root knot disease in other plants. Those of you who grow violets have surely met with this trouble. It is evident that roots crippled with eel worms cannot make much headway. Of the other specimens, where the seat of the disease seemed to be located at the junction between the roots and the stem, the latter was found to be covered with a white web of fine mycelium threads of a fungus. In splitting open the stem it was found to be filled with the same white mycelium and intermixed with small sclerotia. Cultures of this mycelial growth readily gave a pure culture of a Sclerotinia, resembling in all appearances the Sclerotinia libertinia, a fungus which causes the damping off of lettuce and so many other plants. In order to establish definitely the relationship of this Sclerotinia fungus to this disease of sweet peas under glass, sterilized seeds were planted in sterilized pots and soil in the laboratory. All the seeds germinated and the plants were allowed to grow for three weeks, no disease appearing on them. Then the pots were divided in two lots; one was left as a check and the other was inoculated with the pure culture of the Sclerotinia by introducing pieces of the fungus in the soil. Both lots check and infected plants, were covered with bell jars to imitate the moisture condition of the greenhouse. After four to six days, wilting of the inoculated seedlings began, whereas the checks remained healthy. This was repeated several times with always the same result. This conclusively shows that the fungus Sclerotinia libertinia is able, when present in the soil, to produce a disease on sweet peas under glass. The fungus is usually brought into the greenhouse with the soil, or with the manure. From the account which the grower gave us, it was purely a case of infected soil and this explains why his sweet peas failed. Cross inoculations with the fungus from the sweet pea and the one from lettuce produced typical cases of wilt in each, thus proving conclusively that the fungus from the sweet pea is the same as the Sclerotinia libertinia of the lettuce, and that the sweet peas are at stake if they are made to follow a crop of lettuce which suffered from this disease.

Several other fungi were isolated from the diseased stems and roots of the plants above discussed. Inoculations with pure cultures of these fungi on healthy seedlings proved to be active parasites. We are not here giving our final word on these fungi, as more experiments are still under way. While working on the diseases of the roots and stems we also investigated the soil which was sent to us by the grower. Accordingly, a few sterilized pots were filled with the soil and sterilized seeds planted in it, and a few other sterilized pots were filled with sterile soil and also sown with sterilized seeds. The same amount of seeds was planted in both lots of pots. After ten days the seeds in the sterile soil germinated and grew well, while the seeds in the sick soil germinated but very sparingly. Upon closer examination the non-germinating seeds were found to be rotted, and of the few plants which grew one-half had their roots nearly rotted. In culturing these roots the same fungi were obtained. Cultures made from the sick soil produced the same fungi as those found on the diseased roots and stems. Our experiments are as yet incomplete but the results obtained so far point to the fact that these fungi in the soil are the cause of this soil sickness. The debris found in this sick soil also readily yielded a pure culture of the Sclerotinia libertinia, of which I have just spoken. The fungus diseases just described can also at any time and under certain climatic conditions, attack the sweet peas grown outdoors. So much for that grower.

Complaints of another grower of sweet peas under glass reached us. The following are his own words, which speak for themselves: "I grow sweet peas under glass for cut flowers and have been seriously troubled with a disease that spots or mottles the foliage with a yellow color, disfiguring the foliage and flowers, and as it becomes pronounced a diseased plant never recovers. Both the weak Winter blooming and the stronger Grandiflora and Spencer types are subject alike to it outdoors as well as under glass. We know nothing of this trouble, every grower we have spoken to having a different theory, some believing the puncture of green fly, or aphid, to be the cause. Our observations led us to believe that the use of green manure was responsible. Any light you can turn on this trouble will be greatly welcomed. Early in the Spring of 1911 it started in greenhouses and spread rapidly, destroying fully one-third of our crop. Last fall it showed up again. We carefully pulled out all plants showing it and gradually it disappeared. As the weather became hot this spring, considerable of it was noticed, but it was too late to do much harm." This closes the quotation.

As this same spotting, or mottled disease is also a very serious trouble of outdoor sweet peas we shall discuss it later under our next heading.

Outdoor Diseases of the Sweet Pea.

Before taking up these diseases it would not be out of place to mention the insects which are parasitic on the sweet pea, although this could constitute an address by itself. Among the biting insects we have the "Corn root worm beetle" (Diabrotica longicornis) so called because the larvæ often injure the corn crop in the South. The beetle is greenish yellow, with six black spots on its back. It resembles the Cucumber striped beetle. Another biting insect is the striped Potato beetle (Epicauta vittata). The cutworm, when present, often causes great annoyance, sometimes destroying the entire crop. The wireworm also is to be dreaded, especially when sweet peas are planted on a soil which was previously in sod.

Among the sucking insects we have the red spider (Tetranychus telarius) which is especially troublesome to peas under glass. Finally, the green aphid, which is also very troublesome, is more to be feared in dry weather. So much for the insects. I have mentioned them not only for the harm they inflict by themselves but, as you will soon see, for the important role they play in spreading about the fungus diseases of the sweet pea.

As to the fungus diseases proper, it seems that an erroneous belief has crept into the minds of some growers and even into those of some of our sweet pea specialists, namely, that the sweet pea is a plant unusually free from diseases; that the diseases, if ever present, are induced by dry weather or excessive feeding; and that when the plants are growing naturally they are practically immune from the attacks of any diseases. We do not mean to deny that high feeding may predispose the plants to diseases, although this has to be experimentally proven before we can accept the statement as valid. We believe that growing sweet peas under natural conditions will not immunize them from diseases of any sort. In fact, our own experimental plantation of sweet peas which we have at the Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station is as free from excessive feeding as one could wish. The soil is of ordinary clay loam. It bore two years ago a crop of hay, and last year a crop of potatoes. The potatoes last year received a regular potato fertilizer and this year no manure of any kind was applied. The sweet peas are, of course, given the necessary cultivation and no more. Yet, in spite of this they are suffering from two of the worst diseases, and of which I shall speak presently.

The Importance of a Right Plan

Continually we are up against propositions where the gardener wants one thing and the owner another. Now the question comes up, shall we build what they want, or try to swing them around to a plan that will work out for economy, endurance, convenience, attractiveness, and that can be added to without looking like a sore thumb?

Naturally we endeavor to put into use our 60 years' experience in the business. Sometimes we run up against a snag and our customers insist on building some unfortunate thing. Every time we carry such ideas out, invariably the owner sees the error when the lay out is completed and blames us for it. Even accuses us of not knowing our business.

So right at the start, it's always best to call us in and talk things over, as we may in the end save you many mistakes.

When shall we come?

SEEING how attractive and practical this arrangement is, do you wonder why THE LUTTON PATENT CURVED EAVE method has changed Greenhouse Construction during the past few years? The result has been the most successful house that can be produced; the other concerns who had been producing the same antiquated buildings for years had to simply destroy their patterns as well as their catalogues and start anew. Just ask some of our imitators to show you some of their curved eave houses built before THE LUTTON PATENT was granted; you will then be convinced that you had better consult with me.

Boddington's "Quality" Christmas-Flowering

SWEET PEAS

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

All true stocks of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas will be scarce this season. Some varieties are a total failure owing to the exceptional season in California this Spring. Our advice to intending planters is to order at once. Mr. Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., the great Winter Sweet Pea Specialist, sows our seed almost exclusively.

Our stock of Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas have stood the test for years, and we can refer you to the largest growers of this increasingly popular flower, as to the trueness and quality of our seed, earliest of blooming period and strength and habit of plants.

The following varieties are the "best by test" and include Zvolanek's and our own introductions, grown for seed from selected stocks by the leading California grower and specialist in Sweet Peas.

Our output last year was nearly 3000 lbs. Few kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and trueness to type.

FILL OUT COUPON BELOW AND RETURN

We can make immediate delivery on all the following varieties.

Quantity

-BODDINGTON'S EXTRA-EARLY CHRISTMAS WHITE SNOW BIRD. An exceptionally early Sweet Pea for indoor flowering—will bloom six weeks after sowing. Color clear white, upon long stems; habit fairly dwarf and of exceptionally free-flowering qualities. Without doubt the finest early white for indoor planting. We sell one grower in Pennsylvania 35 lbs. of this variety every year; name on application. Oz., 25 cts.; ¼ lb., 75 cts.; ½ lb., $1.25; lb., $2.00.
-BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS PINK. This is the earliest and most profitable and useful Sweet Pea in cultivation, as by sowing the seed under glass in latter part of August, flowers can be cut from Thanksgiving on during the Winter months. Oz., 15 cts.; ¼ lb., 50 cts.; ½ lb., 85 cts.; lb., $1.50.
-BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS WHITE. A companion to our Christmas Pink. Just as free and profuse a bloomer. Oz., 15 cts.; ¼ lb., 50 cts.; ½ lb., 85 cts.; lb., $1.50.
-ANGELINO. Self pink; new variety. Oz., 50 cts.; ¼ lb., $1.50; ½ lb., $2.75; lb., $4.50.
-CANARY. Similar to the above, but flowers of an exceptionally good yellow. Oz., 35 cts.; ¼ lb., $1.00; ½ lb., $1.75; lb., $3.00.
-CHRISTMAS METEOR. Scarlet; fine open red flower. Oz., 35 cts.; ¼ lb., $1.00; ½ lb., $1.50; lb., $2.50.
-CHRISTMAS STELLA MORSE. Creamy buff standard, wings slightly tinged with pink. Oz., 50 cts.; ¼ lb., $1.50; ½ lb., $2.75; lb., $4.50.
-FLAMINGO. Color scarlet; free-flowering and early. Oz., 50 cts.; ¼ lb., $1.50; ½ lb., $2.75; lb., $5.00.
-FLORENCE DENZER. Pure white. Oz., 25 cts.; ¼ lb., 75 cts.; ½ lb., $1.25; lb., $2.00.

Masdevallias

The genus Masdevallia forms a distinct and very interesting section of the great orchid family. They differ considerably from other orchids in the shape of their flowers; the petals and the lip, which are usually the most attractive part in an orchid flower, are here very much reduced and in some instances completely hidden away in the tube of the sepals by the dorsal sepal turning down, thus concealing the inner whorl of the flower very effectively. The beautiful M. ignea is a good example. In the curious M. bella the petals are small but not concealed while the pure white pendulous lip contrasts very nicely with the dusky looking sepals, which with their long tails remind one of a brownie. M. Veitchiana, M. Harryana and M. coccinia are amongst the brightest colored orchids I know of and they always attract the attention of visitors. M. Veitchiana is bright orange scarlet, densely set with short woolly glands which are tipped with rich purple; this changes the color of the flower when looking at it from different angles, reminding one of changeable silk. The flowers of M. Harryana are brilliant purple or magenta with a white eye and those of M. coccinia, intense scarlet or vermillion with a purple sheen similar to that in M. Veitchiana. M. towarensis (see cover illustration) is a very attractive dwarf-growing species with pure white flowers which usually grow in pairs. This latter flowers in midwinter and would be very serviceable for Christmas. The other varieties mentioned above flower during spring and early summer. Their flowers last several weeks in good condition and are produced at intervals for a long time.

It is a pity that these lovely orchids are not more generally grown. They are easy to grow and can be readily increased by dividing the plants. They inhabit the mountainous regions of tropical America from Peru to Mexico, a few being found in Brazil and Guiana, and therefore require cool-house treatment all the year around. They must never be allowed to suffer for want of water as they have no pseudo-bulbs in which to store up moisture. In hot weather they must be shaded quite heavily, else they will soon suffer; a sharp lookout for thrips must be kept as these are very fond of them and will soon disfigure the leaves if allowed to get a foothold. An occasional fumigating with some good insecticide and frequent syringing on all favorable occasions will keep these pests away; prevention is better than cure, so don't wait until the thrips have established themselves before fumigating. Osmunda fibre and a little sphagnum moss furnishes a good compost for them to grow in. M. bella and others of the Chimera section should be grown in small pans, suspended from the roof on account of their pendulous flowers. The others are best grown in common flower pots.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Bouvardias

It is time now to lift the bouvardias and house them. They delight in a house that gets plenty of sun during the winter. To grow bouvardias successfully a night temperature of at least 60 degrees will have to be maintained, and they should have a rise of from 10 to 15 degrees during the day with sun heat, but during dull days a rise of about 5 degrees will do. Give them a compost of three parts of fibrous loam and of cow manure and leaf-mold one part each, and see that they have good drainage. They can be planted a foot apart each way which will be little enough for them. Keep them shaded after planting for a few days until they begin to take root, and give them frequent syringings during the day and they will soon go ahead. These plants need very careful handling from this out, for if they should once happen to get a set-back it will be no easy matter to start them up again. Give extra attention to watering and give a good syringing on all bright days to keep down red spider and thrips. Whenever possible see that there is a circulation of fresh air in the house.

Cyclamen for the Holidays

All plants that are intended for Christmas blooming should be given a place on the sunniest bench, in a house that is kept from 50 to 55 at night. Place them far enough apart to let the sunlight enter all around them. Give a spraying once a day now, and do it sufficiently early so that they will be dry before night-fall and provide plenty of ventilation to keep the plants cool and airy and insure a fine stocky growth. The plants to be right for Christmas should now be showing quantities of buds about the size of pin heads, but where there are flowers on the way to open soon, these should be picked off. Extra care will have to be exercised in the way of watering, as some plants will dry out more quickly than others which will require a close observation two or three times a day, so every plant will be kept in the right state of moisture at the roots. Fumigate them lightly at least once a week for the aphids.

Crimson Ramblers

Where you have been growing this stock all summer by continuous pot culture, which no doubt always makes the best material for forcing, it is now time to let up on the water supply so as to ripen up their growth. This ripening up should always be done quite gradually, giving them a little less each week after they are placed outside. After two or three weeks the pots can be laid on their sides and left that way until they are stored away in the frame and covered with some boards and a little hay or straw, as the cold weather sets in. Stocks grown in the field should be lifted any time about the end of this month, care being taken to preserve as many of the roots as possible. They can be potted in any good rose soil and given a thorough soaking, after which give just enough water so they will become well established in their pots without starting the buds up, and then they can be given the same treatment as for the pot-grown ones.

Hydrangeas

It is no good to wait any later before starting to lift hydrangeas that have been grown in the field. They will go into 6, 7 or 8-inch pots according to size. Make a rich compost for these plants, say to three parts of fibrous soil, give one part of well pulverized cow manure and a good sprinkling of bone meal, and see that the whole is thoroughly mixed. Such a mixture will be to their liking as it contains the available nitrogen that they will require later on. Place in shade for a day or two and then put them where they get all the sun that is going. They can be kept outdoors until heavy frost is threatened, when they should be placed under protection of some kind such as a deep frame. Plants that you have grown in pots will have their growth finished now, so withhold the water supply gradually so that they will get well ripened up.

Laelia anceps

The grower will have to use good judgment with these orchids now that fall is with us again. To ensure a free healthy growth with fine flowers you will have to keep as even temperature as possible. This is the season when Laelia anceps are in danger of receiving a set-back from some cause or another. Keep your house as well ventilated as the outside conditions will permit, being very careful not to allow any direct cold draughts to sweep over the plants. Do not let them become dry at the roots as they will take water in unstinted amount now when they are sending up their flower scapes. Create a liberal atmosphere moisture by damping down the walks and under the benches two or three times a day. Gradually expose to full sun all those that you may need for early flowering and you can retard a batch by using common sense in giving them a cool and lightly shaded house where the atmosphere is kept a trifle lighter and drier.

Making a New Peony Plantation

This is the time par excellence for the making of a new plantation. While peonies will do very well in a partially shaded place, yet when grown commercially great care should be taken to give them a place fully exposed to the sun. The next thing of importance is a rich soil that has been deeply dug and a generous amount of well rotted manure well mixed through it. Where you have plenty of land to spare give them at least four feet apart as they will need all this room. When planting see that they are not set too deep as this induces shy flowering. The crowns should be just about two inches below the surface to do well.

Mr. Farrell's next notes will be on the following: Carnations; Smilax; Demorphochea aurantiaca; Hardy Phlox; Oncidium; Tulips.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Ruzicka. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Using Cracked Ice in Boxes

Again we deem it wise to call attention to the importance of having your roses arrive in market in the very best condition possible. Roses, especially Beauties, if shipped long distances and no ice is used in the boxes, are very apt to open far too much to bring the tip-top price. This should not be allowed to happen, and the only way to prevent it is to use cracked ice and plenty of paper. In winter we use plenty of paper to keep the cold out; why not use as much in summer to keep the heat out? The flowers will keep cool for hours if packed in well-lined boxes, not allowing any of the buds to be exposed to the air any longer than is absolutely necessary.

In using ice we like to break it up into lumps as big as a hen's egg and then putting about a dozen of these around the stems of the buds. The buds or flowers themselves must not come in contact with the ice. Any bud coming in contact with ice will lose its color, the ice turning a Beauty bud blue.

Lime

Some of the early houses will now be wanting a light dose of lime. Watch the plants and as soon as they begin to show signs of weakness a light dose of lime should be given. This will not only harden the plants considerably, but will also act on the soil, making it much sweeter and render fertilizers contained therein more available. It will also destroy earth worms and other inhabitants of the rose bench. A light dose of air slacked lime applied at the proper time is one of the best things that could happen to a rose bench. Use only enough to whiten the surface of the soil.

Killarney Roses and Mildew

The Killarneys are more subject to mildew than some of the other varieties of tea roses; and it is therefore well to do everything possible to keep the plants vigorous and healthy. We find the grafted plants mildew much easier than own-root plants. For this we have as yet found no satisfactory explanation.

To prevent mildew on Killarney or any other rose begin when the plants are just planted and keep them well used to air. Give them plenty of it; "the more the merrier," as the saying goes. Plants that are well-hardened to air will not mildew every time a little draught or air current stirs the foliage. We find the Killarneys as a whole like lime. The quantity to be applied depends on the condition of the soil, some soils requiring more and others less. This the grower must decide himself.

In our locality the weather has been extremely cool off and on all summer so that it has been necessary to give the houses heat. Letting the houses go cold to save coal is poor economy, and you will find it pays well in the long run to keep the temperature right up to the mark. As stated only a short time ago the temperature in the rose house at this time of the year should never go below 64 degrees F.

Syringing

From now on it will be necessary to shake the plants well after each syringing so that all will be dry by night. This applies especially to Beauties. These must never be allowed to remain over night with wet foliage. Otherwise you are inviting a dose of blackspot and most growers know what that means. Just before quitting time blow a little lime under the plants with a pair of bellows. This is very important and should never be left undone.

Perennial Phloxes

This little illustration gives an idea of the gorgeous effect to be derived from planting phlox en-masse with natural surroundings. This picture, which was taken on the first of August, shows a natural effect obtained in conjunction with rock work and coniferae. The striking colors are prominent a great distance away and on a closer inspection reveal one of nature's most symmetrical flower forms. The hardiness of these plants is greatly in their favor, these having stood 18° below zero last winter without the least protection other than that afforded by the shrubs. They have some idea of taking care of themselves through the growing season, too, and when it comes to the survival of the fittest an established root of phlox is "in the field to stay." The range of color now to be found in these hardy phloxes is beyond my description; various heights are also to be had to suit any position. No wild garden, rock garden or herbaceous border is complete without them.

San Francisco's ambitions

There is already some talk of San Francisco as the place for the next National Show, following New York—the time to be 1915, the year of the Panama Exposition. The S. A. F. has already given evidence of favorable consideration of the invitation to hold the 1915 convention in San Francisco and the merging of flower show and convention into one big affair at that time has been mentioned as being within the range of possibility. It is intimated that the S. A.

F. would find San Francisco and the Exposition government ready to meet them half-way in the matter of prizes and that a unique and altogether unprecedented open air horticultural demonstration would be assured. There appears to be practically no limit to the ambitions of the Pacific Coast floricultural people in this project. Convincing proof that they mean business and are getting at it in good season can be found in the list of California members added to the S. A. F. rolls in the past two years, when the secretary's annual report is published.

To keep up the interest

The passing of three weeks has already relegated the Chicago Convention to the "bygone" shelf. So recently an all-absorbing topic for comment and discussion and so soon cast aside! Yet many of the questions there brought forward are as important, and should be as much alive today as they were then and they will so continue. Here is one direction in which a closer concentration of effort between the florists' clubs and the national society could be turned to great practical advantage. The various local clubs are now resuming their regular meetings. The president's address at Chicago and the report of the committee appointed to consider its recommendations, which of necessity received only a brief and superficial consideration, might well be made to furnish live topics for a whole season's discussion in the local organizations and thus accomplish a world of good. Take the subject of "overhead costs" for example. Who can doubt that if every organization of commercial florists in the country—growers and dealers—should make this the one topic for consideration at their October meeting, the result would be of great benefit to the trade at large? Only in some such way can we reap the full measure of good which is brought forth at such a gathering of the brightest and most successful men in the trade.

The plant
inspection law

The import of the federal plant inspection law is given in this paper together with a copy of the form of application for permit to enter nursery stock under the provisions of this law. This is the act known as H. R. 24119 "to regulate the importation of nursery stock and other plants and plant products." The Federal Horticultural Board established by the law has been appointed and, we understand, is now considering the regulations which are to be prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture. The Board is made up as follows:

C. L. Marlatt, Assistant Chief Bureau of Entomology (Chairman); Dr. W. A. Orton, Plant Pathologist (Vice Chairman); Peter Bisset, Bureau of Plant Introduction; A. F. Burgess, Entomologist; Geo. B. Sudworth, of the Forest Service.

The law will go into effect on October 1, 1912. A permit will be needed for each separate importation. This is one of the most important legislative acts ever passed, in its relationship to the business of the florist and nurseryman and our readers are advised to peruse it carefully and thus become thoroughly familiar with its provisions. As finally passed and approved it practically upholds all the terms of the Simmons Bill against which much protest was made. We hope that with all the legislation of one kind or another affecting the nurseryman, florist and seedsman recently enacted we shall now be given a respite for a while. We are pleased to see the name of Peter Bisset on the list of Board members. Mr. Bisset has the respect of the entire horticultural fraternity.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

George H. Penson

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Penson. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

Feeding Strawberries

As strawberries fill out the pots with roots feeding can commence. The crown has to be made up during the next seven or eight weeks, so they will repay any care and attention bestowed on them. Do not rush a quantity of strong manures into them right away, or "too much of a good thing" will be demonstrated. Start gently using a weak solution of soot water as a first persuasive. Soot in itself has little feeding qualities but it will assimilate nutriment already in the soil and also sweeten it. Following this, weak solutions of manures can be applied, gradually working them up to full strength. Solutions of manures are recommended because I think strawberries are best fed with solutions; the only time dry manures are superior is when the surface is being loosened up and this can be worked in. Care should always be taken not to give the plants any stimulants when they are dry; rather go over them first with clear water using the "strong stuff" afterwards. With good weather prevailing the plants will need looking over for water twice each day. They should also receive a syringe after the dew has gone off in the morning and again late in the afternoon.

Watering Finished Trees

Peach and nectarine trees which are now ripening up the wood will require less water at the root than hitherto. The growing season is over with them, they are in a semi-dormant condition and any excessive moisture will be injurious, helping to keep the wood green, as well as to prevent the tree from resting. There is no danger at this period of disaster from drought; it is after the leaves are off that dryness will cause flower buds to drop. This is why I consider that the most critical time of the whole season of a peach or nectarine is when they are resting. You have no danger signals then to prevent a wreck. From now on aim to keep the border at the "half-way house." This is also applicable to vines in a lesser degree, as they with their mass of roots will dry out a little oftener.

Shading

Any shading still remaining on fruit houses should now be removed (gradually) giving the trees and vines every opportunity to ripen up their wood and develop good buds for next year's products. The one exception to be made perhaps is any vinery which may still be cutting; in this case it will be well to leave it on until the crop is off. Later houses can be left a little longer, if the fruit is coloring satisfactorily, but in no instance should more shade be put on. Where any difficulty has been experienced in other years to get a satisfactory finish on Gros Colman or any of its associates remove the shade a few weeks earlier.

The Ant

Ants are quite a source of trouble on some places, marauding any house at will. While not professing to know their biography I do know they can distribute mealy bug and other live stock with great rapidity. It is said that an ant is the strongest creature in the whole world in proportion to its weight, and seeing the load they carry one can readily believe it. They are mean things to rid a place of if once established, the instinct they are endowed with giving them due warning from most poisons, etc. About the most expedient method of extermination is to feed them with bread, meat or bones, placing it on a loose board so that when a good number are feeding the whole lot can be dumped into a pail of hot water or something equally effective. This takes time and labor as does every other practical device of eradication. After any kind of fruit has had the skin punctured these little torments delight to make use of it.

Soil

With the time for top dressings, additions, and new borders to be made, one looks towards the soil heap. The storing of sod has not been suggested previously as, with the exception of a little soil needed to finish off after root pruning, there is quite time yet before the other work will come on. Fruit trees differ from plants in respect to soil. The latter require available food immediately on planting while the former are still dormant for some time after the soil is supplied to them, thus giving it time to decay and be in its best state when needed. For all such work loam will be best nearly fresh but let the grass be near decayed. This latter alone is all to debar new cut sod from being used. Where soil has been stored some months and yet has three, four, or five months before it is needed to furnish a food supply much will be lost. Manure of any kind should be kept out of the soil heap intended for use in the fruit houses. Get the very best sod procurable—old pasture land which has been grazed with mixed stock is the best. The method generally in vogue is to plough up so much sod and shovel all that comes into the wagons, dumping it out the quickest way with the teams continually driving over the heap. This is the "get there" idea and leaves the grower to make the best of it later. It answers for a time but where the best is expected why not give every detail the best care? A sod cutter set deep will flay off the turf at a uniform depth and when this is placed on the wagon you have no fine soil along with it. Instead of dumping it and having horses and wagons drive over it the sod should be handed out and placed on a good heap with the grass side down, there to remain until wanted. All this takes too much time, some will say,—yes, but time well spent and it will repay in the end. The location of the heap should be considered. Get it as near to its destination as you can. Close proximity is out of the question at times, as a sod heap is not the most ornamental thing to have around. Make provision so that there is room on all four sides of the heap for at least two feet of loose straw manure to be added later, which will keep out the frost; otherwise all work will be stopped during the winter months.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The Executive Committee of the American Rose Society will hold a meeting on September 10th, at the office of Vice-President Traendly, New York City. The purpose of this meeting is to prepare a schedule for cut blooms to be shown at the National Flower Show in the Rose Division next March. The list for plants is already issued. The Rose Show at Boston was a marked feature and in New York there are some millions of people living within the radius of the suburban lines which center in or near the building where the exhibition will be held.

Last June we were at Lake Mohonk Mountain House, Mohonk Lake, Ulster County, New York. While there we viewed a sight of roses the like of which the writer certainly never had beheld out in the open ground. Mrs. Daniel Smiley says of the varieties growing there:

"Considering every quality, the abundance of bloom, the strength of stem and the plant generally, and the frequency of bloom, in fact, everything that goes to make up a desirable rose both for cut flowers and landscape effect, we have it in the Mrs. John Laing rose.

Paul Neyron is a great dependence; both of these roses are perfect in this climate. The Grus an Teplitz being such a remarkably clear red and not looking ugly when faded as many do, is another most valuable rose both for bedding and for cut flowers.

The Kaiserin we value very highly, and the Frau Karl Druschki cannot be excelled. None of these roses that I have mentioned seem to be at all disturbed by any insects or mould or any other infesting in this climate.

Among some of the other roses that we have are the following: President Carnot, Ulrich Brunner, American Beauty, Alfred Colomb, Clio, Chlotilde Soupert, Caroline Testout, Celine Forestiere, Vicomtesse Folkestone, Hermosa, Killarney, Maman Cochet, Baroness Rothschild, Sweet Briars (one of which is Catherine Seyton), La France.

Fir high borders, the Rosa rugosa, both white and the red, we use in masses and for high backgrounds.

Under climbers we have: Wichuraiana, Baltimore Belle, Dorothy Perkins, Christine Wright, Climbing American Beauty, Pink Rambler, Baby Rambler."

In observing the growth and care of home door yards during the past several weeks, it is noticeable the number of single rose bushes and climbers that are to be found.

BENJAMIN HAMMOND,
Secretary.

FLORISTS' CLUB OF PHILADELPHIA.

The September meeting of the above club was interesting chiefly because of the presence of the S. A. F. president-elect, John Farquhar. The scheduled features—the reports from the convention—were not unusual, and developed no sensational episodes. Mr. Farenwald gave a talk on his European trip. Mr. Farquhar made a fine speech. Every Philadelphian is pledged to the great show in New York. Of course, there was an exhibit of dahlias. No engineer has yet invented the clamp that can keep Peacock from blowing up in September; and there were others. Next meeting will be nomination night. The talk is all for J. Otto Thilow for another term for president; can't let him go yet. Astonishing how he has wound around us that past year. Arthur Niessen has not yet announced the leading feature for the October meeting, but we expect to hear from him in a few days.

FLORISTS' CLUB OF WASHINGTON

The September meeting of the Florists' Club of Washington, held on Tuesday evening last was well attended. Walter Kimmel, chairman, reported on the very successful excursion held in July. He also spoke of the field day to be held at Potomac Heights at which the prizes which were to have been distributed at the outing would be offered. Arrangements are to be made for the giving in October of a lecture by a well known rose grower of Oak Grove, Pa., on the growing of roses in Germany, combination of colors, etc., illustrated by stereopticon views. Regarding the William R. Smith memorial Mr. Gude spoke on what had been accomplished at the Chicago convention and on the contributions already received for this purpose. Talking along convention lines he recommended that thought be given to the proposition of sending a bowling team from this city to Minneapolis, Minn., in 1913, and further started the talk going toward the holding of the 1914 convention in the National Capital. After adjournment a buffet luncheon was enjoyed.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

Birmingham, Ala. A movement is on foot for the organization of a local florists' society in this city.

The Cincinnati Florist Society meets on next Monday evening at the club rooms in the Flower Market.

The opening meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston for the season of 1912-1913, will take place on Tuesday evening, September 17. J.

K. M. L. Farquhar will give a talk on his visit to The Royal International Horticultural Exhibition in London, with stereopticon slides.

The fall exhibition of the St. Catharines (Ont.) Horticultural Society will take place in the Armory, September 12 and 13.

The St. Louis Florist Club will hold its monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon, September 12, in Odd Fellows' Hall. Secretary Beneke is preparing notices to all members to be sure and attend so as to give a fitting send-off to the retiring officers and a cheering one to the new ones who will be installed.

GROWERS WANTED FOR NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Certain European growers of bulbs, rhododendrons and flower seeds are anxious to connect with some florist in the neighborhood of New York to force their products and have them in good shape to be exhibited at the National Flower Show, early in April, 1913, it being obviously impossible to bring such stock as bulbs into flower in Holland or England and then transport them in that condition next year.

If any florist is willing to take up this matter will they please advise me how many they will be able to handle and at what price? I will then put them in communication with the parties interested.

Aside from the financial consideration, I trust some florist will feel interested enough to undertake this work as it is the desire of the European seed and bulb men to show some of the very latest and best novelties in their respective lines.

CHAS. H. TOTTY,
Chairman National Flower Show Committee.

THE BRUGES INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.

The big exhibition of the Royal Horticultural Society at Bruges, Belgium, opened on August 11. Orchids, cut flowers and the more delicate exhibits were staged in the municipal buildings, but the plants were displayed in the large market square, forming a gorgeous picture of cannas, zonal pelargoniums, hydrangeas, fuchsias, tuberous begonias, etc., with groups and borders of gigantic bay trees and palms. At night the scene was brilliantly illuminated. The show remained open for one week.

The exhibits were mainly by the commercial growers, who abound in Belgium and the adjacent countries. Sander & Son were by far the largest exhibitors both in bay trees, pandanus, ferns and orchids, and this firm secured many awards also for new plants.

In palms, dracaenas, crotons, etc., Flandria & Co. were the leaders, but Sander was also a big factor in this class. Hydrangeas from De Conninck Dervae of Maldegem were very fine. Charlesworth & Co. were the only English exhibitors. Their display of orchids won a gold medal.

BRITISH HORTICULTURE.

The Sweet Pea Trials.

The National Sweet Pea Society has held duplicate trials in two centres this season. The various entries have been inspected by the Floral Committee of the Society. It was found that there was no extraordinary novelty to merit a silver medal, or even a first-class certificate. At the same time there were some excellent varieties which will come to the front in future exhibitions. Constance Hinton is a useful addition to the pure whites. King White is another welcome newcomer. This variety has received an award of merit, as did also the following: Decorator, rich cerise red; Agriola, a blending of mauve and rose; R. F. Felton, lilac suffused with French gray; Bertrand Deal, rose mauve; Lady Miller, pale cream, flushed with apricot.

Gladiolus Show.

The second summer show of the National Gladiolus Society was held in London, on August 13th. Both as regards numbers and quality the show was a decided advance on that of last year. Kelway & Son took the first prize in the class for 24 varieties. The excellent specimens included: Parody, Duke of Buccleuch, Prince of Orange, Duke of Richmond, and King of Gladioli. Wilhelm Pfitzer, Stuttgart, Germany, in the same class obtained a silver gilt medal, and also a silver cup for a new primrose yellow seedling. E. E. Stewart, of Rives, Mich., U. S. A., gained a silver gilt medal for a new salmon-pink seedling. The silver cup for the best collection of gladioli was carried off by Kelway & Son, who likewise had the first for the best yellow spike (Golden Measure) and a silver trophy for the best white spike. Wilhelm Pfitzer headed the list with a group of late flowering varieties. Frank Banning, Kinsman, Ohio, U. S. A., was first for the best pink (Panama), H. H. Grogg, Canada, being second with Evolution Perfection. W. H. ADSETT.

WHERE THE CREDIT BELONGS.

Editor of HORTICULTURE:

Dear Sir:—Your Philadelphia correspondent, page 317 of the current issue, gives me credit in a matter to which I am not entitled. He refers to the reduction in postage rates on seeds, plants, and bulbs.

It may be interesting to your readers to know that fourth-class matter was created (it is alleged, and I believe with truth) at the instance of the express companies in 1875. The committee which secured the putting back of seeds, plants, and bulbs into the third class, at the rate of one cent for each two ounces, or fraction thereof, was composed of Messrs. Peter Henderson, Robert Craig, and John N. May, to the best of my knowledge and belief. Your correspondent probably had in mind the concession obtained from the express companies on the same class of goods, by the committee of which I was a member. In this connection I wish to say that the concession made by the express companies would never have been obtained but for the fact that the postage rate was used as a leverage to obtain it. Yours truly,

PATRICK O'MARA.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

The old Globe Building at 339 Pennsylvania avenue, N. W., has been leased by the Department of Agriculture for use as a distributing depot for the seeds annually sent out by Congressmen to their constituents.

The army worm which has reached Washington has been successful in devastating quite a number of this city's finest lawns. The gardens of the State, War and Navy Building were badly damaged, also the lawn surrounding the White House. A concoction made of one pound of paris green and fifty pounds of wheat bran mixed with a little molasses has been found to be successful in killing this worm, but in using this concoction it must be remembered that song birds and poultry are likely to be poisoned by eating the bugs killed by this method.

Considerable interest was manifested in the automobile parade held here on Labor Day, although not by the owners of commercial cars. There were some 300 cars in line, some decorated and some not. Gude Bros. entered three of their machines, one covered with white cloth and artistically decorated with American Beauty roses and butterflies set off by various greens and Asparagus Sprengerii. This latter car won first prize of $150. The car which brought second money was decorated in the shape of a house of colonial architecture with the windows draped with vines, panels set with flowers on either side and boxes of growing plants at each window. Clematis paniculata and red dahlias were used. In the fourth prize exhibit goldenrod formed the main part of the decoration, together with gladioli, oak leaves and ferns.

OBITUARY.

Stephen Delbar.

Stephen Delbar, a well-known florist and gardener of 40 Olive street, Hartford, Conn., died suddenly on August 24, from heart disease.

AT DREER'S.

Every Johnson must have his Boswell—if the world is going to hear the truth about things. So horticulture's Boswell went along on the 2nd inst. and did his best to listen to what Mr. Farquhar, who went along, too, had to say, and to enjoy the ride to Locust Farm about six miles back from Riverton in company with that prince of perennial men, Harry Sim. Harry Sim is one of the best "hardy perennial" men of the country; J. D. Eisele says so and he is a pretty good judge. What he told us about the first year's growth of delphiniums as compared with the second year; what pointers he gave us on the peony—their first year and their second year—and the cost; the same about the phlox and the dahlia, would fill a book and could only be got at first hand. The soil at Locust Farm is not so extra, but it is far superior to the soft sandy proposition at Riverview and Riverton, so we do not blame Dreers for moving over. The iris does finely at Locust, so does the phlox and the peony and in fact, nearly all the important subjects. They have some pretty good gladioli. All the latest varieties are being given a good test. The fierce rain storm of the night before had ruined the appearance of the cannas so that Mr. Michel was in despair as to showing the best results in the newer varieties. One never can tell from a hurried visit. One variety that may look droopy and bashed up today may look entirely different tomorrow. You have to stay with them to find out. That's why we are so respectful to the lads who do that and who by their daily experience correct the hurried judgment of the casual looker on. In this connection we want to caution the average reader. How can anyone tell from a one-day look? Still, from these solemn judgments many of the fallacies in our business have their origin. The writers have far more to answer for than they think.

GEORGE C. WATSON.

NEW YORK NOTES.

H. A. Barnard, representing Stuart Low & Co., of Bush Hill Park, England, has arrived on his annual American trip. His New York address is at the Hotel Albert.

J. McHutchison and T. B. Meehan returned last week from Europe. They boarded the steamship Oceanic at Cherbourg and had hardly been aboard an hour when Mr. Meehan had the misfortune to slip and in falling broke a knee cap. On reaching New York he was conveyed directly to his home and, from the latest report, is progressing satisfactorily. Mr. McHutchison is well pleased with the looks of European stocks, which he says are exceptionally fine this season.

A very fine display of gladioli was on view in the Museum Building, Bronx Park, on August 31st and September 1st. The weather was dull, cold and showery—consequently the attendance was very limited. Competition was not very keen, but the quality of the flowers throughout was excellent and the colors were as a rule superb, far exceeding expectations for what is now rather the end of the season. The classes for montbretias did not fill, there being only one exhibit.

Publicity among the kind of readers reached by this paper is THE SORT OF PUBLI-CITY THAT PAYS.

ENFORCEMENT OF FEDERAL PLANT QUARANTINE LAW.

By an act of Congress approved by the President on August 20, 1912, entitled "An act to regulate the importation of nursery stock and other plants and plant products," etc., the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized and directed to quarantine any State, Territory, or District of the United States, or any portion thereof, when he shall determine the fact that a dangerous plant disease or insect infestation new or not heretofore widely prevalent in the United States, exists in such State, Territory, or District. Before promulgating his determination that it is necessary to institute such a quarantine, he shall give a public hearing, at which any interested party may appear and be heard either in person or by attorney.

The Secretary of Agriculture is further directed to prohibit the importation into the United States of any class of nursery stock, fruits, vegetables, roots, etc., whenever he shall determine that such prohibition is necessary to prevent the introduction into the United States of any tree, plant or fruit disease, or insect infestation, new or not widely prevalent within the United States. Before issuing his proclamation to this effect, he is directed, as in the case of quarantine against a State, to give a public hearing to any interested parties who may wish to appear in person or by attorney.

There is imminent danger of the introduction into the United States at the present time of two dangerous plant diseases and one insect known to cause great damage in other countries. One fungus disease the white pine blister rust injures four important species of pine in practically all European countries. It is a fungus disease and would be a most undesirable importation into the United States if it be brought here, as it is liable to be on imported nursery stock. It would cause enormous damage to coniferous forests.

Another fungus disease which is a menace to American agriculture is the potato disease known as potato wart, potato canker, black scab, etc., caused by a fungus which, in advanced stages of the disease, utilizes every particle of food in the tuber and reduces it to a brownish black soft mass of a very unpleasant putrid odor. The disease occurs in many parts of Europe and in several islands not far from the Atlantic coast of the United States.

The menacing insect pest is the Mediterranean fruit fly, an insect which is tolerably well described by its name, and which is now known to be established in the Hawaiian Islands.

To prevent these undesirable immigrants from entering the United States, the Secretary of Agriculture proposes to exercise the power vested in him by the new law and declare a quarantine against the Territory of Hawaii in the case of the Mediterranean fruit fly, and also to prohibit the importation from Great Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Russia, Germany, Austria, Switzerland, and Italy of four species of pines and their horticultural forms liable to introduce the white pine blister rust, namely, white pine (Pinus strobus), Western white pine (Pinus monticola), sugar pine (Pinus Lambertiana), and stone or cembrian pine (Pinus Cembra). The importation of potatoes that may bring the potato wart disease from Newfoundland and the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, and from Great Britain, including England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland, and from Germany and Austria-Hungary will also be prohibited.

In compliance with the law, however, he will, before issuing his quarantine proclamations, give public hearings to persons interested who may appear in person or by attorney, or submit their views in writing. Announcement is hereby made that these hearings will be held as follows:

On the white pine blister rust, September 16, 1912.

On the Mediterranean fruit fly, September 18, 1912.

On the potato wart disease, September 20, 1912.

All hearings will be held at the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., at 10 o'clock A. M., on the dates above specified.

Photographs illustrating the three dangers above mentioned can be obtained upon application to the Chief of the Division of Publications, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Important to Importers of Nursery Stock, Field-Grown Florists' Stock, Etc.

The new act, H. R. 24119, goes into effect on October 1, 1912. Following is the form of application which must be filled out for permit for each separate importation:

Horseshoe Brand Lily Bulbs

The crops of all early forcing lily bulbs of good quality are very short this year, owing to a lack of rain at the proper time. At such times many bulbs of inferior quality find a ready sale in the market. Those who want good lily bulbs should therefore not delay a day in placing their orders. The following are the revised prices for Horseshoe Brand bulbs, the best produced in the World. Immediate delivery.

LILIUM FORMOSUM.

Excellent stock—extra in size and quality.

Size	6/8 in.	$20.00 per case of 400 bulbs.
"	7/9 in.	22.50 per case of 300 bulbs.
"	8/10 in.	22.50 per case of 250 bulbs.
"	9/10 in.	22.00 per case of 200 bulbs.
"	9/11 in.	19.80 per case of 180 bulbs.
"	10/11 in.	18.00 per case of 150 bulbs.
"	11/13 in.	13.00 per case of 120 bulbs.

We advise early orders—very limited stock.

LILIUM GIGANTEUM—(to arrive soon).

Size	6/8 in.	$16.00 per case of 400 bulbs.
"	7/8 in.	16.00 per case of 350 bulbs.
"	7/9 in.	16.00 per case of 300 bulbs.
"	8/10 in.	22.50 per case of 250 bulbs.
"	9/10 in.	22.00 per case of 200 bulbs.
"	9/11 in.	21.60 per case of 180 bulbs.
"	10/11 in.	22.50 per case of 150 bulbs.
"	11/13 in.	24.00 per case of 120 bulbs.

The above Giganteum are from the finest fields in Japan. Prices on Auratum, Rubrum, Magnificum, Album, etc., etc., upon application.

LARGE CROP OF CHINESE NARCISSUS.

In connection with the generally splendid crops in the immediate vicinity of Amoy this year, Vice-Consul Charles F. Brissel reports that the production of narcissus bulbs has greatly increased, so that bulbs which in former years sold for about $8.25 (gold) to $9.40 per 1,000 bulbs in Amoy, this year are selling for $6 to $7 per 1,000 bulbs. The district of Chang Chow, about 30 miles from Amoy, grows practically all of these bulbs, and it is said to be the only section of China which produces bulbs of such excellence.

CHICAGO NOTES.

The Retailers.

Special advertising in the daily papers by the local florists has about ceased, the demand being so unusually light this summer. The retailers generally report a lighter summer trade than for many years. Some of our well known members of the trade are showing a good example at the opening of the fall season. Two weddings are booked, one on Sept. 4th and the other later in the month.

Canger & Gormley's new store in the Fine Arts Building on Michigan avenue, is receiving the finishing touches and it will be one of the finest in the down town district. The sales-room on the main floor is handsomely fitted up and is supplemented by a work room four times its size in a light basement. This room has wall cases on all sides and everything is finished in mission style.

Trade Notes.

Andy McAdams, one of the south side's oldest florists, is about to retire from active management and W. La Grotta will assume charge.

It is stated on good authority that there will be about $2,500 to return to the generous contributors to the convention expenses. The distribution will be made pro rata.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. are cutting a few dozen cattleyas now and their plants give promise of a full crop in the near future. Some dendrobiums are also coming on at this time and of fine quality.

Labor Day brought an agreeable surprise to many of the florists in the shape of a brisk trade. After one of the duller weeks in the history of the market, Sept. 2nd kept all hands busy past the noon hour.

P. J. Foley and Philip, Jr., spent the week end at Lake Geneva. Since the convention all the salesmen of the Foley Mfg. Co. have been kept busy looking after the business resulting from their exhibit at the convention.

George Schwing has been very successful in growing nymphs and they find ready market here. His Schwing's hybrids are excellent and though he follows the occupation of a market gardener rather than that of florist, he is the only one in this vicinity to grow these flowers for commercial purposes.

Personal.

J. W. Breakey, 3907 Cottage Grove avenue, has nearly recovered from a long illness from blood poisoning.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Oechslein put in the week following the convention in an auto trip to the famous Lake Geneva resorts.

Mrs. A. Mosely of Kansas City, Kas., spent a week visiting relatives after the convention and also in seeing some of the large greenhouse establishments about Chicago. She returned home Aug. 31st, making the trip in company with Miss Franc Hancock, who will teach the coming year at Pittsburg, Kas.

Tom Fogarty begins this week a more eventful vacation than any heretofore, for during it Miss Hertha Tonner will become his bride. Mr. Fogarty has been buyer for O. Friedman for many years and Miss Tonner is well known as doing a successful wholesale commission business in the Atlas Block. They will live at 53rd and Wallace street, Austin.

Henry Kruchten and Rose Parker were married Wednesday, Sept. 4th, at the home of the groom's brother, John Kruchten, 5058 N. Western avenue, Chicago, the ceremony taking place at 4 o'clock in the presence of the family only. They will live at Leavitt street and Wilson avenue. The florists of the Atlas Block and the express boys presented a handsome set of silver. HORTICULTURE extends congratulations.

ST. LOUIS NOTES.

We are to have a new wholesale cut flower and supply house to be known as Windler Company. They are to open up on Monday, September 16. The officers will be: Albert J. Windler, president; Frank A. Windler, vice-president and treasurer; A. W. Gunez, secretary. A. J. Windler has never been identified with the flower business, although well known through his brothers, who are local florists. Frank A. Windler, his brother, was until a week ago vice-president of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., well-known and much-liked in local trade circles. A. W. Gunez has been connected for the past five years with Geo. H. Angermuller and a favorite with many buyers in the wholesale district. All three are young men of good habits and business qualities. The new house will be located at 1310 Pine street, where they will have a large roomy store all on the ground floor.

After the 16th of this month all the wholesale houses will again go back to the old closing hours. The employees enjoyed the early closing hours very much during the hot months.

The McCray Refrigerator Company are installing through their local rep-representative, the Standard Scale and Fixture Co., one of her largest retail refrigerators in the city for the Mulanphy Florist Co.'s new store. The box is all in white, 20 feet wide, 8 feet high and 14½ feet deep.

The Brecht Company of this city have put in a large refrigerator for George Waldbart and also one for the Metropolitan Floral Co., the latter to be used for a show window box. Both are costly and attractive ornaments of well-kept floral establishments. These two places have undergone great alterations this summer and are now ready for the season to open.

NEWS NOTES.

Berkeley, Cal.—W. H. Wolters of the Ashby Nursery, 2906 Ellsworth street, has opened an office and sales yard in the center of the city for the purpose of selling general nursery stock.

Cincinnati, Ohio—The Hill-Heller store at 531-532 Race street opened on Tuesday. The store is a very pretty one. The opening window displays of assorted plants were good and drew the attention of many shoppers.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

All of the handsome photographs of floral pieces shown by F. C. W. Brown at the Chicago Convention can be had from M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., who have the exclusive control of this valuable art collection of 150 subjects, each one a gem.

W. S. Lawrence and his son, Charles Lawrence, of Atlanta, Ga., were visitors to the "House of Rice" last week and were entertained at the summer home of B. Eschner at Elkins Park.

Visitors: Will Rehder, Wilmington, N. C.; Mrs. John Wolf, Savannah, Ga.; John K. M. L. Farquhar, Boston, Mass.; George Weinhoeber, Chicago, Ill.; David Quinn, Brookline, Mass.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON Business is good, particularly so in the early part of the week, for which the opening of a big new department store may fairly be credited in a considerable degree. American Beauty roses were the beneficiaries in this great event and so the local growers were hardly "in it," as the majority of the Beauties used in Boston are purchased in outside markets. Many thousands were used. Asters, the finest on record, are in great plenitude and prices are not what they should be for such elegant blooms. Sweet peas are almost out of the running. Gladioli have never been finer. Small roses are plentiful and the price is not quotable. Lily of the valley has been selling well, but a sudden drop is now in evidence. Lilies are excellent in quality, but limited as to demand. Carnations are not yet in the running as a commercial proposition.

CHICAGO The market during the last week of August was most unsatisfactory, a surplus of everything except cattleyas being found at nearly every place. The almost complete cessation of trade was partly due to the fact that many Chicago people are still at their summer homes and partly on account of the extremely hot weather the latter half of the week. Beauties and other roses shared the same fate as asters and gladioli and it was a relief when stock began to shorten up. September opens with a very marked increase in sales and quality of stock is good considering the hot weather of a week ago. Carnations are few and on short stems and are not an important factor in the market. Lilium auratum have been plentiful till the present time but the supply is now limited. Out-of-door hydrangeas are being cut, but aside from these there are few miscellaneous outdoor flowers. Lily of the valley is said by Phil. Schup to be in good demand and of first class quality for the season. Green of all kinds seems plentiful. September 2, the wholesale houses went back to their old time of closing, six o'clock.

There are plenty of blooms of every kind to be had, but all do not possess the requisite quality. In some cases the stock never had it, but in most of them it was there originally, but was spoiled by careless packing. These statements refer principally to asters. A good many come in in splendid condition and, with the exception of white, are more than sufficient for requirement, but many are so badly bruised when they arrive that to move them they must be sacrificed at half or less than half their proper price. Some, too, are bunched carelessly as to sizes and grades. Of other stock there is enough for the demand in fancy, let alone the shorter or cull stock. The Beauties are still a "best seller," and clean up fairly well. Only the best and longest of the other roses sell. The small sales in the shorter stock has caused quite an accumulation in the rose line. In gladioli the fancy light shades sell best. Dark and smaller stock find an exceedingly slow market. Lilies sell up and are holding up to a fair price.

With the exception of a slight flurry on memorial flowers consequent to the passing away of some prominent citizens, the past week has seen no improvement on the previous dull and lifeless conditions. The aster crop is still very large and a big amount of stock has remained unsold—anything the least bit under grade being passed by without even a nod of inquiry. Gladioli are still very good and meet with a fair demand at moderate prices. Roses are more plentiful and outside of white have been a little draggy. Cattleyas still very scarce; the next one due is the labiata, which will be available in about ten days and will relieve the tension. The gardenia market has tightened up very considerably from the low-water mark previously reported. Dahlias are arriving in moderate quantity, but the bulk of them are being held back until the flush of the aster crop is over. Altogether the market may be called as dull and featureless as could be expected at this season, and it gives the enthusiastic reporter a cramp in the leg to talk about it.

Flower Market Reports

NEW YORK

There is practically no change in the market since last report.

While the supply is still plentiful the demand, except for a spasmodic sprint now and again, is very slack. Generally speaking, stocks have fallen off somewhat in quality, this being especially noticeable with Bride and 'Maid roses and gladioli, but some extra fine spikes of the latter have been selling at 3c. Orchids are scarce, also gardenias, but we have had quite a few chrysanthemums of fair quality this week.

The market remains in the same old rut as it has been all during the past month; weather very hot and business dull. The market has been overloaded with cut stock of all kinds and prices on the down-grade. The prices are based on the amount of stock you buy, but in less than 100 lots they remain as quoted last week. Killarney roses have been coming in great lots. All outdoor stock, such as asters, gladioli, tuberose, etc., are still in more than the demand calls for. August has been a very dull month for the florists.

WASHINGTON

In no summer in the years past were flowers more plentiful than at the present time. Some very fine specimens of the new cut American Beauty roses are now coming in and Queen Beatrice is in fine shape. Carnations are coming along much better and there are enough lily of the valley, gardenias and orchids to fill all demands. Asters are about at their height and the public markets are overburdened with them. A large proportion of these go to waste, but those that are being sold are materially hurting the sale of the higher priced flowers. Due to the fact that Congress remained in session so long, business has kept up very well.

The Boston Co-operative Flower Market had a good sale of stalls on Saturday, August 31, at their market on Park street. W. W. Tailby wielded the hammer in accustomed persuasive manner and the sale netted somewhat better than last year, which was the banner year thus far. The outlook for a prosperous year was never better.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

American Association of Nurserymen. Proceedings of the 37th Annual Convention, held at Boston, Mass., June 12-14, 1912. A full record of the discussions, lectures and addresses, together with a list of members and other useful matter are comprised in the 100 pages of this very practical publication.

NEWS NOTES.

Scranton, Pa.—John W. Beagle has purchased the Marvin Greenhouses on Capouse avenue.

The Boston Flower Exchange, Inc., had their annual sale of choice of stalls at the market in Park street, on Saturday, August 31st. It was a success in every way and the salesroom was thronged with a big enthusiastic crowd of growers. The regular auctioneer, Mr. Carroll, was unable to officiate on account of sickness, so President Stickel acted as substitute under a special license and thoroughly amazed his old friends by his proficiency in this new roll. The highest price paid was $195.00 by John J. Fee, which is the record figure up to date for choice of stall.
